U.S. Workers Remain Silent Before Probe

Refusal to Answer Queries of Jury On Subversive Activities Disclosed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 11 (AP).—Secretary-General Trygve Lie disclosed tonight some American employees of the U.N. recently refused to answer questions of a New York grand jury investigating their activities outside the U.N.

The U.N. chief executive implied that the grand jury was investigating subversive activities of Americans who work under him.

He said he would fire any Americans proved disloyal to their country and said he had done so in the past.

Lie's statement came after a late-hour extraordinary conference with his top aides at his Forest Hills home in response to Wisconsin Senator Alexander Wiley's demand earlier in the evening that American Reds be thrown out of the U.N.

U.N. employees have become involved in previous grand jury investigations in New York and there have been some firings afterward by Lie but the U.N. never has linked the discharges officially with the grand jury appearances.

Wiley, a Republican Senator who is a member of the U.S. delegation to the General Assembly opening here Tuesday, said in his statement he has asked the State Department to give him a full report on suspected Americans working for the U.N.

"The Red infiltration," Wiley said, "is not a matter of conjecture or a pipe dream, but a matter of hard, cold fact, documented by top security officials—facts which, when revealed, will shock the American people."

South Koreans Win White Horse Crest

SEOUL, Oct. 12 (Sunday) (AP)—Troops of the South Korean "stay, fight" 9th Division twice battled to the crest of shell-battered White Horse Mountain today in five hours of vicious see-saw fighting.

The second time up, they drove off the battered remnants of two Chinese Red battalions.

"We are holding the top of the hill and digging in," said a U.N. front line officer.

He said the Republic of Korea troops seized the crest the second time at 1.20 p.m.

The Rok division headquarters estimated the Chinese lost 9,000 killed and wounded in the fight, now in its sixth day, for the strategic hill commanding an invasion route to Seoul.

The officer said the South Koreans drove the Chinese off the crest in a hand-to-hand and bayonet battle. He said the Reds retreated to the base of the north slope. The Roks did not pursue them.

The Reds that were on the crest were from a regiment that had not before been identified in the mountain fight.

The swaying fight for White Horse resumed today at about 8 a.m. For five hours the Roks and the Chinese traded punches and swept back and forth over the crest.

U.S. air force and navy jets meanwhile circled overhead, peeling off now and then to plaster the Reds on the north slopes of White Horse and on a hill about a mile to the north—their supply base.

The Roks started their second charge to the crest from positions on the eastern and western flanks of White Horse.

Prospector Makes Find In Northland

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Oct. 11 (CP).—Veteran prospector Adolph Struder may have hit a mineral jackpot in the Saskatchewan northland.

Struder today reported that a find on Freda Lake in the Sulphide Lake region 28 air miles north of Lac La Ronge contained samples of uranium, copper and molybdenum.

Samples taken on the property and assayed by the provincial government showed uranium high grade testing at 1.71 per cent; copper at 6.33 per cent, and molybdenum at 10.72 per cent.

The molybdenum, vital metal for toughening steel and now in short supply would be worth $120 a ton. The uranium would average $140 a ton.

South American Way

Turkeys unlimited—well, almost—were distributed at free food stall in City Public Market yesterday as Thanksgiving special for families in the area needing assistance. The 35 toms were a present from a South American visitor who read about free food distribution and decided to pitch in and help. Looking turkeys over with judicious eye is Shirley Pilkington 14, of 432 Menzies Street. Free food stall will be open again on Saturday, October 25.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Grocer, Children Slain in Robbery

CHESTER, Calif., Oct. 11 (AP).—Beaten to death in a robbery, the bodies of a grocer and three small children who went with him on his weekly trip to the bank were found today in the trunk of his car on a lonely logging road six miles east of Chester.

A fourth child found alive but unconscious was reported in "fair" condition, suffering mostly from extreme shock.

Missing was the $7,100 which the grocer had obtained Friday afternoon from the Bank of America at Westwood, 11 miles east of this northeast California mountain town.

A few hours later, the sheriff's office put out an all-points bulletin for apprehension of two men in a black Buick with an unknown Arkansas license. The description of them was vague.

The only given basis for suspecting them was that they had been following the victims on the drive to the bank.

The dead were Gard Young, 43, his daughters, Judy, 6, Jean, 7, and a neighbor boy, Michael Saile, 4.

Young's third daughter, Sandra Gay, 3½, was taken to hospital, where attendants said her condition was fair.

Young, who operated a good-sized super market, made a regular week-end trip to the Westwood bank to get money to cash loggers' pay cheques.

On Friday Young took the children along for the joyride, while his wife stayed at home with the Young's five-month-old son.

Returns Still Coming In To Increase Chest Total

The Red Feather is still riding high.

Directors of the current campaign said last night the campaign would be continued until every household and firm in Victoria and vicinity had an opportunity to contribute.

No date has been set for termination of the fund drive—originally scheduled to end a week ago today.

Co-chairman John A. Craig reported returns were still coming in to boost the total closer to the $195,000 objective originally set—with 45 special canvassers busy on a re-canvass of Oak Bay and some Victoria districts.

He said telegrams may be sent to persons on the special names division—many of whom are out of town—to ask them to indicate what they may be contributing to Red Feather this year.

One important point to the 17 member services which depend on Red Feather financing for their operation: The money was still coming in.

Summer Hanging On For Thanksgiving

Summer is going to have at least one more try to get reinstated as a permanent fixture this week end.

With the exception of a little fog in the early morning, the weather office promises a clear, warm day and forecasts only a few clouds for Monday—but no rain is in sight.

Early morning drivers are warned of intermittent fog patches in low-lying areas and along the shore lines, but clear sailing is predicted by noon today.

High on the thermometer for Victoria today will be 60 degrees says the weather office, with a low of 45.

This same general forecast applies to the whole of the lower Island, with the highest forecast temperature Nanaimo's 65.

Hunters, fishermen, picnickers and those who just want to drive around and look at the autumn colors will have at least one more chance this week end—perhaps the last for some months.

Crisis Predicted In Farm Supports

Surplus Buying Outraces Sales

BY TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA, Oct. 11.—With surpluses piling up in beef, pork and wheat, Canadian farmers are at the crossroads.

The federal government has been able to ward off a collapse in prices to producers through the introduction of emergency support prices, or guaranteed minimum payments in the case of wheat. But non-government agriculture experts are beginning to wonder how much longer Ottawa will support farm products if current sales continue to lag far behind purchases and the surpluses keep piling up.

There is a certain resemblance in the present picture, it is claimed, to that which faced Canadian producers in the early 30's.

Ottawa is now supporting beef, pork, eggs and butter. Wheat producers are guaranteed a minimum payment for their grain on the basis of grade.

The support price for beef has been 25 cents a pound on dressed cattle. On pork it has been 26 cents a pound.

On the basis of marketing arrangements so far, Canadian taxpayers stand to lose approximately $25,000,000 as a result of those emergency support prices for beef and pork. Future losses will depend on developments of the winter, but under the most favorable conditions, will probably run to about $30,000,000 overall.

Losses on the marketing of government-held beef surpluses under the four-way arrangement with the United Kingdom, New Zealand and the United States have been running about 20 cents a pound. Similarly, the losses on pork canned since last spring have averaged about 22 cents a pound.

In the case of both eggs and butter, there is practically no surplus. The support price for eggs is 38 cents a dozen Grade "A" large. For butter, it is 58 cents a pound.

Lifting of the U.S. embargo against Canadian cattle and hogs isn't likely until next spring. Meanwhile, the government is striving to unload its 100,000,000 pounds of meat in storage—about 60,000,000 pounds of beef and 40,000,000 pounds of pork.

In a move believed to serve as a blunt warning to farmers to cut down their production, the government has announced that effective November 15 the support price on beef will be reduced from 25 to 23 cents a pound.

On pork, it will be cut from 26 to 23 cents a pound, starting next January 1. On April 1, however, the support price on beef will be raised to 25 cents a pound.

With regard to wheat, Canada has contracted to sell 235,000,000 bushels in the crop year 1952-53 under the International Wheat Agreement. The guaranteed minimum is $1.20 a bushel, the maximum is $1.80, in U.S. funds. Canada's wheat carry-over at July 31 was 213,000,000 bushels compared with 189,200,000 a year ago. The new crop is estimated at 675,000,000 bushels—the highest in history.

As of September 1, the government has estimated there were 696,100,000 bushels available for export and carry-over, as against 547,700,000 on the same date in 1951.

Brief Asks Free Sale

The ending of government monopoly of the distribution of alcoholic drinks, with wholesaling and retailing by private concerns to take its place, is recommended in a brief prepared by Charles Nelles & Company, Victoria commission merchants.

The brief will be presented in Victoria Tuesday to the B.C. Liquor Enquiry Commission.

The brief urges an immediate cessation of government monopoly on the sale of beers and wines.

Under the system proposed, government monopoly on whiskies, gins, rums and other strong drinks would not be withdrawn immediately. A trial period, not to exceed three years, would allow testing of other recommendations contained in the brief. Then a successor to the present commission would consider success of the scheme tested. If the scheme was approved, the government monopoly on these liquors would be withdrawn after due warning.

After withdrawal of the government monopoly, provincial revenues from liquor would be secured through licensed wholesalers affixing stamps to all bottles they held or sold.

Number of licensees at present retailing strong drinks by the glass would be added to, "to include reputable places in the approximate number that normal healthy demand will support," the initial number to be decided by the present enquiry commission or "by any other group it thinks capable."

Dealing with beers and wines, the brief makes these additional recommendations, to take effect immediately:

That manufacturers be enjoined from retailing these drinks.

That retailers of these drinks by the glass be required to observe certain hours of sale and of good order in their premises.

That retailers of these drinks by the bottle suffer no special restrictions other than those imposed upon any other retailer of any other commodity.

The brief also makes these

California Importing Petroleum

RICHMOND, Calif., Oct. 11 (AP).—Standard Oil Co. of California disclosed today that a shortage of California-produced oil is forcing it to import petroleum—and could jeopardize defense on the west coast.

"This shortage jeopardizes the most important sources of fuel for military and defense activities on the Pacific coast," said Standard president T. S. Peterson.

He spoke at a press conference at which the company sought to explain its request for an increase in the crude oil ceiling price, now under consideration by the office of price stabilization.

Peterson said the supply of California oil falls roughly 100,000 barrels a day short of "a military and civilian demand on the west coast for some 1,168,000" barrels. Importation is necessary, he said.

Peterson said failure to correct the shortage "would prevent accomplishment of the purposes of the defense production of 1950."

Excessive Drinking Called Key Problem

To the public stocks with excessive drinkers, and shower them with over-ripe fruit and vegetables.

With such a plan in mind, W. A. Scott, unsuccessful candidate in the past provincial election, will present a brief for sane drinking to the three-man board at present investigating the liquor situation in B.C.

"Wine was sent to gladden the heart of man, but modern drinking habits have made it something to sadden the hearts of men," Mr. Scott said last night.

He compared drinking habits with driving habits, with the example of the many laws to make drivers take caution but not one to make drinkers toe the line and drink sensibly.

"Moderation in drinking becomes the vital issue," he said.

He pointed out that science has proved man-made laws to be useless unless there is a desire to obey them, and gave as an example of this an experiment some years ago with rats.

TAILLESS RATS

Scientists, said Mr. Scott, decided to try to produce a breed of rats without tails. They started cutting the tails from a number of rats, and as each pair reproduced, they cut the tails off their offspring.

"This did nothing more than make the tails grow bigger, and it was decided there was no desire by the rats to be without tails," he finished.

This, he said, indicates that unless there is a desire for sane drinking, all the cutting in the world by law administrators will never curb drinking habits of the present day.

"Reckless drinking among our youth becomes a draft upon the financial structure of society with heavy interest for years to come," he said.

Car Plunges From Wharf

VANCOUVER, Oct. 12 (Sunday) (CP). A car plunged off a Vancouver wharf early this morning with two persons believed to be inside.

One man is believed to have been rescued.

Candidate Clears His Record

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 11 (AP)—Another political candidate has made a clean breast of his financial status.

Twelve-year-old Mike Murphy, running for secretary of the student body at Madison School, decided today that was the best way to clear up his difficulties with school authorities.

It seemed they had become slightly worried when Mike handed out printed cards during the campaign that read:

"Mike will fight for what's right."

Feeling he might have had access to funds that gave him an unfair advantage, they asked for an explanation.

Mike gave it to them at a school assembly.

"From what I read in the papers I decided it might be a good thing for a candidate to tell what he earns and owns," he said.

"First, I get a dollar a week allowance. If I leave my pyjamas on the floor, mother deducts a dime. And if I don't do something I should do, it costs another dime.

"At the end of the week I usually end up without a cent.

"Also I get a dollar for every gopher I catch in our yard. But I think I have caught them all. The other day I caught one down the street, but dad said that didn't count.

"Besides, I'm still in debt for a window I broke.

"I assure you that I have accepted no money for my campaign."

The explanation apparently worked, for the seventh-grader was a solid winner over two girls and another boy when the votes were tallied.

Donations Replace Tax-Bitten Tickets

OKANOGAN, Wash., Oct. 11 (AP). An Okanogan theatre owner says he's fed up with the federal and city tax take on tickets. So he's stopped charging admission.

Instead, he asked patrons this week to "donate" any amount they like as they enter the theatre. And, said owner Loren A. Gillespie, the plan worked fine.

On opening night Tuesday he had a full house. The average adult donation, he said, was 29 cents. (Usual admission with a 14-cent tax, 55 cents.) The average student donation was 23 cents (45 cents otherwise) and the average child's six cents (15 cents standard).

"But," added Gillespie, "the take from the sale of pop, popcorn and candy more than doubled. The theatregoers spent almost exactly as much money as they did for admission alone on pay-the-tax nights."

There's no amusement tax on donations and Gillespie said he had the advice of an internal revenue deputy that he need pay no national tax as long as the contributions are not in specified sums. He will continue the plan if he continues to receive the same support.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THE Indian summer spins on its long way. Each pale yellow morning opens with the lake as smooth as glass and a smoky mist rising. Catfish cruise with their snouts above water. The grasshoppers continue to sing their dry song, and human grasshoppers put off buying-wood, because winter seems to have forgotten its business. A little tree frog croaks among the chestnut leaves.

The rowboat is pulled half-way up on the shore. Low water has tipped the float and diving board downward. The other day I eased into the water for a final swim which lasted only 10 seconds, because the lake was chilly in spite of warm days.

Only in the last week of September I stirred myself to do something I had postponed all season—slung the hammock on the willow tree overhanging the water. My wife, who had been mildly sarcastic about the late effort, surprised me by clambering into it to read and take a nap.

* * *

The other morning we heard a barking sound from the lake. A dozen Canada geese sailed around the willow tree into sight near the float. I rushed down with handfuls of bread and threw it on the calm water.

The geese eased warily toward the food, uttering subdued croaks, and curled their long necks down to seize pieces. When I retreated from the float to the grass, they moved in close and got every morsel they could. Two more geese skimmed over to join them from the other side of the lake.

It was strange to see these far travelers coming in so close to accept food, almost like tame things. I hoped they were here for the winter. Last year two Canada geese wintered on the lake.

Once when there was ice on the lake to a distance of 20 feet from shore, the two geese came sailing in and we sent pieces of bread skimming along the ice to the edge. I remember how our three cats picked and skidded their way along the ice, snatched some bread that was still lying there, and gazed at the geese almost nose to beak, a sight to see once in a lifetime.

Two of the little cats never lived to see their first winter—Siamese Mong and Jildi the water cat, who liked to ride in the boat and sat under drips from the kitchen sink to wash her back. Only old trout-colored Taura is left, and he lives with some friends at Colwood.

* * *

Our present two cats are not much interested in the lake. The orange-colored tom cat, Toby, who was left to us by friends, has grown fat and affectionate. He has a way of jumping up on the chest of a sitting person, nuzzling the victim's face and placing a paw full of sharp claws on each side of the neck. He cries out for condensed milk and for the icing from cakes—two items of food which aren't too plentiful in our house.

Black and white Gletkin has increased greatly in size and cunning. He knows how to make his way in through the window, and has developed a way of creeping into bed with us. He can tell if we want to get him in the house, and slides under the blackburry bush when we approach. He doesn't like having fleas removed from his fur, but we manage to catch him now and then and subject him to this affront.

For a while he brought us snakes and mice as presents, but since my wife always took them away and set them free, he has given up that practice. At night he hunts moths with the ferocity of a cougar stalking deer.

Polo Players Wanted in City

Adherents of the sport are trying to drum up enough members to organize two more teams to compete with the one now training here and to form a league.

It is hoped a polo field will be ready for the drumming of pony hooves by next summer.

Don Carley of the Victoria Riding and Hunt Club said the club would be organized only if response warrants it. Supporters hope to bring the game back to the status it held in pre-war days.

All Plans Complete For College Jubilee

Golden jubilee celebration plans for Victoria College have been completed and will begin with the opening of the new Ewing Building on Wednesday.

Fiftieth anniversary chairman, Prof. R. T. Wallace heads a drive to raise $5,000 for books to fill the shelves of the library in the new structure.

A special brochure has been issued by the anniversary committee outlining the history of the college, its progress during the past 50 years and an outline future plans.

A portrait of the late Dr. J. M. Ewing will be unveiled in the new library by Ray Frey. Speakers at the ceremony will be W. T. Straith and Neil Harrow. Wallace Ireland will be the chairman.

Other speakers at the golden jubilee celebration will be Hon. Mrs. Tilly Rolston, officiating at the opening; Mrs. F. G. C. Wood, J. A. Cunningham, R. H. Reeve of the Greater Victoria School Board; Dr. Norman A. MacKenzie, president of the University of B.C., and Dean Philip R. Beattie.

Judge J. B. Clearihue will preside as chairman of the first part of the celebrations in the auditorium of the college.

U.K. Minister Thanks Rotary

A letter of thanks for food gifts to Britain has been received by the Victoria Rotary Club from Rt. Hon. Gwilym Lloyd George, the U.K.'s minister of foods.

The letter of thanks referred to the recent closing of Commonwealth gift centres in London, which were started during the war and maintained during the post-war period of food shortages in Britain to facilitate the movement of food gifts from overseas to the U.K.

The Rotary Club here was active in sponsoring food parcels.

"Thousands of letters have carried the thanks of those in Britain who were helped," the minister's letter said. "But with the official closing of the centre I would like to express appreciation of Her Majesty's government and the people of the United Kingdom. . . ."

SINGAPORE, Oct. 11 (Reuters). — The Duchess of Kent, standing in an open jeep, today rode half a mile through ranks of 23,000 cheering Singapore school children. With her 17-year-old son, the Duke of Kent, she was attending a youth rally held in connection with Singapore's annual education week. The Duchess is making a tour of Britain's Far East territories.

Alcoholics' Story To Be Told Here

Dramatic story of Alcoholics Anonymous—one of the brightest chapters in modern history—will be told by men who know the course at a public meeting in the Sirocco Club at 2.30 p.m. today.

The meeting, to be addressed by speakers from Washington, Oregon and British Columbia, is a highlight of the current second annual Pacific Northwest A.A. convention here.

Chiltern Hundreds Pleasing

A small laugh riot was let loose at the Victoria Theatre Guild's Langham Court Theatre with the first night presentation of "The Chiltern Hundreds . . ." first guild play of the season.

The three-act farce, based on the British elections of 1945 when Labor went into office, winds its way through a couple of scrambled romances and certainly the most scrambled politics on record.

That's including the recent British Columbia elections.

The Chiltern Hundreds, of course, refers to stewardship of that name, appointment to which enabled a member to resign his seat in the House of Commons.

Big share of the laughs last night was garnered by Basil Issigonis, player from Calgary theatrical companies, now tackling his first major role here, as the Earl of Lister.

Mary Jessop in the important role of Mary, surprised the audience with the assurance in what is her first role in a Guild play.

Also turning in sturdy portrayals were Lesley Allen as Countess of Lister, Vancouver newcomer Stan Wade as Beecham the butler, Gerald Guest as Tony, Lord Pym, and Pat Fairweather as Lady Caroline Smith.

Don Russ as Mr. Cleghorn and Pamela Scratchley as June Farrell, the American girl who backs the butler in politics also pleased a sell-out first night audience.

The fun and frolic continues next week through Saturday, [illegible] night. B.M.

Chief Scout To Meet Victoria Groups

BY FREEMAN KING
District Executive Commissioner,
Boy Scouts' Association
(Victoria District)

The Chief Scout of Canada, the Governor General, will be at the Bay Street Armoury to meet Scouts, Cubs, Girl Guides and Brownies of Victoria and district on Wednesday.

All scouters are asked to be at the armoury by noon.

At an emergency turn-out practice last Thursday evening, 14 members of the Lions Own Rover Crew were out and at their destination, 10 miles out of the city, within an hour of being alerted.

On Wednesday evening, the Cadboro Bay Troop held a "going up" ceremony for Brian Hobbs when he joined the troop. Also in the Cadboro Bay district, the Sea Scout Troop has got under way again after a lapse of 10 years.

Last Friday evening, Miss June Hall, Akela of the Cadboro Bay Cub Pack was married to Capt. H. Robinson. The pack formed a guard of honor for the couple at the church.

Three troops, Colwood, Marigold and Tillicum, are away for a week end of camping. This is good scouting.

The fall training courses for cub leaders and assistants will get under way in the 20th District at Scout headquarters, 1034 Johnson, on Monday evenings at 8 o'clock.

District Commissioner E. A. Estlin has appointed the following to be district Akelas and Scout-masters: Mrs. E. Fagan, Mrs. Mae Pickering, Winnie Lees, Edward Meads, Martin Dawson, Don Hamer, Roy Brain, Wilf Gibson.

These scouters will give help and assistance to packs and troops in their alloted areas.

Nearly the whole of Canada was covered by ice sheets within the last million years.

Manslaughter Trial Starts On Tuesday

William Green, 750 Queens, will stand trial Tuesday on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Birch. Trial will be held at 11 a.m. in Assize Court.

Mrs. Birch died from asphyxiation because of a leaking gas pipe in her room. The Crown charges the pipe was installed by Green, who is a steamfitter.

This will be the second trial of the current Assize Court. The court adjourned for a long holiday week end on Friday after the trial of Bhag Singh, also known as Ram Singh.

Mr. Justice A. D. McFarlane sentenced him to two and one-half years when he was found guilty of rape.

Election of Pearson As President Certain

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct 12 (CP) A vote for president, as close to unanimity as any decision at the United Nations gen- [illegible] given at Tuesday's opening-day elections to L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister.

Before all six previous assemblies at least two names were prominent in speculation on the presidency of the assembly, the highest honor in the U.N. This year only Mr. Pearson's name is mentioned.

However, there are no formal nominations the 60 delegates just write the name of their choice on a slip of paper and put it in the polling box. So there will possibly be a few votes for others, including a possible block vote by Russia and her satellites.

The president of the assembly [illegible] portant steering committee, which allocates problems to the seven committees of the assembly and also makes rulings on whether dispute items are to be admitted to the agenda.

A tough fight is expected in the steering committee next week over problems of nationalism in Tunisia and Morocco which France opposes and over the racial conflict in South Africa over which South Africa threatens to quit the U.N.

PERMANENT BODIES

After election of president, vice-presidents and committee chairman, there will be elections for vacancies on the security council, the economic and social council and the trusteeship council, the permanent U.N. bodies.

Canada has been a member of the economic and social council for six years twice the usual term. This year Canada is not expected to be a candidate for re-election to one of the seven seats becoming vacant January 1.

No big fight is expected for vacant seats in the eleven-member security council with Denmark slated to succeed The Netherlands, Colombia to take Brazil's place and Lebanon to replace Turkey.

Stevenson Warns South Of Power Loss

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 11 (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson closed a two-day battle to keep Dixie Democratic with a sharp reminder tonight that a Republican victory will cost the south positions of power in Congress.

The Democratic presidential nominee standing firmly on the Democratic platform, interpreted his difference with the south on civil rights as one of method only.

"I do not believe," Stevenson said "that southerners have less regard for human dignity than other Americans."

In an address prepared for delivery here, the Illinois governor took a parting fling at Democratic Governors Byrne of South Carolina, Shivers of Texas and Kennon of Louisiana, who have abandoned his cause and jumped to the Eisenhower camp.

"Embittered apostates," he called them, without speaking their names. Men who "proclaim themselves Democrats while supporting the nominee of the Republican party."

Stevenson put in an 18-hour day on the political firing line, a busy day of campaigning here in Tennessee and at Miami and Tampa along a trail Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had followed in early September.

Moonlight Photo

Campaign Switch Studied

DENVER, Oct. 11 (AP) A strategy of a "high level approach" avoiding personalities and partisan retorts, was under study today by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's political high command for the final weeks of the presidential campaign.

The decision, an informant said, will be based on examination of reports coming in now from all parts of the country.

They deal not only with Eisenhower's own sweep through the west, but more especially with reactions to President Truman's "Give-him hell" train trip. At some points, the general was only a few hundred miles behind the president, speaking in the cities a few days later.

On the basis of latest information, Eisenhower's top lieutenants are trying to determine the answers to two interlocking questions:

1. Has the president helped or hurt the Democrats by his attacks on Eisenhower?

2. Has the moment come for Eisenhower to emphasize the crusading nature of his campaign, leaving off any direct replies to Truman and Gov. Adlai Stevenson, while stressing his declaration, "I'm not a politician."

That methods now used by the provincial government be altered [illegible] any drinks of this description from any source whatever by any presently entitled consumer, in the quantity he desires and at a price arrived at by the same scale as applied to domestic drinks of the same alcoholic content already on the shelves of the commission.

That retailers of drinks by the glass be required to observe certain hours of sale and of good order in their premises, but that no other restrictions be imposed upon them except by the normal, healthy pressures of their customers expressed in their patronage.

Should Liquor Commission control be lifted, Nelles & Company say they probably will wholesale California wines in British Columbia.

South Koreans Meet Toughest Test

SEOUL, Oct. 11 (AP)—Fighting Republic of Korea troops on White Horse Mountain have met the biggest test yet faced by the completely retrained South Korean army, and Allied officers consider they have come through with flying colors.

U.S. officers, closely watching the western front battle, say the Rok (Republic of Korea) soldier is as good as any in Korea.

However, these officers do not believe the time has yet come when the Roks alone can handle the entire 155-mile battle line.

Now, following an extensive training program designed by Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U.S. Eighth Army commander, 10 Rok divisions are holding down at least half the battle line.

At White Horse Mountain, guarding the Chorwon Valley gateway to Seoul, the fighting Rok Ninth Division has made a stand as valiant as any ever made in the long Korean war, advisers say.

Army Lists One Fatality

OTTAWA, Oct. 11 (CP) The army today issued its 141st casualty list of the Korean war, reporting one man killed in action and three wounded in action. The last previous list was issued October 7.

This brought to 1,073 the number of casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in Korean action including 197 dead, 792 wounded, 73 injured, 10 missing and one prisoner of war.

The navy has reported three killed and three injured in action.

Atoms Crowd Out Hounds, Chukkers

AIKEN, S.C., Oct. 11 (AP).—Will the billion dollar H-bomb materials plant near here spell the doom of Aiken as one of the South's foremost and most colorful winter playgrounds?

That's a question of some concern among the many residents who benefit financially from the annual resort business.

Famous for polo and riding to hounds, Aiken suddenly has found itself the capital of the H-bomb country. The atomic energy commission's Savannah River plant, under construction now for a year and one-half, is centred in this and an adjoining county.

This once placid community is booming like an old-time western mining town after a gold strike. New people are coming in by the thousands. New businesses are opening up. Almost everybody seems to be making more money.

Rooms, apartments and houses are at a premium. Many large former winter homes have been turned into lodging houses.

Aiken long has been a winter resort. The season runs from November to April, reaching its peak in March with horse shows, races and polo games.

Because of its 560-foot altitude and dry climate in the pine-studded sand hills region, the town first was a summer resort for people from the muggy South Carolina coast area. Then, about 1880 it was discovered by wealthy sports loving New Yorkers and soon came to be a mecca for socialites.

So far there has been no exodus of the winter folk. Such well-known racing stables as Greentree and Brookmeade have winter quarters here and plan to continue them as do other stables and trainers.

Thanksgiving

IN many a Canadian home where there is a young lad safely back today after a year's hard service in Korea there will be a deep and abiding gratitude to Providence for that most fundamental of all gifts—life. How casually we accept it, how bitterly at times we complain over it and yet how truly precious it is! These lads have faced much in defense of the freedom we and others enjoy. They have been hostages for our freedom in this, a fighting world. Yet, without that freedom life itself would not mean much, merely the existence day to day of a serf. Man may make wars but only God can end them, and bind up the hurts of a world that has strayed over-far from His teaching.

Beyond the gift of life and our defended freedom there is much to be thankful for in this land, not to man but to God. The harvest that follows the sowing, the recovery that follows ill health, the years which bring wisdom, peace in the sunset—how good in turn they can be. Not all men have the same vision but for each there can be the same opportunity, use it how he may. It is a rich land with room in it for everyone to prosper, and to grow in stature as the Lord intended. There should be no room in Canada for meanness of spirit, for breach of trust, for failure of a vision designed to enrich mankind and lift men up. As a nation we covet nothing, bear ill will towards none. We should be grateful not only on this day but also on every day for the work that has been placed in our hands to do. Men may change, but that will never cease. There will always be work to do in Canada so long as there are men to do it.

In a more personal sense, most individuals have cause to be thankful for this land, with its generous bounty. Freedom of worship, freedom to come and go, to think, to do, to grow—these are not little things. They are worth fighting for, if fight it must be. And yet the hope persists that the clouds of the day will be rolled away, and that all men everywhere may share and enjoy the same blessings. We are too close to the days we live in to understand fully the enormous challenge of our times. Man was not promised a soft ride through life, but a struggle; not a passage with the current, but a long, hard pull up against the stream. It is there the muscles grow. Not suddenly, but slowly and with every painful effort progresses the human family. One can agree with Robert Browning that "man is not man, as yet," and still believe that one day he shall be by reason of God's promise, by virtue of man's faith.

Subsidizing the Crown

THE Toronto Telegram in a recent editorial drew attention to a policy formulated by the Dominion government which, if allowed to become general throughout Canada, could have serious consequences for municipal governments. The Telegram states that the federal government, not content with a formula which deprives most municipalities of grants in lieu of taxes on Crown property, has adopted a device which exempts privately-owned companies engaged on government contracts from local taxation.

"In Scarborough Township," the Toronto paper states, "two government-sponsored but private firms working on defense production have been classified as Crown properties, thereby freeing them from the payment of local taxes. Although Trade and Commerce Minister Howe has indicated that the township will receive a lump sum in lieu of taxes on these properties, previous experience suggests that if Scarborough receives more than 50 per cent of normal taxes it will be a surprising departure from the government's usual practice."

Far more serious than any inequity in the degree of compensation which the Dominion government might arbitrarily fix is the principle itself. This could be the thin end of the wedge. If the policy of exempting private firms holding contracts for defense production were extended to all companies doing work for the federal government, the resultant loss of revenue to struggling municipal governments could mean near-disaster. As The Telegram has pointed out, the few grants-in-lieu which the Dominion has made in respect of federal establishments which do literally belong to the Crown have not even begun to approach the tax assessments which otherwise would apply. The chronic disability of Esquimalt is an outstanding example of that. It and other municipalities containing Crown properties already are subsidizing the Dominion government at heavy cost to their own taxpayers. There is no reason why any municipality should be required to subsidize a private company merely because it happens to be doing work for the Dominion, whether for defense or anything else.

A Befitting Gesture

SOME recompense will accrue to Hong Kong veterans and others who suffered ill treatment at the hands of the Japanese in the award announced by the government of a dollar for every day spent as a prisoner of war. The compensation will not erase the memory of a dreadful experience but it may help to offset in some instances the impairment of health and earning power that resulted from this enforced wartime ordeal.

Those Victorians who noted the ravages imprinted on the Hong Kong troops who were rehabilitated in this city following their liberation will appreciate the justice of the award. There is also the satisfactory irony that the maltreatment bonus will be paid out of the fund built up of seized Japanese and German assets and reparations. This money could not be put to more appropriate use.

So far the announcement refers only to awards actually granted, but other claims will be invited and decided upon. Civilians suffering losses caused by enemy action, such as the sinking of the Athenia, will be eligible to apply, and the question of Canadian servicemen in German P.O.W. camps who received undue maltreatment will also come under review. The German record in this respect does not seem so bad as the Japanese record, but here too there will be cases deserving a recompense that is overdue.

The list of claims is thus likely to reach a tidy length and in total the amounts involved will be fairly large. Since these former enemy countries are footing the bill, however, government officials need not split too many hairs in making the awards. There will be little excuse for the over-meticulous attitude that has so often in the past affected federal authorities when dealing with claims of war veterans.

STICKS TO CLAIM

Sir,—With regard to Mr. Martin's statement that I was incorrect in stating that the Social Credit hospital insurance plan is ruining small hospitals, may I suggest that Mr. Martin contact the administrators of these hospitals and get their opinion as I have done.

FRANK SNOWSELL, M.L.A.,

ANOTHER VIEW

Sir,—May I comment on A. H. Jukes' article on Major Douglas and the so-called "lack of purchasing power." The lack of purchasing power is due to the great improvement in the instruments of production, coupled with the fact that labor power is a commodity which sells at its value, with the continual increase in the application of science, and new discoveries in industry, results in the production of commodities outrunning the effective demand for and consumption of these products. Which proves it is the system of private ownership of wealth production which is the basic cause of overproduction, and not any shortage of currency as the Douglasites would have us believe.

Numerous other fallacies have been put forward in the past. Some advocate abolition of the gold standard, others inflation of the currency. Another well-known remedy offered was bimetallism or the double standard of gold and silver, which we were assured would bring about stability.

The Douglasites regard trade unions and their actions as a sheer waste of time. On the political side they claim its of no use gaining control of the state. How then do they ever expect to be able to form a government?

While capitalism lasts the tendency is for further improvements in the means of production, with these improvements proceeding faster than the growth in markets. The results are that the markets are filled in a shorter time than before, with unemployment spreading faster and farther as a consequence. There is no escape from this position, nor any solution of the problem while the private ownership of materials and instruments of production remains.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT

Sir,—With regard to the recent decision to send the Gosley Smile Show to Korea, I would suggest that any controversy as to which Victoria group is more fitted to entertain our troops over there, is just not the right way to show our appreciation of the fine work done in this city by all of the many talented artists connected with the three groups concerned.

The Gosley Smile Show, the Red Triangle Group, and the Homeowners deserve all the praise that the public can give them for their continuous high-class entertainment always readily provided at no cost for the servicemen, hospitals and other charitable projects.

I attended one of the many free shows put on by the Red Triangle Group, last night, and I feel that the 500 people who stayed through those three hours, will agree with me that the entertainment was of the highest calibre, and that the more than twenty artists taking part would be quite capable of gladdening the hearts of the boys in Korea.

Let us be appreciative of the fine talent we have in this city, talent so freely given for worthy causes and let's wish Jerry Gosley and the members with him, a safe and pleasant trip.

Let's also hope that the war over there will end abruptly, but if it should continue, then it would appear quite possible that our other two groups may yet be given the chance to do their stuff in Korea.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

HARRY Lauder didn't know it at the time but once a wee Newton Mearns laddie brushed the great minstrel's arm with his coat sleeve and then kept the coat unworn for years!

It was a talisman, and now the laddie is the Alec Finlay who had us in stitches at the Royal Theatre last week. He's still wee, begging his pardon. As pawky Glaswegian pianist Jimmy Burns said of someone else, he's scarce the size of two lum hats—but what a comedian!

Funny thing too. He got his start at a Band of Hope soiree. Someone secretly put his name down for a song and when he was called on his nine-year-old knees were petrified. But he was a true Lauder fan, so he inflated his chest and rolled out "Roamin in the Gloamin'" with a vim that, I feel sure, brought down the house.

After which he stuck to his knitting as a marine apprentice, with periodic semi-pro appearances as a pocket Lauder. When his time was out at Weir's, he made the great decision. An engineer or a comedian—which should it be?

His choice was inevitable, and today he's Lauder's successor. Not his imitator. His style, sketches and singing are exclusively his own, but he venerates the great Sir Harry, whom he came to know well.

* * *

This I learned after Wednesday night's show, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Marre where the Finlay troupe were sumptuously entertained. And what a pleasing unaffected group of artists they were, apparently untired too, by the three-hour program they had just presented.

For instance, Jimmy Burns sat down at once at the piano and Kilsyth-born Willie Starr took out his magic $900 accordion. It never leaves his hands—and they were still playing at three in the morning! The Starr boy eats, sleeps and dreams accordion. He knows about 4,000 tunes, by the way.

Nor is he as sedate as he looks on the stage. In truth he's as merry as a gig and as you know he's a wizard at jigs. He didn't play many jigs, though. Instead, he held us enthralled with "Poet and Peasant Overture," "Hungarian Rhapsody," Italian airs and the like. These Scots artists are not hidebound in Scottish music. That is why Frances Derry sang "Bless This House" and Margaret Smart played "The Hot Canary" during their appearance here.

In fact Alec Finlay told me that next year they may widen their repertoire for the benefit of the non-Scots in Canadian audiences, which they can do with ease. Miss Smart, speaking in a whisper of course, confided that she gets a bit bored playing so many Scots pieces—and even though there's heather in my own heart I don't blame her.

She is from Glasgow too although her voice doesn't say so. Alec Finlay has an eye for the lassies, that's evident. His own wife, who came here two years ago as M.C. of the concert party, is a bouyant and lovely person, and so are those virtuosos the Smart and Derry girls.

Frances Derry, she's an Irish colleen, is toying with an idea these days. Her husband is a naval instructor at Plymouth but will soon be a civilian again and she's wondering if they should take the plunge and come out to Canada to live. She would try some radio work, etc., I daresay, but her heart's now with a nine-month-old baby and the creation of a permanent home.

I didn't meet the young tenor George Cormack, who had retired to his hotel room with a cold. He wore a red beret at Arnheim not so long ago and while here wore the mantle of Robert Wilson right worthily.

Billy Dick, the Perth comic who announced the Finlay show, was well to the fore, however as an M.C. should be and proved to be as good-looking as he is good-humored. He is booked for the traditional Glasgow Alhambra Christmas pantomime this year, in which Alec Finlay will star and Frances Derry be the principal girl. Pianist Burns will also lend the Alhambra his talents. Now if that pantomime could only be transferred to Victoria!

All of them spoke warmly of the grand time they are having in Canada, but I got the notion they're counting the days to the welcome home that Wee Alec sings about, the one that's waiting for them as they sail up the Clyde.

Britain's Doubly Explosive Bomb

BY MICHAEL AMRINE

From Washington

THEIR made-in-England atomic bomb and the fact that the British are under no obligation to tell us anything about it, is the most significant development in Anglo-American relations since the end of the war.

The jubilant headlines in London claim "Bomb Makes Britain First-Class Power Again." Informed sources here say that there can be no doubt Britain once again will offer to exchange atomic information with us—but on far different terms from those of the exchange in recent years. Six years ago the U.S. passed the McMahon Act which, in one swift stroke made it illegal for us to carry on an information arrangement which had been solemnly pledged by Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt at Quebec in 1943. Now the law must be changed, if we are to be partners again, and it is almost a certainty that it will be changed.

It may even be that the shrewd Churchill, a hard bargainer, will not initiate overtures to restore the partnership which built the first bombs, for none knows better than he that our present policy of secrecy has been one of our most momentous failures. He can wait for us to ask.

Our secrecy policy has so arranged itself that our worst enemies obtained atomic bombs while our best friends did not, but the Russian bombs did not teach us our lesson, and our policy went still farther. We are now at the point where our friends have made their own bombs, and for this they owe us nothing. They did the job by themselves.

If the art of diplomacy be defined simply as managing your foreign affairs so that you help your friends and hinder your enemies, U.S. secrecy and a series of decisions by accident and default can be seen as diplomatic masterpieces. They may be studied in textbooks of the future as masterpieces, masterpieces of vanity, shortsighted nationalism and ordinary stupidity.

* * *

Before examining the historic events that led the U.S. to this pass one should understand that the British bomb may or may not be an important advance in bomb making. The accounts of observers who are trying to tell from miles away whether this is an "ordinary" bomb or not are simply nonsense.

A "Z-shaped cloud," for example, means only that the mushroom has extended through several layers of atmosphere in which winds go different directions. Since an atomic mushroom may be 10 miles high this is not extraordinary and we have had some Z-shaped atomic clouds ourselves.

It might almost be said that the most important thing about the British bomb is that we cannot know whether it is important or not. It might be a successful step toward the hydrogen bomb. It might be a dud. It might be something they have considered and thought to be impossible.

Our theory for years has been that other countries could teach us little about the atom, although our original bomb project was deeply indebted to the German Albert Einstein, the Italian Enrico Fermi, the Hungarian Szilard, the Dane Nils Bohr, and to Britishers too numerous to mention—Sir James Chadwick, Dr. William G. Penney, Rudolf Ernst Peierls, etc.

* * *

To Europe and Asia, British atomic bombs mean that a certain thunderous conversation has changed from a two-way threat to a three-way discussion. The first effect of this cannot but be to give hope that there is a better chance for reason to prevail and an atomic war be avoided. Obviously there will be other atomic powers to join in within the next few years.

The British bomb also definitely raises the possibilities of some sharper competition in peaceful uses of this energy. The British already have scooped the world by being first to use atomic power for heating.

They might have the first atomic power for transport. It might be that in appealing to power-hungry Asia in the next few years, we will find Russia, Britain, and the United States competing in giving away atomic information!

Asia is not impressed favorably with our bombs, but she does look to the west for the industrialization which can help her organize her vast resources. Russian propagandists already makes much of her claim that only the state can develop atomic power for the good of the people.

Whether we will deal ourselves into this game is problematical, for so far we have been hidebound by our own censorship.

In many respects the early British atomic development was ahead of ours, and few would contest that Lord Rutherford's Cavendish laboratory for 20 years was the greatest physics laboratory the world ever has seen.

* * *

We went into the atomic project as full partners and Churchill and Roosevelt agreed that the production plants for the bomb would be built in America only because we were more remote from bombing and had certain industrial resources Britain could not match.

This was an agreement sealed at Quebec, and, incidentally, never made public in its details. It was one of several important agreements amounting almost to treaties which Roosevelt made and did not "clear" with the Senate.

Perhaps he could not clear an atomic agreement, which of its very nature, must be secret. Years later Senator Arthur Vandenberg, a leader in bi-partisan foreign policy, was incensed to learn that there had been such an agreement, unknown to him even as a member of the joint committee on atomic energy.

At one point after the war the late Senator Brien McMahon, chairman of the joint committee, tried to get a copy of the agreement but Lieut.-Gen. Leslie R. Groves refused to permit the senators to see it! They wrote a law in ignorance of it, a law which terminated a solemn pledge between allies on the most important weapon in the world.

This has been a thorn in Churchill's side ever since, and though we have a new arrangement on which we regularly exchange secret information, not a word of weapons developed goes back and forth.

The bombs add to the power of the free world, and their echoes are heard by millions even inside the Iron Curtain. If their effect is to bring Britain and America closer together that may be far more important than their power to destroy.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

HUMAN vision is too wide in focus to be much use in seeing objects far off. Probably we should not complain. Maybe we do not see as sharply as a hawk or as unerringly as a trout in a boiling rapids. But we have been blessed with a fairly nice range of vision. We can look at a lovely autumn landscape five miles wide, and then, thread a needle without more than an instant's delay. We will never know whether a bird or a deer enjoys the October colors more or less than we do. But we should be happy about our eyes.

It is that breadth, that width of vision that provides its own shortcomings. When we sharpen our gaze down upon some one object in the distance, say a canoe across a lake a mile wide, too much else gets into the view. Our efforts to pinpoint the eyes on the distant object are baffled by the light reflected from other objects several degrees on either side of the focussed point. When we put binoculars to our eyes, they perform two services: they not only magnify, but they shut out a great deal of the surrounding reflective area.

There is a trick that comes in very handy at this season of the year when we are particularly inclined to look with pleasure at the world around us. You will see sailors and ship's officers employing it all the time, and backwoodsmen know it well. It is merely to pretend you have binoculars to your eyes and cup your two hands around your eyes as you would if you were holding field glasses. There is no magnification, but the cutting out of the greater part of the normal arc of vision enables the eyes to focus far more clearly on the area centred.

Artists and theatre people use this trick in order to frame off a picture they are seeking. For the rest of us it is a useful little thing to know, now that the glory of October is at its height and a thousand pictures are hung for us even 10 miles outside town.

Victoria in Beard and Crinoline

From Files of The Daily British Colonist of October, 1863

By G. E. MORTIMORE

A SHORN lamb uttered his cry of distress in print through The Daily British Colonist. The correspondent who called himself "A Victim of Colonial Humbug" described in some detail how he had been fleeced.

"As a new chum with an astounding plenitude of dollars (i.e., for Vancouver Island without any connection with the Hudson's Bay Company) I was welcomed by the mercantile classes as a remarkably shrewd fellow.

"I learned, with much satisfaction, that the amount of mineral wealth in the interior was inexhaustible. Upon the recommendations of an eminent commercial firm in Wharf Street I purchased shares in the Bungalow Aeroxiated Mining Co.

"Being of a sanguine and convivial temperament, I was rapidly initiated into the mysteries of the financial and managerial department. I found that a strict adherence to truth was not an indispensable qualification in the discharge of directional duties, and although my capacity for astonishment had been somewhat stretched beyond orthodox limits, its elasticity was hardly equal to the occasion."

(The man meant that he was an optimist and was surprised to find that some businessmen were liars.)

"However, I was seduced into this luminous social swim, out of which I was to emerge with a fabulous fortune; but strange to say, I came up in an ignominious condition in the Bankruptcy Court, from whence a legal philanthropist restored me in a pauperized state to a very small circle of sympathizing friends who in a spirit of cheerful condolence suggested that as yet I had not acquired the requisite 'smartness' for the Pacific Coast."

(The man meant that instead of making his fortune, he went broke, ended in Bankruptcy Court, and with a lawyer's aid got out minus money. His friends told him to smarten up.)

"I set about solving this problem of smartness, and it dawned upon my feeble intellect that this precious mental endowment was remotely related to swindling eccentricities."

Smart businessmen preyed on workers, the long-winded victim said. "There is no doubt from their punctual attendance at church, and happy disposition for convenient flukes of billiards that they are substantial and eminently respectable citizens."

However, the victim added in a paragraph about a foot long, those respectable men were as crooked as Bill Sykes, the burglar. In this case he was probably right, even though he could have made his point with one-quarter as many words.

Modern Push-Button Warfare Age Ushered In With New Wonders Daily

MILITARY ACTIVITIES

BY ROY PARKETT

The curtain is going up on the age of push-button warfare. Almost daily, new wonder weapons, designed largely to eliminate the human operator, are unveiled. Their use will affect all of us, [illegible]

The United States Air Force has been using radio-controlled "block-buster" bombs in Korea for over a year. The army has employed self-tracking anti-aircraft guns which operate almost automatically, and British Centurian tanks which have a turret controlled by a gyroscope so that its guns can fire accurately while moving over the roughest country.

The French have a new tank, too. It has been built with machine tools supplied by the Mutual Security Administration of the United States. It is a 13-ton, eight-wheeled armored car mounting a 75mm gun. It can travel 70 miles per hour.

A surprising feature of the car is its instant reverse lever which can send it off in the opposite direction without the need to turn around. Two drivers, seated back to back are provided for the new armored car.

The U.S. Navy has announced the launching of its first true guided missile warship. More are under construction. Several existing warships, including the battleship Missouri, are capable of launching missiles. Submarines like the U.S.S. Carbonero, have been fitted to handle guided missiles. The one shown leaving the submarine's deck is the navy's "Loon," a surface-to-surface missile, developed from the German V-1 flying bomb.

The weapons which have been unveiled to the public are obviously not our newest or best weapons. It is doubtful is any really "secret" weapons have been used in Korea. No nation would play its trumps unless a really decisive blow could be struck. And it is becoming evident that no super weapon will win any war at one stroke.

War is largely a matter of logistics. The nation with the capability of manufacturing huge quantities of material and of delivering it to the required place stands the best chance in any prolonged struggle. That is why push-button warfare is so important to the armies of the free world. We do have the facilities to produce potent new super-weapons in quantity and they will help to overcome our numerical inferiority.

If we can keep well ahead in the field of push-button warfare, we may well win the cold war, and avoid World War Three.

Lieut. Hugh Dunburn, Scottish musketry officer, announces that the unit's annual turkey shoot will begin as early as possible in November. All active members of the regiment, including cadets, are eligible for the competition.

Last year keen interest was shown and some 60 people competed in matches over a four-week period.

Two movies the Canadian Scottish have had on order for several months will be shown all ranks of the unit Monday, October 27. They are "Theirs Is the Glory," based on the battle of Arnhem and "Trooping the Color, 1951." The latter film shows the senior battalion Welch Guards, trooping the color on the late King George VI's birthday.

Oddities in the News

Clever's Trick Cleverest Trick

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 11 (AP)—The New York State Conclave of Magicians Friday awarded first prize for the best trick demonstrated to Edward Clever of New Cumberland, Pa.

A member of the audience picked a card and placed it in his pocket. Clever then rubbed the chalk between the slates.

On one slate appeared the message "the card is the seven of clubs." It was.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Oct. 11 (AP). A tall man leaned over the desk of Mrs. Doris Reesman, Chamber of Commerce assistant, Friday and asked softly:

"Do you have any nail polish?"

Mrs. Reesman, surprised but courteous, said she didn't think so.

The man thought for a second and then pulled a gun from his pocket.

"I'll check again," Mrs. Reesman said hastily. In a matter of seconds she found a bottle of the bright red stuff.

"Eliminates the glare," he explained quietly, then walked away.

New Surface Process Used at Comox Base

Pyrok is the new universal surfacing material and process in building to be used on the new R.C.A.F. buildings at Comox. It forms a stable, strongly adhering non-coroding coating that can be applied to practically all building materials. It has remarkable thermal, fire protection and anti-condensation properties, and it can be used inside or outside buildings.

plaster. Its peculiar properties give it its own special technical uses. These uses amount to a new trade in the building industry, a fact that has been officially recognized by the National Federation of Building Trades Operatives.

As a process Pyrok is the application and finishing, in one rapid operation, of a cementitious surfacing composition. The ingredients of the mix are Portland or other types of cement, exfoliated vermiculite, a lime plasticizer and water. Vermiculite is an inert micaceous material mined in South Africa, Kenya, U.S.A., Canada and other parts of the world, consisting principally of silica, alumina and magnesia.

The mix is applied through a special spray gun from a self-contained, portable mixing plant. The spray is continuous. A "prick-up" coat is first applied over the surface to be treated, after which thicknesses up to three and four inches can be built up in subsequent applications.

take its initial set before proceeding with the next. The normal plaster thickness of $\frac{1}{2}$ in $\frac{3}{4}$ inches, however, is sufficient for the majority of uses.

When the surface of Pyrok is left as it comes from the gun it has a texture somewhat resembling roughcast. A smooth finish can be given by impacting the surface when wet with special tools. Colors can be incorporated in the mix, an that the Pyrok coating is the same color throughout. It can be washed with water or with a steam jet. A special form of Pyrok can be obtained by adding a foaming agent to the mix.

B.C. Issues Revised Figures For Butter Output in August

Revised figures for August butter production in the province were issued yesterday by the department of agriculture.

Production during the month was 423,712 pounds, not 248,272 as previously reported.

During September production was 365,111 pounds, an increase of nearly 160 per cent over the same month one year ago. The total for 1952 to date now stands at 2,557,255 pounds compared with 2,063,517 during the same period last year.

Do Not Permit Colors To 'Fight' Each Other

In choosing room colors, start with the room's largest areas and work in the smaller. Select wall and floor colors first, then according to the type of color scheme to be used, pick harmonizing colors for draperies, upholstery and accessories.

Do not let colors "fight" each other by using them in the same proportions. Pick one color to dominate, then use lesser amounts of secondary ones. To test for proper proportions of two colors to be used together hold paint sample chips side by side, then cover up different areas of the minor color until satisfied with the color balance between them.

A room with only light and greyed colors is usually dull. On the other hand, a room in which the predominant color is pure, whether light or dark, is harsh and tiresome. That is why most paint is mixed down from the pure colors.

BASIS OF PLAN

The large areas of walls, ceiling and floor form the basis of any color plan. Generally these areas should be soft and greyed to provide a background which combines easily with stronger furnishing and accessory colors. A little pure, strong color will balance a large area of soft, greyed color. Occasional chairs, pictures and small accessories can be brilliant in color without destroying the unity of a color plan.

For your color plan, select colors that your family likes, making sure they are of the correct value and intensity. With 1,322 colors to choose from, Colorizer paints enable you to satisfy the most exacting color taste. Colorizer paint swatches will help you in matching or harmonizing paint shades with your floor, upholstery and wallpaper colors.

BOLD COLOR

Colorizer color consultant, Faber Birren, says one should forget rules like "blue and green should not be combined." Modern color usage is bold, different. By selecting from color samples, you discover many pleasing combinations.

Starting with beige floor covering, other major colors in the room might be red, aqua, leaf green. Combine spruce green with plum and peach, or with purple and beige, for a warm, intimate atmosphere. Tile red is dramatic in combination with plum, lime, ivory, sophisticated with white, black, emerald.

PLAIN AND FIGURED

It is easier to make the wall and curtain color harmonize with a rug than to match a rug to walls and curtains. If figured fabrics are used, one of the fabric colors should appear on the walls. You may have plain or figured curtains with plain walls, plain curtains are usually safest with a patterned wall.

Heavy Machine Operators Sign First Contract

VANCOUVER, Oct. 11 (CP)—The first agreement that establishes standard pay rates and conditions for heavy equipment operators in British Columbia was signed at Vancouver today.

About 1,400 workers on major construction projects throughout the province are affected by the agreement between the Union of Operating Engineers (T.L.C.) and the Road Builders and Heavy Construction Association. The contract affects men who run shovels, cranes, "cats" and such heavy equipment in industrial work.

Al Scott, union business agent, said wage differentials that existed in past years between the interior and the coast, and between equipment operators in road building and in heavy construction work have been wiped out.

He said the contract provides wage increases ranging from 20 to 50 cents an hour, retroactive to September 2, fixed maximum board rate of $2 a day, and a union shop.

The three-year agreement is dated from January 1, 1952, with a wage reopening clause each year.

Sample rates under the contract give shovel, crane and derrick operators $2.35 an hour, heavy duty mechanics and welders $2.10 an hour, cat operators $2.20 an hour, oiler, firemen and mechanics' helpers $1.82 an hour.

Stigma on Pacific Great Eastern Shortly To Lose One-Half Its Sting

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

This is the engine which has pulled the P.G.E. out of the red and into the black The No. 552 series diesels, according to General Manager J. A. Kennedy, have reduced operating costs from 59.7 cents to 21.7 cents per mile.

The stigma attached to the Pacific Great Eastern, that it is the railway that starts nowhere and ends nowhere, is just about to lose one half of its sting

When the inaugural train in [illegible] line's extension from Quesnel (the present terminus) to Prince George, it will really end somewhere.

The "somewhere" will be a connection with the Canadian National's main line from Prince Rupert to Eastern Canada

So far so good But it doesn't alter the fact that the Pacific Great Eastern still has a most unsatisfactory southern terminal at Squamish

Here the railway runs down to the sea, and for its further linking with Vancouver and the big railways of Canada and the United States, it has to depend upon the tides and the slow antiquated system of tug and barge transport over the last 38 miles to Vancouver.

If the railway is to develop here is bottleneck No 1 The amount the barges can handle is already nearing the present volume of business

The obvious although not unanimously accepted remedy is to carry the railway line from Squamish to North Vancouver, where it would link with the National Harbor Board's system that is to be taken over shortly by the Canadian National Railway

The cost of laying this line is reckoned to be about $10,000,000 and the Social Credit government has already indicated that it will attempt to carry the necessary legislation for the line through next spring's assembly

Similar promises were made by the recent Coalition government but they died with nothing being done Indeed the Liberals went into the last general election advocating a highway, rather than a rail extension from Squamish to Vancouver Whether this had anything to do with their subsequent defeat is a matter outside the scope of this column

The new government will have to try to convince the Legislature that the extra $10,000,000 required for the job is going to be a good investment.

Many say the government should not be in the railroading business at all and probably that is perfectly correct However the facts are that the P.G.E. is government owned and will remain so until such time as it is either leased or sold to another railway or closed down altogether

With the extension of the line from Quesnel to Prince George just completed the argument that the railway should be written off as a bad debt is unthinkable

The question of selling or leasing the P.G.E. to another railway can best be done by making the line a successful and profit making operation

Many experts including the general manager, Jack Kennedy think that this can best be done by building the line between Squamish and North Vancouver

MOVED OUT OF RED

In 1951 the P.G.E. moved out of the red for the first time when it squeezed out an operating profit of $128,565 against losses that in the two previous years had averaged $500,000

This year Mr Kennedy forecasts that the operating profit will be bigger—he reckons it may come to $250,000

The swing over to a profit making basis is due to two chief causes

(a) increased business

(b) lowering of costs

Mr Kennedy a veteran railroader who joined the P.G.E. four years ago on his retirement as superintendent of the E & N division of the C.P.R. says that the business coming the P.G.E. was is bound to increase with the growth of industry and population in the north and central interior

The second reason which is giving the P.G.E. a brighter outlook has been the introduction of Diesel engines on the system Only four old steamers remain and these are used only for relief duties, except one which is used in the switch-yards.

Diesels are the "answer to the railroad man's dreams" according to Mr Kennedy

On the P.G.E. they have cut the operating costs from 59.7 cents per mile to 21.7 cents.

Just what this meant to the railway can be judged by the figures for 1950 and 1951 In 1950 gross revenue was $2,004,151 and operating expenses $2,123,055 while in 1951 when the line was Dieselized gross revenue was $2,566,224, while operating costs remained almost unchanged at $2,437,659.

In other words, thanks to the Diesels business increased by 27.6 per cent while operating costs went up only 6 per cent

It is because of this favorable turn of events that Mr Kennedy considers that the expenditure of another $10,000,000 on the 38 mile line between Squamish and North Vancouver is justified

He believes that with the line completed the P.G.E. annual profit would immediately soar to $1,000,000

Last September the P.G.E. achieved an all-time record of shipping 2,005 cars by barge between Squamish and Vancouver. The average for the year is also at an all time high of 1,485 per month.

"We have just about reached the limit of what we can handle by this barge method," said Mr. Kennedy He pointed out that in busy months, the company's own barges and tugs were not able to cope with the traffic, and tugs and barges from other companies had to be used, costing $150 per round trip

If this rate of business is going to be maintained Mr Kennedy says that if Squamish is to remain the southern terminal a sum of $3,000,000 will sooner or later have to be spent

New slip at Squamish, $100,000, new slip at Vancouver $600,000; three new tugs, $1,000,000, four new barges, $1,000,000

Assuming that the traffic continues at 20,000 cars a year, Mr Kennedy figures it out that the P.G.E. would save $283,100 annually if instead of modernizing its barge transportation it spent the $10,000,000 on the new railroad

This is how he reached his conclusion:

Cost of Handling 20,000 Cars By Barge:

$90,000 Interest on new marine equipment

$200,000 Yearly depreciation on new equipment

$12,000—Harbor dues.

$75,000 Saving in per diem charges (15,000 cars at $5.00 per car

$230,000 Cost of handling 20,000 cars by barge at $11.50 per car

$2,100 Mail carrying charges paid to Union Steamships Limited

$20,000 Express carrying charges paid to Union Steamships Limited

Total Cost By Barge—$723,100

Cost of Handling 20,000 Cars By Rail.

On the basis of using the 552 class of diesel locomotive handling 1,200 tons, and 30 tons per car This would handle 40 cars per train Average cost per car to handle $7.00

$140,000 20,000 cars at $7.00 per car

$300,000 Interest on $10,000,000 investment required to build railway into North Vancouver

Total Cost By Rail—$440,000

The figures are impressive But the possibilities exist of even bigger savings and greater revenue as a result of a rail extension to North Vancouver

Under the present slow system in which rail cars are often held up two or three days at Squamish awaiting barges the turn around of P.G.E. rail cars is so slow that each does only one-and a half trips per month With the rail to Vancouver the number of trips would be doubled to about three or three-and a half per month.

J A Kennedy, manager of the P.G.E. says "extension from Squamish to North Vancouver is entirely justifiable"

"This would reduce the number of cars required and avoid excessive car renting from other railways" said Mr Kennedy.

PROMISE OF BUSINESS

More business would also accrue The P.G.E. manager says that Britannia Mines, 12 miles from Squamish, would guarantee the railway 105 cars of ore per month for shipment to the United States

"We would put in a station at Britannia to collect this traffic," said Mr Kennedy

Other business might also come from the pulp mill at Woodfibre and other logging operations around Howe Sound.

BOON TO TOURISTS

But from a popular point of view the greatest advantage the P.G.E. would gain from starting at North Vancouver would be the additional tourist attraction.

The daily passenger train leaves Squamish every afternoon between 1 and 3 p.m. It cannot leave before as it has to await the arrival of the Union Steamship from Vancouver.

The result is that the most scenic part of the route north is undertaken during the hours of darkness. And as the southbound train also has to connect with the same Union Steamship the same territory is traversed overnight on the return journey

"Even in the summer time more than half the journey to Quesnel is undertaken at night During other parts of the year less than a third of the mileage is undertaken in hours of daylight" declares Mr Kennedy

If the train terminal was North Vancouver the train could leave at eight in the morning, and all the most spectacular scenery would be seen in daylight on the first day

WOULD SPEED SERVICE

Another argument is that if the train started at North Vancouver it would give that city its fastest link outside of the airways to Prince George Using Squamish the railway cannot compete with the 17 hours bus schedule between Vancouver and Prince George

When the matter comes up before the Legislature next spring there will be the usual objectors. Among those with valid feelings of annoyance are the West Vancouver property holders, who naturally dislike the idea of the railway running through their back gardens

However the P.G.E. has an existing right of way. For over 10 years it ran trams between North Vancouver and Horseshoe Bay. The rails were removed as an economy when three of the trestle bridges were declared dangerous, but the railway never gave up its rights or its hopes that one day it would establish a connection with Squamish.

THE MINISTER KNOWS

One of the strong points in favor of the P.G.E. extension is that the B.C. government now has a man who knows the railway intimately as a member of the cabinet.

Ralph Chetwynd, minister of railways, among his other portfolios, is a former employee of the P.G.E. and a staunch believer in its future.

Mr. Chetwynd is not abashed by the fact that on the books the P.G.E. has a capital of $167,000,000 "It is a misleading state of affairs," he points out

Actually the bonds outstanding against the railway are comparatively small and the huge capitalization has been caused by the addition of unpaid interest and the absorption of losses throughout the years

"If we were to recognize the capitalization of the railway and bring it down to a reasonable level I am convinced that by linking it with Vancouver it would soon make itself capable of meeting interest charges and standing on its own feet," said Mr. Chetwynd

Transport Board Approves Line

OTTAWA, Oct. 11 (CP) Construction of the first pipeline to carry Alberta natural gas into a Canadian market outside that province was authorized Saturday by the Board of Transport Commissioners

The authorization hurdled one of the last two major obstacles to a $111,000,000 network that [illegible] Peace River field to the Vancouver area and the United States Northwest.

Still confronting the Westcoast Transmission Company which got the board's go-ahead here is the U.S. Federal Power Commission, whose decision will determine whether the company gets into the rich U.S. market needed to make the 860-mile pipe line pay its way.

The F.P.C. is expected to decide shortly on whether Westcoast can pipe Canadian fuel into Washington and Oregon, and Saturday's transport board decision indicating enough Peace River reserves to meet market requirements for 25 years or more may have some bearing on its decision.

SURVEY BASIS

A federal survey of the Peace River reserves in the last four months was the basis of the board's order wiping off the last Canadian block in the way of the Calgary Company

Last June, after the Alberta and British Columbia governments had given approval to the project, the board gave it a conditional authorization, subject to reserves being found adequate to serve the markets.

The board said Saturday the survey made by mines department experts showed "proven and probable" reserves of 2,506,000,000,000 cubic feet in the Peace River district athwart the Alberta British Columbia border in the north of these 1,585,000,000,000 were in B.C. and 921,000,000,000 in Alberta

The board estimated that 75 per cent of the underground gas should be recoverable commercially.

In evidence before the board, Westcoast officials had said they would need 300,000,000 cubic feet for the first five years and 1,040,000,000,000 for the next 15 years.

Westcoast's permit from the [illegible] Board allows it to take 210,000,000,000 cubic feet from Peace River in the first five years, but the transport board judgment included a letter from Attorney General Maynard of Alberta saying that was a minimum initial allotment.

Big Job Nearly Done

WINNIPEG Oct 10 (CP) Light snow and rain in Manitoba and scattered showers in parts of Alberta delayed completion of the Prairie harvest last week, but generally the big job is nearly done the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways said today in their weekly crop reports.

In Manitoba, only a small percentage of the crop remains to be harvested In Saskatchewan, reports say that 95 per cent of the wheat is cut and 87 per cent threshed.

Next games, today: Montreal at Boston, Toronto at Detroit, New York at Chicago; Tuesday, Detroit at Chicago.

Chicago Black Hawks, perennial cellar-dwellers of the National Hockey League, are not running true to form.

The revitalized Hawks, with former Toronto Maple Leaf players taking the leading roles, scored their second straight victory of the new season last night to take sole possession of first place.

The Hawks smothered Toronto, 6-2, last night to spoil the 1952-53 schedule opener at Maple Leaf Gardens for 13,811 fans.

Billy Reay's goal at 16.07 of the last period gave Montreal Canadiens a 2-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings in the other game last night.

SMYTHE EMBARRASSED

Last night was the night that president and general manager Conn Smythe of the Leafs faced off the puck to start his 26th year as mastermind of the blue and whites. He should have stayed at home.

The Hawks went ahead 2-0 in the first period, held a 3-2 edge at the end of the second and then breezed home to an easy victory.

FANS RIDE LUMLEY

Chicago received verbal support from the fans who gave Leaf goalkeeper Harry Lumley a ride most of the night as he whiffed on a couple of goals that should never have got past him. And they cheered Al Rollins, Hawk goaler who went to the Windy City in the four-for-one trade for Lumley in the pre-season deal.

Cal Gardner, a former Leaf who starred in Chicago's opening 3-2 victory over Canadiens at Montreal Thursday, received assists on two goals and notched one himself. Other Chicago goal getters were Al Dewsbury, Gus Bodnar, Fred Glover, Jim McFadden and Lee Fogolin. Rudy Migay and Sid Smith tallied for Toronto.

The Montreal-Detroit game had touches of the Stanley Cup final between the two teams last spring. The teams cut a dizzy pace through the first period and scarcely slackened in the second, but they became more careful in the final frame.

Elmer Lach scored for Canadiens at 4.39 of the second period on passes from Bert Olmstead and Maurice Richard and Alex Delvecchio evened it up five minutes later with a backhand shot on Metro Prystai's pass.

Reay's tie-breaking goal was a heart-breaker for the Red Wings. His passout from the backboards went into a goalmouth scramble of players and goalie Terry Sawchuk inadvertently kicked the puck into the net.

Unexpected Harbor Catch

Unexpected sport was provided for James Larson (left) and Len Duncan yesterday when they hooked 18-pound steelhead while fishing off Brochie Ledge. Larson hooked fish but turned it over to Duncan to play. After half-hour battle he brought it to boat when fish broke hook. Larson made dive for fish and was able to gaff it.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Next game, today: Esquimalt vs. Heaneys, Royal Athletic Park, 2.30 p.m.

The secret of winning in the Victoria and District Football Association is still a mystery to Victoria West.

The Greenshirts battled to a 4-4 draw with league-leading Legion yesterday afternoon at Royal Athletic Park. It was their third straight tie of the new season.

Victories seem to be hard to come by this season. Decisions have been reached in only three of the seven games played so far.

The tie stretched Legion's lead to two points and enabled Wests to move into second-place deadlock with Civil Service.

INDICATIVE OF PLAY

The score was a good indication of the play. Wests held a decided edge in the first half as the teams shared six goals and Legion was in command during most of the second.

A penalty kick awarded in the first minute of play enabled John Weldon to put Legion into an early lead which Len Potter stretched to 2-0 at the 25-minute mark. Two minutes later George Brown scored Wests' first goal on an indirect free kick and then set up Whitey Turner to tie the score at 32 minutes. Ron Pearce of Legion and Harold Smethorst shared the other two first half goals.

Turner put Wests into the lead for the first time at 14 minutes of the second half on a pass from Brown but Arnold Vezza tied it again on a play with Jim Davison, Frank Lohner and Andy Anderson.

Esquimalt and Heaneys will meet in another league game this afternoon at 2.30 p.m.

Line-ups follow:

Victoria West: Norm Richards, John Rodger, Ron Woolcock, Lionel Speller, Ron Bland, Ed Williams, Harold Smethurst, Jim Turner, George Brown, Gordy Brown, Speller. Reserves: Joe Clarkson and Dick Watson.

Legion: John Moir, Dave Mein, Frank Lohner, Len Potter, John Weldon, Peter Vezza, Ken Boedino, Andy Anderson, Ron Pearce, Arnold Vezza, Jim Davison. Reserves, Billy Fields and Alec McCormick.

Wanderers Edge Bays With Final-Second Try

HOW THEY STAND

	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Wanderers	2	0	0	21	11	4
J B A A	1	1	0	22	18	2
Crusaders	1	1	0	14	12	2
Vikings	0	2	0	3	22	0

Next games: Saturday, J B A A vs. Crusaders; Wanderers vs. College, Macdonald Park.

J B A A's dressing room was a scene of general confusion yesterday. The players were huddled in small groups, muttering to themselves, wondering how they could possibly come so close to victory and yet walk off the field on the short end of the score.

Oak Bay Wanderers had pushed over the winning points in the last 10 seconds of the game to edge the Oarsmen, 12-11, and move to the top of the Victoria Rugby Union league.

In the other game on the lower pitch at Macdonald Park yesterday Crusaders rebounded from their opening defeat at the hands of the Wanderers to whip an improved Victoria College Viking crew, 11-3.

HEART-BREAKING LOSS

It was a heart-breaking loss for J B A A. Playing inspired ball, they had outplayed the Wanderers in the first half by a wide margin and held an 11-6 lead at the break. Then, in the final half, two injuries midway through the final session proved costly for the Oarsmen and Wanderers, quick to take advantage, scored two trys by Johnny Johnson to pull out what had seemed an almost hopeless victory.

Wanderers opened the scoring at the 10-minute mark when Johnson scored the first of his three trys. Fine work by James Bay forwards who were mainly responsible for smothering repeated Wanderer attempts to organize three-line runs, pushed the ball downfield and the Oarsmen were awarded a penalty kick.

BAYS MOVE AHEAD

Gary Pynn, who garnered eight of the losers' points, successfully converted to tie the score and the Bays went ahead, 8-3, on a try by Ed Bourke and convert by Pynn five minutes later.

Midway through the half, Pynn accounted for another three points to increase the margin to 11-3 before Dick Ellis, Wanderers playing-coach, replied with a penalty kick.

With play fairly even in the second half, Bob Brown and Don Smith were forced to leave the game through injuries and the Bays were left short-handed.

Midway through the final half, Johnson broke away at midfield and scored near the flag on a neat run. With time running out, and J B A A holding on desperately, Wanderers were awarded a penalty kick.

Ellis dropped the kick just inside the goal line and Johnson recovered the ball, fumbled it momentarily, and then fell on it for the winning points as the whistle blew to end the game.

STUDENTS UNLUCKY

College put up a good scrap against Crusaders, fielding a makeshift team, and was unlucky not to add to their three points.

Dave McKenzie scored all three Crusader trys and Derek Hyde-Lay converted the second. McKenzie scored twice in the first half, both on pretty runs, and added the final score late in the second half.

Line-ups follow:

Wanderers: Beebe, McIlveen, Cox, Ellis, Blythe, Miller, Kinnett, Johnson, Griffith, Terr, Mills, Jefferies, Bearde, Bell.

J B A A: Benson, Gatt, Pynn, Nicholson, L. Smith, O. Smith, Largeon, Millerd, J. Tagg, Shields, Bourke, Poole, Brown, Purves, Menzies, Barry.

Crusaders: McKenzie, Hyde-Lay, Shipley, Scott, Bridge, Ballard, Carina, Bisset, Ring, Yeomans, Morgan, Williams, Cox, Lander, Baker.

Alex Kaleta Captures Point Lead

Saskatoon's Alex Kaleta hasn't scored a goal in the Western Hockey League so far this season but that hasn't stopped him from taking first place in the individual scoring race.

Kaleta has passed for five goals to put him one point in front of five others — teammates Neil Strain and George Senick, Wingy Johnston of Tacoma, and George Pargeter and Ted Bailey of Seattle.

Colin Kilburn of Victoria is tied with seven others with three points. He has a goal and two assists.

Next games: Today — New Westminster at Seattle; tomorrow, Tacoma at Victoria; Tuesday, New Westminster at Vancouver, Edmonton at Calgary.

Saskatoon Quakers, play-off champions last season, stretched their Western Hockey League lead to three points last night by edging Calgary Stampeders, 4-3, at Calgary.

New Westminster Royals, league champions last season, made a successful 1952-53 debut by whipping Vancouver Canucks, 6-3, at New Westminster and Tacoma Rockets scored their first victory upsetting Seattle Bombers, 5-3, at Tacoma.

PLAN CHANGE

Cougars make their next start Monday afternoon when they meet Tacoma Rockets at Memorial Arena. Coach Eddie Dorohoy was undecided on his line-up last night but said he was considering moving Fiori Goegan up to a wing bearth on the third string.

Quakers kept their unbeaten record intact with the aid of an assist from referee Pat Morrison, who overruled the goal judge and awarded Quakers a goal at 10.55 of the second period.

A shot by Jack Evans appeared to hit the inside of the post and bounced out again. The red light did not flash but Morrison ruled that the puck had crossed the line and trickled out. Stampeders hotly disputed the decision.

Stampeders got away to an early lead when Roy Kelly took a pass from Max Quackenbush to beat goalie Bill Brennan after only 52 seconds of play.

STAMPS HAVE EDGE

Calgary outplayed the Quakers for two periods and held a 3-2 lead going into the final period. Neil Strain beat Stampeder goalie Phil Hughes to a loose puck in a scramble in front of the Calgary goal at 16.01 of the final period for the tying goal and Howie Milford notched the winner at the 18-minute mark on passes from George Senick and Chuck McCullough.

Centre Ken Ullyot scored a hat-trick to pace Royals to their victory. Ullyot scored twice within two minutes of the start of the final period to break a 2-2 deadlock and give Royals a lead they did not relinquish.

Royals looked impressive in their debut and held an edge throughout the fast, clean-cut game. Jerry Cahana, Ollie Dorohoy and Gord Fashoway scored the other Royal goals while Ian Mackintosh scored twice for Vancouver and Hickey added a singleton.

Bart Bradley, Dave Wall and Gordie Kerr scored in the first period to give Rockets a 3-0 lead over the Bombers. Seattle's John Bailey and Tacoma's Wayne Brown exchanged goals in the second period.

VANCOUVER 3, NEW WESTMINSTER 6

Defends Hillclimb Title

Knute Cameron, shown above on his Vincent H.R.D., will be seeking his third straight Vancouver Island championship during the annual Thanksgiving Day motorcycle hillclimb at Mount Douglas tomorrow afternoon at 1.30. Cameron is also holder of the Paul Girardeau Trophy. Cameron's strongest competition is expected to come from Vern Annr, who finished second last year, and Joe Hyde, who was third. Bob Harrison, winner of the B.C. title at Vancouver, will also be amongst other entries.

Royal Roads' three-year undefeated record in the Victoria Canadian Junior Football League was broken yesterday afternoon.

Vampires accomplished the feat by edging the Cadets, 6-5, before a large crowd at Heywood Avenue. The win moved them into sole ownership of first place, two points ahead of the Cadets.

Royal Roads, employing the same tactics they have used in the past three years, were in command in the first half when they took a 5-1 lead.

A strong forward line and several new tricky plays put Vampires in the driver's seat in the second half.

LOSERS LEAD

Cadet fullback Steve Oake put Royal Roads in front in the second quarter when he plunged over from the seven-yard line after Cadets had rung up a number of first downs. The conversion attempt was blocked.

Pete Ash scored Vampires' touchdown in the third quarter when he plunged over from the eight-yard line. The try for the extra point was blocked.

Later in the game Vampires worked their way to Cadets' five-yard line but the threat was eliminated by a penalty.

By the Canadian Press

Winnipeg Blue Bombers Saturday finished on top of the Western Interprovincial Football Union by thumping the tailend Saskatchewan Roughriders, 28-7, before a Winnipeg crowd of 9,600. Edmonton Eskimos dropped a 33-30 thriller to Calgary Stampeders at Edmonton to miss out on a chance to tie Winnipeg for first place.

The two important games formed only a small part of a crammed-full card of Thanksgiving week-end football across the country.

In the Eastern big four, Hamilton Tiger-Cats surged into first place by dumping Toronto Argonauts, 27-18, before a throng of 25,974 in Toronto's Varsity Stadium. In Ottawa's Lansdowne Park, the hometown Rough Riders trampled the winless Montreal Alouettes, 25-12.

In the intercollegiate circuit, Toronto Blues and Western Mustangs battled to a 7-7 draw before a sellout crowd of 12,000 at London while Queen's Golden Gaels defeated McGill Redmen, 20-7, in Montreal's Molson Stadium.

Sarnia Imperials continued to ride herd on the Ontario Rugby Football Union, defeating Brantford Redskins, 13-6, Saturday night. It was the eighth straight triumph for the Imps. The second-place Toronto Balmy Beaches swamped Windsor Royals, 41-7, before a slim crowd of 500 at Windsor.

A three-touchdown performance by Negro halfback Tom Casey was the mainspring of the Winnipeg victory. Casey now has 13 majors this season, a league record. One of his touchdowns came on a 95-yard runback of a pass interception.

Roughriders walloped the Bombers on the statistical side but most of their gains were between the 35-yard stripes and they faded badly when deep in Winnipeg territory.

Keith Pearce and Tommy Ford scored the Bombers' other touchdowns. Quarterback Indian Jack Jacobs converted three times and also passed for three of the majors.

Ken Charlton went over for Riders' only touchdown, converted by Del Wardien. The other Rider point came on a conceded rouge by Gerry James of Winnipeg on a kick by Butch Avinger.

Winnipeg led 17-1 after the first quarter and 17-7 at the half. Saskatchewan had 16 first downs to Bombers' six and outrushed the winners 60 yards to 21. Playing coach and quarterback Glen Hobbs completed 16 of 37 passes for 208 yards. Jacobs completed nine of 25 for 216 yards.

Calgary's victory before more than 13,000 fans kept alive its chances of finishing in second place. The teams meet again at Calgary Monday.

Bob Shaw, leading Conference scorer, led Stampeders to their triumph. Shaw scored 18 points on a touchdown, a field goal and five converts to boost his season total to 102.

Halfback Normie Kwong led Edmonton with two touchdowns and fullback Rod Pantages counted seven points on a touchdown and two singles. Halfbacks Jim Chambers and Ray Enright each scored a major and end Frank Anderson added three points on converts from placement.

Edmonton lost Chambers for three weeks when he suffered a dislocated shoulder early in the third quarter.

Calgary led 3-0 at the end of the first quarter, trailed 11-9 at the half and regained the lead, 21-19 at three-quarters.

Tiger-Cats overcame a 12-0 halftime deficit for their razzle-dazzle victory over the Argos. They drove for four converted touchdowns in the final half while holding the double blue to one major.

Ottawa led Montreal 13-0 at the end of the first quarter, enabling coach Clem Crowe to use his second string. Tom O'Malley threw three touchdown passes and Bill Stanton raced 88 yards on a pass interception for the Ottawa majors.

Windsor Park Class Proves Popular

Strengthened Merchants Threat for Hockey Honors

"The league is stronger but so are we," Jim Lackie, manager of Victoria Merchants of the Commercial Hockey League, said last night in regards to his club's chances in the four-team circuit this season.

Lackie was fully behind the move that dropped the six-team league, as it was last season, into the present four-team loop and he also added that "Doug Fletcher is the best president the association ever had."

Bill Jensen, clever forward will return as playing-coach, but is expected to see only utility duty.

LADING GOALIE

Merchants boast the top goalie in the league last season in stocky Ab Ellis, whose performance between the pipes drew a grumble from opposing forwards and a rousing cheer from the fans.

Defensively, Merchants will have a bruising set of rear guards with Al Arnold, Bill Reynolds and the colorful Rod Jensen returning from last season. Ab Wiebe, last season with the league leading 7-Ups, will play his hockey under the colors of Merchants and Maurice Clark from Kamloops will be trying for a starting berth.

Merchants will have one of the strongest down-the-centre teams in the league. Ken Gurter, always a goal producer, and Ab Taylor will return along with Ron Bremner, who was with 7-Ups last year.

Rudy Pisko, Con McBeth and Norm LaCree are expected to be consistant scorers on the right side and Ivan Wood, from Navy, and Bob Coulter will round out the forward line.

Two newcomers are expected to add strength to the lineup. John Smith, who has played in the Calgary Big "6" League, will be seeking a regular left wing berth and Fiori Goegan's younger brother, a defenseman with Ontario junior league experience is trying out for a defense slot.

Winter Golf Trail Rugged, Burke Asks Bigger Purses

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Jackie Burke, Jr., thinks the winter golf trail is a little too rough and that it would be only fair if tournament sponsors filled in the ruts and chuck holes with some solid substance, such as gold. Then everyone could eat regularly.

Jackie, a brand-new bridegroom and also a new vice-president of the P.G.A. and chairman of the tournament committee, is one of the better playing pros. He has been doing quite well, thanks, in the three years he has been competing for prize money, so it must be assumed he has less able players in mind when he makes his suggestion.

"Everything has gone up," he was saying, speaking of the cost of living, "but a lot of the tournaments on the winter tour carry the same prize money they did years ago. And the pros, paying a $10 entry fee, contribute a good chunk of that prize money, too.

HEAVY EXPENSES

"It costs me, traveling alone, about $200 a week in expenses—transportation, hotels, meals, cabs, caddies, etc.—means you have to finish well up in the money every week to break even."

Whereas golf is a recreation and a pleasure for the average citizen, there is plenty of work involved for the tournament pros. Like eating candy or ice cream, you can get mighty sick of it when you overindulge. Jackie indicated as much.

"Say, for example, that I play 300 days of the year," he said. "And just because it's easier to figure say I average 70 strokes a round. That 2,100 strokes.

"And you practice your shots at least four times as often as you play them in competition. That's another 8,400 strokes. Figuring you walk about six and one-half miles to a round, you'd travel nearly 2,000 miles, on foot, during the year.

NEEDS OPEN WIN

"You don't get rich on prize money. Look at Julius Boros. He'd won only around $7,000 when he won the $25,000 prize in the Tam o'Shanter tournament. Of course, when you win the open, as he did, you can do very well on exhibitions, but that's about all. How much money would you say there was in endorsements? About $3,000 at the most, I'd say.

"A lot of club send their pros on tour, paying their expenses, because they figure that what they learn through association with the money pros, watching them and talking with them, will make them better teachers when they come back to the clubs.

"But it's a tough road for the average pro who expects to even make expenses on the tour. I believe the purses should be bigger. That would make it easier, anyway."

Amateurs Lead Pro Golfers In Hudson Cup

PENDLETON, Ore., Oct. 11—Vancouver Bill Mawhinney and Walt McElroy today scored one of the three victories for the amateurs in the first day of the Hudson Cup golf matches. Following the opening day's play, the amateurs led the professionals, 3-2.

Mawhinney and McElroy defeated Frank Newell of Tacoma and Em Zimmerman of Portland, 2 and 1.

Other amateur victories were scored by Bruce Cudd and Dick Yost, both of Portland, who came from behind to defeat Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Larry Lamberger of Portland, 1 up, and Harry Givan and Erv Parent of Seattle, who edged Harold West, Pendleton, and Eddie Hogan, Portland, 1 up.

The professional victories were scored by Chuck Congdon of Tacoma and Ray Honsberger of Clarkston, who stopped Al Mengret of Spokane and Eddie Draper of Seattle, 2 and 1, and John Rudy of Tacoma and Dave Killen of Olympia, who stopped Ray Weston of Spokane and George Beechler, Ontario, Ore., 7 and 6.

Manchester Guardian Favors Japanese Trade

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 11 (Reuters).—A plea for Japanese participation in world trade on a fair basis was made by today's Manchester Guardian. The respected Liberal paper—published in this cotton city which fears Japanese competition—emphasized that Japan must live by its trade.

Minor Hockey

All boys who wish to play hockey in the peewee division of the Victoria Minor Hockey Association are requested to be in front of the Memorial Arena on Tuesday between 4 and 5 p.m. for registration.

The first juvenile workout and registration will be held between 6 and 7 on Tuesday evening. All players are requested to bring sticks and skates.

First ice time for the seventy boys who attended the midget registration earlier in the week will be on Friday. League officials hope to start all leagues within 10 days.

Shores, Firemen Triumph: United Seeks League Lead

HOW THEY STAND

	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
VICTORIA UNITED	2	0	0	9	3	4
New Westminster	2	0	0	9	3	4
St. Andrews	2	1	1	0	4	0
North Shore	1	1	1	0	0	0
Firefighters	1	0	8	8	10	2
Vancouver City	8	0	8	5	7	0

Reid Mitchell, a basketball player of note, played in his first Pacific Coast Soccer League game yesterday and scored the only goal as North Shore United edged Vancouver City, 1-0.

A two-goal effort by Firefighters' Harry Smith gave his team a 2-1 victory over St. Andrews in the other league game.

Smith put Firemen ahead at 37 minutes of the first half. Eany Adams squared matters just before the intermission. Smith got the winner halfway through the second canto.

Victoria United will play its first away game of the season tomorrow when it meets New Westminster Royals at Queen's Park. The league leadership will be at stake.

Both clubs won their first two starts by impressive margins and currently share the lead with identical goal totals.

Mulloy, Larsen Pan American Net Finalists

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11 (AP)—Gardnar Mulloy, 38-year-old veteran of Davis Cup play and Art Larsen, former National Singles champion, moved into the final round of the Pan American tennis tournament today.

Mulloy eliminated Vic Seixas, top-ranking U.S. men's singles player, 8-6, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5. Larsen won his semi-final match from unseeded Sgt. Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3. Mulloy and Larsen will clash for the men's singles title tomorrow.

In the semi-finals of the men's doubles, Noel Brown of San Francisco and Felicisimo Ampon of the Philippines eliminated Straight Clark and Hal Burrows 6-8, 11-9, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1. The winners meet Seixas and Gustavo Palafox of Mexico in the finals tomorrow.

Mela Ramirez and Maria Roldan of Mexico successfully defended their women's doubles crown by upsetting Miss Fry and Thelma Long of Australia, 6-4, 6-1.

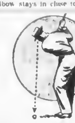
Golf— Here's How

By SAM SNEAD
Golf's Greatest Player-Teacher

In the pitch shot, as discussed yesterday, you delay the cocking action of the wrists until the hands are hip high. The right elbow stays in close to the body.



You make a short iron swing very upright and the club head must, as in all other shots, be swung back and up inside the line of flight. That straight left arm gives you the same body stretch that you get with long iron and wood shots. The hip and shoulder pivot is much less than with woods. And you make about a three-quarter swing with your iron. Play a pitch shot right to the hole. Don't be short because you are not playing the ball to run since the ball will have back spin on it. Of course if the greens are hard and dry, as they may well be at this time of year, don't play a pitch shot.

Quick Cracks Two Records In Reno Open

RENO, Nev., Oct. 11 (AP)—Firing a record-smashing nine under par, Smiley Quick today took over leadership of the northern California-Reno open golf tournament with a 54-hole total of 199.

Quick broke two Washoe County golf course records. His 18-hole total of 63 bettered by two strokes the competitive course record of 65 set by Ben Hogan in 1948. Quick toured the front nine in six-under-par 30 to break by one stroke a mark set in 1938.

Dutch Harrison, deadlocked with Quick yesterday at 136, shot 66 today for second place and a 54-hole total of 202.

Ed Oliver, who slipped badly Friday with a seven-over-par 79 after his pace-setting 66 Thursday, today carded 65, the day's second best score. He was tied for only seventh place, however, along with Babe Lazane, Bakersfield, and Bobby Harris, San Jose, at 210.

Golf School Classes Need More Entries

There are still 12 openings to be filled for the golf classes, held in conjunction with the Greater Victoria Night School program, every Tuesday and Thursday nights at Victoria High School.

Thirty-six persons have registered for the twelve-week course with the classes, which are held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7-8, and 8-9.

The Thursday night session from 7-8, with Phil Taylor and Laurie Carroll, professional and assistant professional of the Victoria Golf Club in charge, needs 12 entries.

If additional entries are received, a new class will be started on Thursday night.

ROME, Oct. 11 (AP)—The newspaper Giornale D'Italia reports today that Italy has built the world's first big jet propelled dirigible. It says the ship measures 184 feet long, 42½ feet in diameter, and has been put through 14 successful test flights.

Yugoslavia Reports Mass Czech Arrests

BELGRADE, Oct. 11 (AP)—The semi-official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug Friday night said unconfirmed reports indicated hundreds of army officers have been arrested in Communist Czechoslovakia as plotters against the government. Figures varied from 200 to "about 600," the agency said.

All-Star Line-Up Released For Game With Courtenay

Manager Bob Bell yesterday released the starting line-up of the Victoria and District Football Association All-Stars who will meet Courtenay United in an exhibition game at Royal Athletic Park tomorrow afternoon.

Travis of Civil Service will start in goal and will be fronted by Dave Burt of Heaneys and Glen Underwood of Esquimalt. On the halfline Stan Wiseman of Heaneys will centre Alf Jenkins of Esquimalt and Ron Woolcock of Victoria West.

HUDLIN INJURED

Doug Hudlin of Wests was named to the all-star squad but will not be able to play. He is suffering from a broken blood vessel in his leg.

Courtenay's line-up will be picked from the following: Ralph Kenney, goal; Mike Murlak, Bob Morgan, [illegible], Sonny Wilson and Leighton Craig halfbacks, and Russ Dickson, Jack Rawlins, Stan Heal, Jim Wright, Tommy Wardrope, Frank Coates, Ray Gallagher, Vincent Frank, Don Fenton, Ray Harper and Ted Woodruff, forwards.

Fullback Jack Smith, who was rated as a good prospect by Victoria United following a recent exhibition game is at present away on holidays but might be back in time for the game.

Eagles Teams Top Juveniles Minor Hockey

Eagles stretched their lead in the third division of the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Football Association to three points yesterday by defeating Mic Mac's, 3-1, at Bullen Park.

In the fifth division, Eagles scored a similar victory over Shepherd's Dairy to strengthen their lead.

Women's Curling

A special meeting of the Victoria Ladies' Curling Club will be held in the board room of the Dominion Hotel on Tuesday at 7.30.

All members and any others interested are invited to attend.

Members are asked to take particular notice of the fact that life membership for afternoon curling will be $25. For further information, phone either E 0767 or B 3769.

HEANEY'S

The Sportlight

BY GRANTLAND RICE

One of the mysteries of the late campaign in baseball is why the Phillies practically elected to blow the pennant from the start of the season.

They were sore at Ed Sawyer, their pennant winning manager in 1950, and made little attempt to give their best. When they finally began to win it was too late.

As a starter they had two of the best pitchers in baseball—Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons. These two had first class aid. In Smoky Burgess, Ritchie Ashburn, Del Ennis and others, they had considerable power. They had their share of speed. Yet they finished some 16 games back of the Dodgers and far back of the Giants. They never had a chance after the first month and joined other clubs in the big attendance drop for the season's play.

This showing can also count against them in financial ways, so after all the Phillie players hurt themselves more than anyone else.

Certainly Roberts and Simmons gave about all they had. You don't win 26 games lobbing the ball up to the plate.

Vast Possibilities

Eddie Stanky with a little more luck could have won the pennant from the crippled Giants and the often doddering Dodgers. He figured to get more help from "Vinegar Bend" Mizell, who has vast possibilities. Mizell, a rookie this year, should be heard from in loud tones next season. This season he won 10 and dropped 8, a record well below his possibilities. There's a chance he'll be close to a 20 game winner in 1953.

Eddie also needed time to find out about his club. It took him a while to get things straightened out, so he should be headed for a better start next spring.

His team has one notable weakness—increasing age. "Country" Slaughter, a big gun in 1952, has been around a long time. Stan Musial is no kid. Neither are Harry Brecheen, Al Brazle and one or two others. But if the Giants and Dodgers don't improve or stay healthier in 1953, Stanky will have a good shot at the big pot.

Need Pitching

The Dodgers will still be the best team in the National League next spring and summer—outside their pitching. It may be the crafty Chuck Dressen can rig up enough talent from his many possibilities. Joe Black should again be a big help. Carl Erskine should be a big aid with more confidence. But he has already been around several years with a high earned-run average up to 1952. Brooklyn will have to find better pitching to make sure of the top spot in 1953.

One of the main reasons for the big drop in attendance this year was that after the Dodgers and the Giants the rest of the league was so far out of the race. The position of Pirates, Reds, Braves and Cubs was extremely sad. The Braves and Pirates may be years away and Pittsburgh is one of the best cities in baseball as far as attendance goes. They can't cheer for another tail-end team.

There must be a more even race in both leagues. Four clubs in the two circuits dominated the two races, leaving the other 12 stranded far from winning territory, both on the field and financially.

Leading Grid Team Upset; Princeton Win Streak Ends

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP).—Wisconsin, the nation's No. 1 team, toppled with a crash that could be heard throughout the Big Ten, and Princeton's proud winning streak was snapped at 24 games by unawed Penn today as the college football campaign moved into high gear.

Underdog Ohio State, with a defense that stopped five drives inside its 20-yard line, turned the tables on Wisconsin, 23-14.

Penn moved into the favorite's position to win the Ivy League title with its smoothly-executed 13-7 triumph over Princeton at Tigertown.

With the exception of Notre Dame, No. 8, which fell before the sledgehammer blows of Pitt, 22-19, all the other top teams in the nation came through as expected.

FAVORITES WIN

Michigan State, No. 2, blasted Texas A. & M., 48-6. California, No. 3, trounced Oregon, 41-7. Maryland, No. 4, shut out Georgia, 37-0. Georgia Tech, No. 5, whitewashed Tulane 14-0; Duke, No. 6, crushed South Carolina, 33-7, and Kansas, No. 9, trounced Iowa State, 43-0. Southern California, No. 7, beat San Diego Navy Friday night.

Thus the leading teams really broke loose for the first time this season in the wild scramble for top honors.

U.C.L.A., Oklahoma and Illinois, three teams pounding on the door of the top ten, came through with easy victories. The Uclans dropped Rice of the Southwest Conference, 20-0; Oklahoma polished off Texas, 49-20, and Illinois crushed Washington, 48-14.

Junior quarterback Tommy O'Connell took charge of a spectacular airlift by hurling five touchdown passes within 20 minutes as the Illini handed Washington one of the worst defeats suffered by a Pacific Coast team in intersectional competition with the Big Ten.

Illinois gave 48,248 fans at Champaign, Ill., a tremendous thrill by rolling up a 28-0 first quarter margin and ballooning it to 42-0 at half-time. Washington pushed over two touchdowns against the Illinois third stringers in the last four minutes of the game.

O'Connell completed 14 out of 17 tosses for 262 yards before retiring from the game early in the third quarter. End John Ryan caught eight passes for 173 yards and three touchdowns before he was taken to hospital with a shoulder injury late in the second period.

Ring Tourney Attracts 27 Hopefuls

TORONTO, Oct. 11 (CP)—Twenty-seven Canadian amateur heavyweights with stars in their eyes and they hope—dynamite in their mitts, will slug it out here Tuesday in Jack Dempsey's third white hope boxing tournament. The former heavy champion will be around to view the mauling.

The winner, after the three-round elimination bouts, will receive $300 cash. If he shows promise, he will be groomed for bigger things in the fistic world. "This is the only way to inject new blood into the heavyweight division," Dempsey said today.

Lure for Badminton Teams

Glistening array of trophies above will be up for competition when re-established Lower Island Badminton Association starts league play. Meeting will be held on Thursday to complete final arrangements for league play. League was dissolved in 1941 because of war after operating for 20 years. It is hoped that more than 15 clubs from Greater Victoria, Sidney and points to Sooke will hook up with loop this year.

Musical Record Gave Rockne Key Play For Notre Dame Victory Over Cadets

By British United Press

It's been 22 years since that morning when an airliner plunged into a Kansas wheatfield and killed Knute Rockne, the Notre Dame coach.

The Norwegian-born Rockne had something special for every opponent. The tougher the opponent the more special the preparation. Sometimes it was an emotional or inspirational strategy. Sometimes it was a new piece of trickery. Once, Rockne got an idea while listening to a symphonic record on the eve of the game.

That was against Army in 1926, when Notre Dame made one of its rare appearances in the underdog role.

Both teams took the field at New York's Yankee Stadium with a perfect record. But the experts said Army's victories had been the more impressive and that Notre Dame could never budge the cadets' granite line. The experts, of course, didn't know that Rockne had spent the previous evening listening to musical records.

STOPPED COLD

Army received the opening kickoff and began to rip through the Notre Dame line. Powered by Red Cagle and Light Horse Harry Wilson, the cadets punched to the Notre Dame 28. There, Notre Dame held solid and the threat died on the 32.

A roar went up as the Irish took over for the first time. They lined up in a T, shifted to the right in Rockne's box formation. The snap went to left halfback Christy Flanagan. He swung wide to his right and picked up two yards. The next play was exactly the same. A sweep to the right, for two yards. On third down, it was the same play, wide to the right. It netted only one yard as the Army left end, tackle and line backer charged to the outside and nailed Flanagan before he could turn upfield. On fourth down, Notre Dame kicked.

Army ripped off two first downs and fumbled at midfield. Notre Dame took over—and ran the same play three times. It was enough for a first down. Three times more than ran it, with the Army left side smearing it cold. Notre Dame again punted.

Army worked back to the Notre Dame 40. When the Irish took over, the puzzled fans knew what was coming—an end sweep to the right. Army knew what was coming too. Almost automatically, the left side went sailing wide to pull down Flanagan. Sometimes the play gained. Mostly it was stopped by the Army forwards.

UNDISTURBED

Over on the Notre Dame bench, Rockne didn't seem disturbed. When the half ended in a scoreless deadlock, he went to the dressing room and talked calmly with his team. No fireworks, no dramatics, no fiery Rockne oratory. Just a few quiet words and the Irish went back out for the second half.

Notre Dame received. The same business started all over, with Flanagan trying to carry wide. On third down, it was Notre Dame's ball on its own 38, four to go. The Irish lined up, shifted to the right. The ball went to Flanagan. He swung wide to the right. Same old thing. The Army left side went looping wide.

Suddenly Flanagan stopped, pivoted in his tracks and drove through where the Army tackle should have been. The startled tackle was with the end, 10 yards outside his position. Wallace, the Notre Dame right end, flattened the tackle with a block. Frank Mayer, the right guard, pulled out and spilled the end. Flanagan was through the gaping hole like lightning. Fred Miller, Notre Dame's left tackle, crushed the backer-up. And the Irish left end bowled the safety off his feet. Flanagan could have walked across. Not one Army man was left on his feet.

It was a perfect play, perfectly set up and Notre Dame had little trouble preserving the lead for a 7-0 victory.

After the game, Rockne explained to newsmen: "I heard this record," he said, "and I kept repeating the same phrase over and over. All of a sudden, it started the identical phrase, then switched right in the middle and completely changed the melody. They called it repetition with variation—and that's what we showed the Army today."

Wolverhampton Blanks Newcastle To Take Old Country Soccer Lead

LONDON, Oct. 11 (Reuters).—Wolverhampton Wanderers, with a 2-0 victory against mighty Newcastle United, Football Association Cup holder, today took over leadership of Division I of the English soccer league.

The Wanderers, who now have 18 points, last week reached the top brackets by a brilliant 6-2 victory against Manchester United, last year's league champion.

Liverpool, last week's leader, made only one point from a 2-2 tie with Bolton Wanderers and, with 17 points, now shares second place with Blackpool, which gained two points from a 4-2 victory over Burnley.

BIG SURPRISE

One of the big surprises of the day was Sheffield Wednesday, newly promoted to the first division, holding London's Arsenal, one of the strongest teams, to a 2-2 tie in London.

There was no change in the leadership of the Second Division, where Sheffield United kept its one-point lead by a 2-1 victory against Leeds. Huddersfield, with 17 points, remained in second spot by an easy 3-0 victory over Luton.

Oldham Athletic lost its record of being the only unbeaten league team this season, going down 1-0 to Gateshead and surrendering top spot in League Division III (Northern). Grimsby, previously behind on goal average, tied 2-2 with Stockport and now has a one-point lead with 22 points.

In the Southern Section of Division III, champion Bristol Rovers were held to a 2-2 draw by their closest rival, Northampton, giving both teams a point each. The Rovers, with 20 points, still are two points ahead.

HOLDS SCOTTISH LEAD

East Fife, 1-0 victor against Queen of the South, remains at the head of Scottish League Division "A" with Celtic, which defeated Clyde 2-1, only one point behind.

Hamilton Academicals gained a point lead in Division "B" by a crashing 5-0 victory against Alloa. Neither Stenhousemuir nor Dumbarton, which previously shared top place with Hamilton, won today.

Victoria Theatre Guild Planning Ambitious Program for Season

An ambitious program has been lined up by the Victoria Theatre Guild, which presented its first play of the season at the Langham Theatre last night.

Next on the list and due to open November 25 is the guild's drama festival entry, "The Mad Woman of Chaillot," directed by Audrey St. D. Johnson.

A comparative newcomer to directing ranks, she will have a brisk work-out on her first pla[illegible] that can run as high as 43—will number 28 for the Victoria version.

Casting difficulties are expected to give the guild a grease-painted headache or two (the majority of the roles are for male actors and good male actors nowadays are kind of hard to find).

"The Mad Woman" will face adjudication at Vancouver in February [illegible] Drama Festival is held and if she survives that will be seen in the Dominion Drama Festival—to be staged in Victoria next year.

The guild is hoping to put on four other plays between now and next April—selections to be announced later.

Traffic Officers Address Students

BY DOLORES ROBINSON
Oak Bay High School

In assembly held last Tuesday morning, Sgt. Brooke Douglas and Sgt. Ian Duncan from the Victoria city police [illegible] Oak Bay students on the importance of traffic laws. Sgt. Douglas made it clear to the students, that the step between minor violations and manslaughter is closer than many people realize.

The students were each given a "knowledge test for automobile drivers," prepared by the Traffic division. After the test he showed a film "And Then There Were Four." It was about slight misjudgments in driving leading up to the death of a widowed mother of two children.

The Vancouver Daily Province Challenge Shield, awarded for the best high school annual in British Columbia was presented to Katharine Burnett, editor of the 1951-52 "Oak Leaf," by Miss Betty Horton of Vancouver. Dave Paynter, Brian Smith, Don Cox and Mr. E. Costain were also present to receive the award.

CYCLIST SPEAKS

Mr. Billie Saalmon who has cycled over 5,000 miles in Europe, Africa and Canada, spoke to the students about his adventures. Mr. Saalmon sang, danced, played musical instruments including the Jew's harp and [illegible] both laughable and wierd.

"The Prelim," which is the get-acquainted dance to welcome Grade IX's to high school, was held last Friday from 2.30 to 5.30. The stage curtains were decorated with "Welcome Grade IX's" in green and white stripes. Norman Dixon, M.C., looked very gay in his navy knee pants, navy polka-dot shirt, green polka-dot bow tie and garters. Students danced to records and all left in good spirits.

BOYS TRAINING

Many Oak Bay boys are now practicing for the inter-house cross-country race. Junior boys run 2.2 miles, the senior boys 4.2 miles. Both runs start and finish at the Cranmore Road school gate.

The inter-house swimming gala will be held October 16. Points will be awarded for each house. October 29 is the date set for the inter-school gala, where Oak Bay will defend the Sir Edward Beatty Trophy which it won last year.

Teen Tastes In Clothes

With fall making its presence felt colors are as sharp and bright as the first frost. Fashion's palette this year is made up of rustic reds, shades of tan, chocolate brown, yellows, greens and popular purple hues. We've noticed a sharp purple corduroy coat which is very smart with grey or black accessories. Mauve and black tulip sweaters (the latest) are being worn with dark tartan or grey skirts.

The new British tan is a practical basic plus accessories in evergreen. Our eye was really caught by a style smart beige coat. It was flecked with gold and had matching golden beige shoes and bag. Instead of navy, this winter, royal blue is taking the spotlight, especially in sweaters and also in sports coats of blue and white check, which is tres chic. Grey is still a smart fundamental in fall ensembles and instead of red-red accents, rust red or burnt-orange lend a new look to the old.

Round the campus colors are jewel-bright day or night. In the evening metallic thread, showers of rhinestones and gold leaf glitter on classically styled datewear. Rainbow-hued shot taffeta and wool jersey are high-lighted for special occasions, and for extra special ones, shoes and stockings are now patterned with rhinestones to match the ring around neck and wrist.

Seattle Pianist Here October 22

Victoria will hear the same program that thrilled a New York audience at Town Hall when brilliant Seattle pianist Randolph Hokanson appears at the Victoria High School auditorium here, October 22.

The concert here is sponsored by the Victoria Musical Art Society. A former president, Mrs. J. D. Cameron, well-known art patron, was responsible for Hokanson's first concert in this city when he was 16.

A scholarship pupil of famed pianist Myra Hess and of English master Harold Samuels, the Seattle artist has drawn critical acclaim since his first public concert.

Besides two concerts in New York his triumphs have included five appearances as guest artist with the Seattle Symphony Orchestra, and frequent San Francisco concerts, where tough critics ruled him one of the top North American pianists of the day.

He has appeared as soloist with symphony orchestras under the conducting of such fabled figures as Pierre Monteux, Sir Thomas Beecham, Arthur Fiedler and Stanley Chapple, and has made five transcontinental tours as a concert pianist.

The concert to be heard here will include Bach's Concerto in the Italian Style and Toccata in F Sharp Minor, six Chopin Etudes and the Ballade in F Minor, several works of James Beale and Bartok's Six Dances in the Bulgarian Rhythm.

His playing hailed as having the priceless quality of imagination as well as technical perfection will provide Victoria audiences with the finest music heard in some time, concert sponsors promise.

Alberta Group Picks Officers At Meeting

M. W. Dawson was elected president of the 31st Alberta Battalion Association at an annual election of officers recently.

A new member, Ted Innes of Calgary, was welcomed to the association.

Others elected to offices were: W. Greig, vice-president; A. B. Riddle, secretary; Rev. Canon George Biddle, chaplain, and M. W. Fraser, R. Clements, W. Donaldson, Col. J. Taylor and J. M. Bell were appointed to the committee.

Refreshments were served after the meeting.

B.C. Urged To Exhibit at Fair

Ralph Chetwynd, minister of trade and industry, yesterday urged British Columbia business men either to exhibit in or visit the Sixth Canadian International Trade Fair in Toronto next June.

The province has much to offer investors, he said, and it is important that business men should be at the fair to meet visitors and discuss with them the possibilities of business in Western Canada.

Council Suggests Ideas For P.T.A. School Help

BY JEAN JOHNSTON
North Saanich High School

Monday evening many Grade XI and XII students accepted the invitation extended by the P.T.A. to attend the presentation of scholarships and hear suggestions put forth from the student council on how the P.T.A. could help the school.

Mrs. A. Aylard presided and called upon D. E. Breckenridge to introduce the guests who were to present the scholarships. The I.O.D.E. nursing scholarship was presented to Ellen Anderson by Mrs. J. Gordon. F. N. Wright scholarships for academic ability and contribution to school activities were presented to Paddy Dalton, Robert Brammall and Marion Thomson by Major-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., M.P., who commended the scholarship winners for their ability and the scholarship donors for their generosity.

Anthony Gambrill, Canadian Legion scholarship winner, was introduced by A. Calvert, who explained the Canadian Legion scholarships.

Mrs. I. Lee and Mr. D. Cobbett explained a prepared chart showing other scholarships available to students who wish to continue their education at Victoria College or U.B.C.

Roland Gilbert, student council president, called upon Thelma Jahn to read a letter from the P.T.A. inviting suggestions for assistance around the school.

New revised editions of the Bible, a new scholarship roll, and royal pictures were among the many suggestions. Mrs. Aylard thanked the council for its ideas.

Entertainment was supplied by various talented members of the student body. Gail Smith played a piano solo. Bill Stockall and Lowell Campbell provided a violin and accordion duet; Gary Howard contributed two numbers on the saxophone. All played to a very appreciative audience.

Mr. Breckenridge gave a short pep talk on the forthcoming P.T.A. bazaar, which will be held November 15 at the school. He suggested various ways in which everyone could help make it a success.

Later refreshments were served in the home economics room.

A. Murphy, sports director for School District 63, issued the volleyball and soccer schedule for F. N. Wright Trophy play. The action commences October 21 when the senior boys meet Royal Oak in the first soccer game between the schools.

Students Organize Stalls

Country Fair Planned at Mount Douglas

BY MERLE EMERY
Mount Douglas High School

Plans are in the making for an enormous country fair. This fair, to be held Wednesday night, October 22, is under the directorship of the students council with the aid of the staff.

To inform the students and discuss these plans, a short assembly was held on Wednesday afternoon. Al Wallis, council president, opened the assembly. Next the teachers gave a short talk about the stalls they will handle.

Norm Lidstone, Ralph Russell and Mr. Brown are in charge of the book stall. The vegetable stall is under the charge of Don Glass, Tex Custance, Bob Skillings and Mr. Forster. Terry O'Riley, Jim Mercer, Robert Earle and Mr. Jones will handle the white elephant stall and the clothing stall will be handled by Marg Stevenson, Doreen Drury and Mrs. Sampson.

Ina Ranson and Beryl Rouse will assist the P.T.A. with the home cooking stall. Dragons Club has taken over the lemonade and candy stall. Tea will be served under the convenership of the P.T.A. and the games and movies will be under the able charge of the Boys Hi-Y.

The aim of this fair is to raise approximately $200 to help outfit the school with sweaters for the many inter-high and inter-house games.

A dynamic speech was made by Sgt. Brooke-Douglass of the Victoria police force, Monday afternoon, to the students and staff members. He greatly stressed the need for better and more careful driving, especially by the age group from 16 to 25 years. A questionnaire was filled out by all the students after his address.

To leave a more lasting impression of the tragic results of careless driving, a movie was shown, entitled "And Then There Were Four."

Thursday morning a member from the Saanich Fire Department gave a brief talk on fire prevention to all the students following an efficient fire drill.

Planned on the agenda this month is the Girls' Y-Teens initiation. The outfits have been decided upon and the initiates have been notified of their apparel. This coming Friday will be initiation day for all the unfortunate victims.

Princes Win Series

BY MAURA RANLEY
St. Ann's Academy

St. Ann's had a "world series" of its own this week, and it proved to be just as exciting as the real thing. The final tournament game between Pare and Prince teams was played on Monday. Much to the disadvantage of the opposing team, Lois Ogden, a Pare team member, seemed to be patterning a career on that of Duke Snider of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Thanks to the pitching of Mary Smith, the Prince team ended out on top with a score of 11 to 9. The winning team members were feted at a "pancake picnic" held at Beacon Hill Park after school on Thursday.

A new system has been introduced in the school this year. It has been decided that points shall be awarded for sports, leadership, and participation in various activities. To those girls who can obtain a specified number of points, school crests shall be awarded on a letter day to be held later in the year.

Since last week was fire prevention week, a fire drill was unexpectedly held on Tuesday afternoon. Apparently a new record was set. The school was cleared of its nine grades and various music and art classes in one minute and ten seconds. After the drill, Lieutenant Mills spoke to a school assembly on the causes of fire and the methods of prevention. The lieutenant spoke on the use of fire extinguishers and demonstrated the action of the compressed carbon dioxide model.

Council Picks Meeting Date At Royal Oak

BY MAUREEN CONNOR AND CAROLYN SINKINSON
Royal Oak High School

A brief meeting of the newly elected Students' Council was held on Wednesday, at which it was decided to hold future meetings every Wednesday.

Class representatives were elected to the council on Tuesday. They are as follows: Grade XII, Rodney Hafer; Grade XI, Allair Stinson; Grade X, Victor Lindal; Grade IX, Gwen Powell; Grade VIII, Sonia Zuzula; Grade VII, Div. 7, Ken Powell; Grade VII, Div. 6, Harold Ridgeway.

Royal Oak High School has been invited to enter the inter-school swimming gala to be held on October 29. A meeting was held to determine the number of entrants. Twenty-five students are believed to be entering this event, with Mr. Lott as their coach. Practices have been scheduled for every Wednesday.

Our talented boys' quartet will entertain the parents and school board at a meeting next Wednesday with some of their clever renditions. Quartet members are Don Tregear, Roy Westoby, Rod Hafer and Daryl Foster.

Carriers' Corner

Pet Owner Has Plans To Be Veterinarian

Edward "Teddy" Spouse has quite a few prized possessions. They include three cats and three kittens, and a Daily Colonist paper route.

He's only 12 years old now but his plans for the future are set . . . he wants to become a veterinarian. In the meantime Teddy is proving himself a good business man with his Colonist route No. 207, which has 80 happy customers in the Gorge area. He has handled that route for the past four months, and has an elder brother, Morris, also carrying The Daily Colonist.

Teddy is a Grade VI student at St. Louis College, where mathematics is his favorite subject. He also takes an active interest in a variety of sports, and thoroughly enjoys a hockey game.

Today's "carrier of the week" is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Spouse, of 501 Kelvin Road.

TEDDY SPOUSE

He's proud of the fact that when paper route pay day rolls around each month his money goes to "mom."

Soon Teddy will be taking part in a Colonist subscription contest which will end a short time before Christmas. He is hoping for a substantial increase in the number of customers on his route.

"I'll be trying hard," he promises.

GOOD LIVESTOCK

Hunter Trials On Monday

Hunter trials will be staged by the Victoria Riding Academy starting at 2.30 p.m. Thanksgiving Day afternoon on the grounds bordered by Finnerty and Gordon Head Roads and Cedar Hill Crossroads.

Spectators will be able to watch the performance of 25 of the city's finest riders from a vantage point of rising ground in the centre of the field.

Both running and jumping will be considered in judging winners on a time basis. Eight jumps have been added to the natural hazards of the course.

Two western scurry races will also be featured as an added attraction and a match race between the well-known mare Idealia and another horse to be selected.

Calamity Players Appear

BY GAYLE CALDER
Victoria High School

Something different was staged in the Victoria High auditorium Wednesday morning when the colorful Calamity Players presented "Comrade" Heywood and "Hero" Gittens direct from the Lower Slobovian salt mines.

They were imported mainly to impress upon the bewildered student body the importance of booster pass sales. Booster passes are one of the chief sources of revenue for student activities. Enthusiasm is keen in the selling competition as prizes ranging from two cords of No. 1 fir wood to a cute little cocker puppy are offered to the student selling the most passes.

Subscriptions for the school newspaper, the "Camosun" were sold last week, with the first edition appearing very soon. This year's chronicle should please the students and it is planned the paper will go to press six times during the school year.

Although a spring play is not scheduled, it is forecast the musical, dancing and drama groups will combine talents and produce an operetta.

Officers for the hard working Red Cross Club were chosen recently. Lorna Stuart was elected president, Thelma Sargent, vice-president and Dot Hong, secretary. With many money raising projects in mind for the future these senior girls will be kept busy.

Central High Chooses New Editorial Staff

BY SHARON TENCH
Central Junior High School

Of main interest at Central this week was the newly-chosen editorial staff. They are as follows: Don Heywood, editor; Edward McPhillips, production manager; Diana Drysdale, business manager; Joseph Haegert, news editor; Betty Belobaba, arts and science editor; Lyle Garraway, sports editor; Gwynne Garner, social and fashions editor, and Pete Wells, art director. The first edition of the Centralian will be published for Hallowe'en.

Grass hockey, soccer and swimming are the only sports being carried on at the present. House I and House III boys played soccer on Tuesday with House III emerging victorious. Grass hockey has also officially started with a game between House I and House II girls under the supervision of Miss Ferguson. A boys swimming practice for the gala was held on Tuesday, October 7. The girls' practice was held on Thursday, October 9. Both teams look promising.

The girl prefects are sporting new green sweaters trimmed with the prefect arm bands. These bands are of red, white and green felt and are worn around the left arm above the elbow. Each girl has purchased her own sweater and feels that the expense was warranted because it is so cool going from building to building and standing on duty in the halls. The girls wonder if the boys will follow suit and buy matching sweaters.

On October 9 during the lunch hour the students enjoyed a lecture by Mr. Saalman, who has travelled by bicycle through darkest Africa, Europe and Canada. He lectured chiefly on the Upper Nile region.

S. J. Willis School Chooses Officers

BY PENNY DRUCE
S. J. Willis Junior High School

Highlight of the week was the election of students council officers and house captains. The council officers are: Laural Beale, president (was elected last year); Wynnona Foster, vice-president; May Lim, secretary, all from Grade IX, and Elaine Halstrom, treasurer, from Grade VIII.

House captains are: House I, Barbara Beddington, no boys' captain elected; House II, Colleen Cameron and Bill Frater; House III, Marilyn Clark and Eddie Kowolyk.

The dance band has started practicing and expects to provide music for noon hour dancing.

Once a week 20 Grade IX girls spend a very full hour in a girls' woodworking class. This class, under the sponsorship of Mr. F. Holm, will be making things like modern end tables and tea tables. The class will be held from October to Easter.

At the first meeting Carol Naunton was elected president.

"They are doing very well," Mr. Holm said, "and are doing mostly bench work, but they are using some machines."

Mount Newton Pupils Choose David Thomas

BY MARLENE CARBERT AND NORMA BICKFORD
Mount Newton High School

David Thomas, president; Charlie Johnson, vice-president; Norma Bickford, secretary; Claudia Butler, treasurer.

Commencement Exercises Held In Esquimalt High School Gym

BY CAROL LARSEN
Esquimalt High School

Esquimalt High School commencement exercises were held for the first time in the spacious new auditorium-gym. C. Kelly, school principal, warmly welcomed the distinguished guests, parents and graduating class. The program featured awards, pins and trophies and vocal solos by Mimi Bavin and Charles Pash. Members of the Girls' Y-Teens served refreshments, provided by the Students' Association, at the conclusion of the exercises.

Mrs. O. P. Ormond, regent of the Esquimalt Chapter, presented the annual I.O.D.E. scholarship award of $50 to Joan Tanner.

Bursaries were given to the following top-ranking students by Mrs. J. McMillan, president, on behalf of the Esquimalt P.T.A.: Grade IX, Myrna Hunter; Grade X, Carol Larsen; Grade XI, Audrey Beaumont, and Grade XII, Beverly Bark.

Brenda Sigrist was the recipient of a special award for excellent work in Chemistry.

Presentation of Students' Association non-academic, non-athletic Letter Awards was made by the president, Tony Walls, to Bev Ross and Gerald Guest.

Following this, Students' Association trophies were awarded. Mr. Jeune, a member of the Greater Victoria School Board, presented cups to Bev Ross and Gerald Harris for sports participation. [illegible] the Greater Victoria School Board, presented Gerald Guest the year's citizenship trophy and Joan Tanner the cup given to the best all-round student.

H. S. Hurn, head of the drama division of the department of education, and R. Reeve made special mention of the drama scholarship won by Gerald Guest and of the Dominion Cadetship to Royal Roads won by William Laidlaw.

J. Gough, municipal inspector of schools, ably counselled the graduates on presentation of their high school graduation certificates. The recipients going on to new fields are Beverly Bark, Gwen Bavin, Ron Beaumont, Patsy Burke, Marjorie Caddick, Jerry Cutler, Bob Davies, Merle Dean, Kitty Dixon, Margaret Dobrocky, Laurie Dodd, Shirley Fry, Gerald Guest, Pat Hamill, Ken Harrison, Ron Hunter, Pat Hutchinson, Anne Jones, Ed McIntyre, Jeanne McTavish, Don Miller, Sonya Mortimer, Miriam Sadler, Gerry Sainmon, Ruth Smith, Wesley Stephens, Bev Swerdy, Doug Tanner, Joan Tanner, Marjorie Vickers, Jim Wallace and William Woods.

A special drama award was [illegible] S. Hurn. Miss G. N. Hewlings gave a drama pin award to Brian Mee and a special prize for a social studies scrapbook to Wilma Simmons.

JOURNALISM PINS

Journalism pins were given by Miss M. Coulbear, journalism sponsor, to the following: Editorship, Kitty Dixon; photography, Bev Bark; business, Gloria Molofy, and literary, Donna Smith.

Kitty Dixon, editor of the Record Album, presented the Cecil Scott Memorial Shield to the school. Ron Smith, past-president of the boys' Hi-Y, gave the school a picture of the 1952 graduating class.

Miss M. MacKay was the able accompanist for the program.

Too Cold To Cut Mustard—Students Get Extra Holiday

By GARTH TAYLOR

Mount View got an unexpected holiday Thursday. Students went to school in the morning as usual, but at the second period they were let off because the school was too cold.

The furnaces had been removed and a space of about a week has to elapse before new furnaces are put in. This is truly a long week-end. School resumes as usual Tuesday morning.

The Y-Teens initiation is over and done with for another year. The girls wanting membership had to dress in a gunny sack, jeans, a man's boot and a slipper and have their hair in rags. The make-up was very stylish — one side of the face made up, the other covered with white powder.

Some of the girls' costumes were very good and an amusing day was spent by all.

The preppers had to carry the senior Y-Teens girls' books for them wherever the seniors wanted to go. In the evening the girls all went uptown and then caught a bus out to Jackie Ormand's for a house party.

The Drama Club under direction of Miss Piggott and Mr. Thompson had its first meeting Tuesday last. There was a good turnout and meetings for reading of plays have been fixed for every Tuesday after classes.

Something new in the way of clubs has been formed in the school by Don Richardson, Ken Murray and sponsor Mr. Irwin. It is a "cross-country race" club and quite a few boys turned out. Anyone remembering last year's race will know it is an interesting and exciting sport.

DOWN TO DEFEAT

Mount View's grass hockey team went down to defeat at the hands of the Oak Bay Greens. The score was 2-0. It was a hard fought game but Oak Bay had the edge in experience and weight.

Members of the student council made speeches at the first regular meeting of the P.T.A. They spoke of various functions in the school and were very well received.

Speakers were Dianne Streeton, council treasurer; Florence Scrimshaw, council secretary; Peter Winter, Dave Price, sports council president; Barbara Whitely, Elfie Jernalet and Eileen Kasturn. Allan Fait was chairman.

Fall Tabloid At Belmont Successful

BY DENNIS GAVIN
Belmont Junior-Senior High

Taking advantage of the warm weather Belmont Junior-Senior High School held a most successful fall tabloid on the afternoon of October 3. The standards for the high jumps, broad jumps, ball throws and sprints were a challenge for the juniors, intermediates and seniors from the four Houses, A, B, C and D, which compose the house system of the school. All contestants were awarded one point if they entered the event and two points for making the standard.

Enthusiasm ran high and house members cheered excitedly at the climax of each event. There was a continual scurrying back and forth from the field and pits to view the score board throughout the meet. Each new tally was met with gasps of pleasure or furrowed brows as point totals were rushed to the recording stands.

House "D" were the final winners with a total of 300 points, followed by "C" House with 286, "A" House with 282 and "B" House with 276, figured on a percentage basis.

Historical Items Win Valuable Prizes

This presentation at Kent's Ltd. turned back the pages of history for two local people recently. The occasion was the awarding of $50.00 cheques to Mrs. A. Stephens, 3491 Lovat (left), and Mrs. W. B. Wellwood of 1317 McNair by Mr. Herbert Kent. Mrs. Stephens produced the oldest phonograph to be purchased from Kent's, a Columbia model dating back before 1898. The record with the instrument has great family sentiment since it is a recording of Mrs. Stephens' father's voice, recorded in Saskatoon in the early nineties. Mrs. Wellwood also made history with her receipt for a Heintzman piano bought from Kent's in 1906. The piano is still in regular use in the Wellwood home.

Navy Career Interests Recruits Far From Sea

BY RAY WORMALD

It is generally regarded as [illegible] British Columbia's coast cities and communities should be interested in the sea, ships and the Royal Canadian Navy. They are. But various naval recruiting officers are a bit surprised at the increased interest in navy life that is being shown by men of the interior of the province.

Such an observation was made here recently by Lieut. J. E. Mason, B.C. area recruiting officer for the naval reserve force. He was in Victoria to explain to [illegible] of Victoria College the opportunities which exist for them in the University Naval Training Divisions.

Interviewed during a visit to H.M.C.S. Malahat, Lieut. Mason remarked on the "surprising number" of men in B.C.'s interior who were inquiring about naval service. "Some of them have never seen an ocean, let alone units of Canada's fast-growing fleet. But they are interested in travel opportunities, favorable rates of pay and the sense of security the navy life has to offer," the navy career counsellor stated.

* * *

The division will mark the Thanksgiving holiday and will hold this week's parade drill Tuesday evening. Lieut. L. J. Fuller will be company commander with A. Lieut. G. J. Odgers second in command.

Training program will be as follows: Officers, naval history, damage control, new entries, parade square training, naval history, engine room branch, parade square training and continuation of course, communications branch, parade square training and instruction in morse and semaphore, supply (stores) branch, parade square training and lecture, supply (writers) branch, to be detailed, electrical branch, training in magnetism.

* * *

Annual meeting of Malahat's wardroom will be held October 20 starting at 8 p.m. Election of officers and presentation of reports covering the past year will open the meeting.

LAVERNE M. SANDS

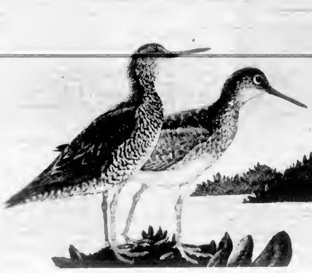
of the Sands Mortuary Limited, Victoria, B.C., was among the more than 600 who attended the 35th annual meeting of National Selected Morticians at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, September 30 to October 3.

The program of discussion clinics, forums and panel discussions was punctuated with outstanding nationally known speakers, including Robert F. Hurleigh, news director of Station WGN, Chicago, and radio commentator, and Dr. William M. McGovern, international affairs expert and professor of political science at Northwestern University.

In addition the members heard from an overseas representative of the association who discussed the British interpretation of funeral services and the practices that are followed in that country. The editor-in-chief of The Toledo (Ohio) Blade, Grove Patterson, told the members his impression of "America's Number One Need." The executive secretary of the Society of American Florists also addressed the group.

National Selected Morticians, as its name implies, is a selective organization with headquarters in Evanston, Ill., just north of Chicago. It invites into membership only those firms which are recognized leaders in the field and conform to the highest ideals in funeral service. Improving service by its members to the public and maintaining the highest standard of character and moral responsibility are among the association's aims.

Wandering Tattler Haunts Rocky Victoria Shore Line



—From a drawing by Frank Beebe.

BY G. J. GUIGUET
Provincial Museum Biologist

This large beautiful grey and white shore bird is another frequenter of the rocky sea shore. It migrates from its nesting ground on arctic gravel beds to winter along the Pacific shore lines south of Santa Barbara, California. There are occasional records from New Zealand and Australia while a large population winters from the Hawaiian Islands down through the South Seas.

Quoting Dr. E. W. Nelson from Bents' Life Histories, "Across the broad ocean it ranges to those bits of paradise dotting the South Seas, tripping its way daintily on the beaches of coral enclosed islands, their feet laved by the warm waters of the tropics and their eyes familiar with the luxuriant face of nature in its gentlest and most lovely state. The next season may find them thousands of miles to the north, under the shadow of the stupendous cliffs and grand but desolate and repellent scenes of the Aleutian Islands."

Thus the Wandering Tattler is well named, the tattling part probably originating from the bird's habit of bobbing and teetering as it works among the rocks.

These birds appear along the rocky shores of Oak Bay in April and May during the spring migration, particularly along that stretch of shore from the Oak Bay Beach Hotel to the "Golf Course Point." In the fall they may be seen throughout August and September and sometimes in July.

TRAVEL ALONE

They are not as numerous as other species of shore birds occurring here and have the habit of traveling alone or in small groups of two or three. However, they do occur regularly and the persistent bird watcher will almost surely record this bird if he or she stays afield during the migratory periods.

The bird in the foreground of the accompanying illustration is in full nuptial or spring plumage. The grey of the back is intensified at this time, while characteristic black markings are prominent along the throat, breast and flanks. In the fall most of the birds observed here are assuming the dull winter plumage depicted on the bird in the background, where the intense black and grey markings have disappeared to a large extent. Young of the year resemble the winter adults in this respect but appear to be smaller and to have a certain air of slimness about them.

In the field Tattlers are sometimes difficult to see when at rest, but upon flushing, their loud flute-like call of from three to four notes, general nondescript greyishness and that bobbing habit when they re-alight serve for easy identification.

Fireworks Blast Kills Boy at Game

YANKTON, S.D., Oct. 11 (AP). — An aerial bomb exploded and killed one boy and seriously injured another here Friday night between halves of a football game. Two of the bombs had been fired successfully when the third let go unexpectedly while still in its firing chamber on the ground. The display was staged by a commercial fireworks firm.

Three Victorians Bereaved

Three Victoria residents were bereaved with the death in Kelowna last week of Thomas Cunningham Black, 77.

Surviving are Mrs. Black in Kelowna, two daughters and a son in Victoria, Mrs. Jean Campbell, 1518 Vining; Mrs. Katherine Jones, 1163 Colville, and PO. James Black, R.C.N., 3163 Glasgow, recently returned from Korea, a brother in Cleveland, O., two sisters in England and 11 grandchildren.

Mr. Black, a 41-year resident of Kelowna, was well known in Victoria. He was a carpenter and musician, having served as a bandsman in the First World War. He was a 25-year member of the Canadian Legion and a member of St. George's Masonic Lodge.

Cast Busy Painting Up for 'Curtain Up'

BY BARNEY McKINLEY

If they can get the paint off the cast in time the recently-formed York Theatre Company will open with its first play, "Curtain Up," on the momentous evening of October 16.

The reason the cast will have to be dipped in paint remover before they appear in front of [illegible] all been busy filling in as painters and cleaners during the renovation of the York Theatre on Government Street which they have taken over.

Dual role for the players has produced such theatrical marvels as the casting of a skilled Shakespearian actor in the role of the man who slaps gilt paint on the ends of the seat rows.

FOUR STAR

He is turning in a four (gold) star performance.

Also in overalls when not rehearsing is leading man Alexander Gray, a 30-year-old veteran of stage and screen who is expected to score a hit in the role of Norwood Beverley in "Curtain Up."

An Australian by birth, Gray has had roles in such Aussie movies as "Rats of Tobruk," "The Flying Doctor," "Thoroughbred," "Haritage" and others.

ALEXANDER GRAY

On the stage of the National Theatre in Melbourne he played leads in "Of Mice and Men," "Winterset," "Anna Christy" and Shaw's "Candida" all very nice roles indeed.

In England he toured with repertory companies including one presenting Eugene O'Neill's one-act plays of the sea, played "Hamlet" in Paris and had a part in Tyrone Power's "Mr. Roberts" at the London Coliseum.

He also had parts in such English films as "The Promoter," "Derby Day" and Ivanhoe."

From all of this, sardonic Mr. Gray emerged with his sense of proportion undamaged. This week he admitted, despite his experience, he had known more real fear while waiting in the wings than he had during war service.

"What's death?" he asked. "It's nothing to getting out in front of the customers. The sudden silence after a flub must be worse than any overt hostile act."

Feminine lead role of Sandra Layton in "Curtains Up" is being played by Monica Dudley, another young veteran of British theatre and motion picture studios.

She has played leads in "Frieda" "George and Margaret," "Lady Precious Stream," "They Came To a City," "Dear October" and dear knows how many more.

MONICA DUDLEY

Her film work at the Gainsborough Studio included important roles in "The Root of All Evil," and with Stewart Granger in "The Magic Bow." She also has done a fair stint on television and on the B.B.C.'s "Saturday Night Theatre" and "Woman's Hour."

On the subject of Shakespeare, talented young Victoria pianist Pat Shakespeare, A.R.T.C., will leave this city Monday for the start of a month's concert tour of the western provinces.

PAT SHAKESPEARE

Her first concert is in Penticton October 15 and the tour will wind up in Vancouver November 14. Victoria appearance is scheduled for November 12.

Youthful Vancouver violinist Arthur Polson will co-star with Miss Shakespeare, but the Victoria girl is carrying the major share of the concert program.

The only Victoria entrant, she was selected to make the Canadian Federation of Teachers' Association tour at adjudications in Vancouver last April. Long on glamour, the tour is not exactly a paying proposition financially.

The artists get exactly $10 out-of-pocket allowance.

Miss Shakespeare will be giving Victoria a musical boost in such centres as Kelowna, Vernon, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat, Coaldale, Lethbridge, Claresholm, Trail, Nelson, Castlegar and McLeod—not necessarily in that order, of course.

Class of the classy Victoria Symphony Orchestra has been stepped up another notch with the acquisition by cellist Gordon Shaw of a genuine Rugeri cello dated 1720 and described as a superior instrument with elaborate scroll work and magnificent tonal qualities.

The Rugeri has a pedigree nearly as impressive as a Stradivarius violin and as a matter of strict musical fact is a product of one of Strad's fellow pupils in the immortal Amati school of instrument making.

The mellow cello comes complete with two certificates—one from famous Arnold's of London collecting firm—and the other from even more famous Hills of London—top note authorities on old and valuable instruments.

Shaw, who has been playing the cello since he was 16 and is now on his fifth season with the symphony, was reluctant to discuss the monetary value of the Rugeri, but it is rumored to have cost more than $1,000.

It was bought from a non-playing collector—and a good thing too. Rugeri didn't build it to gather dust.

Musical Stars of B.C. will twinkle for the second time this season at the Victoria Ballroom next Thursday starting at 8.15 p.m.

Two brilliant young artists, Marion Jarvis, Vancouver mezzo-soprano, and Pamela Hartman, L.R.S.M., A.R.C.M., Victoria pianist, by way of a musical trail from Trail, B.C., will co-star.

Miss Hartman was a student for seven years of the great English teacher, Arthur Benjamin (five in Vancouver, two in London, Eng.), and was several times winner in the open piano classes at the B.C. Musical Festival.

The Vancouver singer has been shining as a vocalist since she was eight and between that age and her 12th birthday won 12 first places in B.C. Musical Festivals and also passed examinations in piano, singing, and theory at the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto.

In 1948 and 1951 Miss Jarvis was chosen to represent Vancouver in the "Singing Stars of Tomorrow" show and won a scholarship in the A.O.T.S. "Search for Talent" series.

Other triumphs included a lead role in the C.B.C. opera presentation "The Old Maid and the Thief" in which she came close to stealing the show, appearances with the B.C. Electric "Summer Symphony" programs and the "Summertime" program at the Malkin Bowl in Vancouver's Stanley Park.

Concert announcement advised customers harmonious parking would be available at the "Mc and Mc" lot on Cormorant Street. Tickets are on sale at Kent's Music Store daily until 5 p.m. on the 16th—then at the ballroom.

The Scotch Concert Party of 1952 which scored such a success here October 7 and 8 will definitely be back as the Scotch Concert Party of 1953 on October 22, 23 and 24 next year.

Wee Alec Finlay, comedian and heart warmer, will be in the party for certain as will Will Starr, popular accordionist.

For the information of concert goers who might be just a little baffled by the music o' the Scots, next year's program will feature more music of other lands and a couple of fingers less Scotch.

Incidentally, the show is booked for a solid week in Vancouver next year as well as three days in Victoria. The eight-day run means a bigger and more ambitious show since artists will not be transporting just a concert in a suitcase designed for a brief stay.

But the Scots may not have to wait a whole year to hear more of the best of Scotland's concert stars. Favorite tenor Robert Wilson, who brought the first concert party here from the old land, will almost certainly bring his own group, now touring the Hebrides, to Canada next spring.

Welkins are ringing in Victoria West each Monday and Wednesday as the Gilbert and Sullivan Society bears down on rehearsals for a November 27 to 28 presentation of "The Mikado," perhaps the most famous of the G. & S. masterpieces.

The run-overs are being held at Victoria West School with Yum Yum, the Wandering Minstrel and others of the 12 principals and chorus of 50 all in full voice.

STARRING

Starring in the lead role of the Mikado is Allen Robertson, who was Sir John Porter in last year's society presentation of "H.M.S. Pinafore." Allen Whyte in romantic Nankipoo, whose "Wandering Minstrel I" has been a favorite of tenors since its high notes were first pegged up.

Whyte had the same role the last time the G. & S. Society put the the Mikado over the musical hurdles.

Gorgeous Yum Yum, feminine romantic lead in the light opera, will be portrayed by Ruth Champion, a newcomer to Victoria from Toronto, where she played the lead in "Iolanthe" in her last appearance there.

JEAN BLYTH

Of interest to Victoria music lovers is the fact Melvin Knudsen, former conductor of the Victoria Symphony, is back in harness as the musical director of "The Mikado."

Christmas is dancing into view already.

Rehearsals for the "Snow Queen" pantomime scheduled for presentation at the Royal Theatre, December 15 and 16, will start this coming Thursday and dance rehearsals under direction of Velda Wille are under way now.

The pantomime is sponsored by the Associated Canadian Travellers and the Woman's Auxiliary to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

Mingled tears and laughter is the stuff of show business—both on and off the stage. So it's only fitting to register the minor theme in the history of the Jerry Gosley "Smile Show."

As is reasonably well known at this date Gosley has been invited to lead a party of two men and two women artists on a tour of Korea to entertain Canadian troops there.

Last minute preparations are now being made and this week the prick of inoculation needles proved conclusively the invitation was no dream.

Sad note in the story lies in the fact four members of the Smile Show who worked hard to make it a success will be standing on the dock when the ship sails for Korea.

LEFT BEHIND

The first three, under leadership of Al Denoni, accordionist, are members of the Smile Show orchestra. The busy Stofer, who stars as guitarist, singer, yodeller and whistler, is a Smile Show mainstay.

However plans call for a full reunion show in Victoria when the Korean tour is over. So there'll be a happy ending after all.

Irish Stamps To Honor Poet

DUBLIN, Oct. 11 (Reuters).—Two stamps will be issued next month to commemorate the 171th anniversary of the death of Thomas Moore, famed Irish lyric poet. Erskine Childers, post and telegraph minister, said Friday a portrait of the poet by Sir M. Archie Shee, which now hangs in Dublin's national gallery, would be reproduced on the 2½ and 3½ pence issues.

Melons and squash as grown by the Indians were part of the diet of the earliest white settlers in Canada.

Handy Launch Float-Seat

ALL launches of cruisers should carry adequate life preservers for the passengers. Fire or accident may sink your launch when far from shore, or you may have poor swimmers aboard. Some people are nervous of rough water and, as a courtesy to them, you should provide life preservers. Also, neglecting this duty is an offence against the law in many places.

On a small launch, often it is a nuisance to have many of the conventional type of life preservers aboard. These either get stowed away where they are unavailable when required, or they are left around to become damaged and useless. Although one or two ordinary life jackets may be carried easily, often a capacity load of friends are taken on your craft. One way to provide for their safety is to make a float seat raft.

Many launches have an open section where such a seat will float clear of the boat should it sink, or in case of fire, is easily thrown overboard. An open stern is about the best place to locate your raft seat, and it is a simple matter to make one.

First, buy a couple of the army type gas cans that are being sold by many dealers. These are inexpensive, strong, light and made absolutely airtight by a special screw seal and nonperishable gasket. One of these cans is shown in Figure 1.

Next, construct a well built seat to fit the stern of your launch. Repaint the gas tanks to prevent corrosion and make sure that the screw caps are tightly turned down. Now, attach these two tanks to the underside of the float seat, as shown in Figure 2. This can be done by holding them in place with galvanized strap iron bands, screwed to the underside of the seat or by suitable wooden slat framework. If the seat is provided with rope loops its efficiency will be increased, because in rough water a number of people are provided with a firm grip on the raft. These tanks have a considerable displacement for their weight and greatly add to the buoyancy of any wooden craft. Also, its shape lends itself to fitting into the contours of your boat.

CHILDREN'S FEATURE

A Toad in the Hole—

A TOAD'S partiality for living in a small hole that fits him more closely than the proverbial glove is so well known that a sausage surrounded by batter is always called "toad in the hole." Miss Evelyn Cheesman, the intrepid entomologist who visits many remote parts of the world in search of specimens, mentioned this peculiarity of toads in a recent B.B.C. talk and cited some of the tight corners into which toads get and stay, quite happily.

* * *

She recalled a toad she saw in her 'teens which had been imprisoned in a lump of chalk, where it had lived for many years without food or water. Toads confined in such holes or clefts are able to manage with very small supplies of oxygen because they have the ability to breathe through the pores of their skin as well as through their lungs. When they are so closely "cabined, cribbed and confined" they are not likely to use their oxygen supply extravagantly and they stay in their cosy quarters for indefinite periods. All they require is slightly humid air, for a toad cannot live in a bone-dry atmosphere.

* * *

In her youth Miss Cheesman kept toads as pets but she had another pet, a tame long-eared owl, which saw the creatures in a very different light. This owl disliked the flavor of toads, but was still unable to resist the temptation of swooping down on them and snapping off their heads which littered the Cheesmans' lawn in a distressing manner.

* * *

Her strangest story bearing on a toad concerned some boys who were interested in a lark's nest and visited it regularly until the young flew. After the nest was deserted they lifted it out to see what materials had been used to make it. There was a movement underneath and there they found a very large toad that had been lurking amongst the broken ground and on whose broad back the lark had built part of her nest. As any movement would have frightened the bird it could fairly safely be assumed that the toad had been obliging enough to remain motionless and presumably foodless throughout the period of incubation and fledging.

* * *

When Miss Chessman was on one of her expeditions to New Guinea she found some strange little frogs living in subterranean burrows. There is no record of their having been found above ground and her introduction to them, amusing to look back on, was rather unnerving at the time. She was climbing the high mountains with her Papuan carriers and they came out of the forest on to a mule track she heard what sounded like distant native drums, hollow and faint.

* * *

She asked her carriers what drums they were and the men said that there were none at all, even though the sound of them became steadily louder. Miss Cheesman, somewhat discomfited, sat down to rest and then the drumming began beneath her. At last the carriers understood what was troubling her and with their bush knives they began to dig, bringing out a small frog. The creature was flabby, and touching it was, said Miss Cheesman, "Like handling a shell-less egg." These pinkish frogs with pointed snouts and tiny, almost invisible eyes, were apparently solitary in habit, each living in a little burrow about two feet down. Occasionally two little burrows with a frog in each were found side by side, the two burrows connected by a short corridor.

* * *

The frogs made their peculiar call by blowing themselves out like balls and then letting out the air in jerks. They drummed nearly all day but were silent at night, for which Miss Cheesman was profoundly thankful, although she was at a loss to understand how they knew when the sun rose and set. Nobody really knew anything definite about these frogs, living so snugly and obscurely in their little burrows. Where and when mating took place, where their eggs were laid, how long they lived and whether and how they ever came up to the outer world were all unanswered queries. "It does bring home to us," said Miss Cheesman, "what a lot there is still to learn about nature and doubtless there are many surprises for us waiting in odd places."

Benzene, important chemical in the manufacture of synthetic rubber, can be obtained in large quantities from the same Colorado oil shale that now is producing heating oil and gasoline. The same shale also will yield other important chemicals, such as solvents, waxes, asphalts and tars.

Yes, Doctor!

By DR. [illegible] B. WA[illegible]

Sometimes, when mothers have to mend the seat of the trousers of their youngsters, they wonder why they can't play gentler games. A boy has to climb fences and trees, play baseball, football and other games in order to develop properly—physically, mentally and emotionally. It is better for mother to have to mend clothing than have their boy or girl become timid when they should be developing themselves for manhood or womanhood.

Stamp Packet

By R. M. ANGUS

The master forger of stamps, Sperati, of whom we wrote some two years ago, pursuant to an article in the Saturday Evening Post, has at long last been laid by the heels, the French government having had the matter brought strongly to its attention by representations from the syndicate of stamp dealers of Paris. Originally a producer of engraved picture postcards and an expert on colors and the production of similar cards; due to a bad deal he once made in his youth with an unscrupulous dealer, he turned his attention to the manufacture of engraving postage stamps, which bore a striking resemblance to the genuine article.

At first, his efforts were easily identified by almost any expert collector or dealer, but he has recently improved his methods to such an extent that he has been producing stamps that have fooled even experts. Of course he never pretended to sell them except as facsimiles, and protected himself by writing to that effect in faint pencil letters on the back of each stamp; two strokes of any soft rubber, gently applied, and presto! they were "genuine" and not forgeries at all.

* * *

There is no need for the general collector to feel any alarm as to being stung by one of these, as they are all of rarities and are not so cheap as to come within the purse strings of many collectors, being about $20 a copy for the most part. One such is in the collection of a well-known Vancouver Island collector and is a copy of the imperforate 5-cent stamp of this Colony prior to Confederation. This is a $2,500 stamp in mint condition and in perfect state and Sperati's imitation is so good as to be very dangerous indeed. How he produces the watermark is still an unanswered question, possibly by a very gentle process of thinning the paper slightly along the lines of a carefully traced copy of the original watermark. He has been given for the time being, a two-year suspended sentence; a fine of 120,000 francs and has to pay 500,000 francs damages to the syndicate. Further to that he has been prohibited from making any future forgeries.

* * *

The United States seems to have been one of his best markets, and he has made many fine forgeries of the early classics. Recently the market has been victimized with fine mint copies of the $2.60 value of the Graf Zeppelin set, Scott No. C15 which catalogues at this writing $62.50 per stamp. The secret service have already rounded up a number of unused copies with full gum. These forgeries are very good indeed and emanated from Paris so there is little doubt as to whom their producer is. They first made their appearance at the Monte Carlo Stamp Exhibition and also at the Utrecht (Netherlands) exhibition earlier in the year. They are engraved on copper or steel and are correctly perforated 11. Under a strong magnifying glass they show several discrepancies, as the lines appear "scratchy" and some of the details are so indistinct as compared with the originals that they are more or less easily identified; the forward cabin is hardly discernible and the rear motor is quite absent. The best test is the fluorescent lamp under which the color of the stamp appears to be a bright red-violet, while the originals fluoresced to a deep blue in every case.

The Hitchhicker

Thumbnail Sketches of Thumbing a Ride in Various Countries—Some Say Yes and Some Say No

PARIS (NANA-Kemnews) Generally speaking, the people of France don't regard hitchhikers as disreputable beggars.

Hitchhikers are not nearly so much of a plague on the French countryside as French campers. If anybody wants to see disreputable beggars, let them observe some of these French campers.

By comparison, the hitchhiker, good luck to him, is a model of distinction.

ON THE WALTZ

COPENHAGEN Since Denmark lies between Norway, Sweden and the European mainland, there are many hitchhikers on Danish roads each summer mostly 18-25-year olds.

During the 19th century it was customary for newly qualified Danish apprentices to go "on the waltz" wandering for a year or more through Europe, plying their trade as they went.

EYE APPEAL

FRANKFORT Hitchhiking is sanctioned by the Germans not only as an approved form of transportation but also as an excellent way to catch a husband.

Half of Germany's hitchhikers are women. To aid success, they venture heavy lipstick, eye shadow and even false eyelashes. This "eye appeal" is enhanced further by gay scarves and short skirts.

With husbands in short supply (women outnumber men by more than 3,000,000 in Germany), single feminine hitchhikers frequently manage to extend the journey to a trip to the altar.

American and German truck drivers are the favorite prey of German hitchhikers. After picking up a woman standing demurely and lonely by the side of the road, the unwary driver frequently is asked to "wait a moment." The hitchhiker than retrieves a husband, a mountain of luggage and sometimes even children from a nearby thicket.

THEY'RE SCARED

ROME There is just about a 1 in 500 chance putting it optimistically that hitchhikers in Italy will get a lift in a private car.

Italian car owners do not despise the hitchhikers begging of all sorts is too widespread throughout the country but they are just outright terrified of them. The reason: In the last two years a series of robberies with violence and even two murders of drivers by people ostensibly hitchhiking.

Italian truck drivers are a class to themselves; the shabbier the vehicle, the more open their heart. To them hitchhikers are "comrades of the road" whatever their nationality.

FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

MADRID Anyone speaking a few words of Spanish can hitchhike across this country by truck. Being poor themselves, Spaniards are unusually helpful to the poor and hitchhikers are assumed to be poor.

Much food distribution is by night trucking teams of two, one man driving and the other ready with rifle against wolves or bandits. Being two, they welcome one passenger —and particularly a foreigner with plenty of cigarettes!

The single private driver, however, usually is afraid to take a hitchhiker aboard.

As for hitchhikers over student age, the feeling is that, if they cannot afford a penny a mile third-class railway ticket, they should stay at home.

A NUN'S REBUFF

BRUSSELS Belgian motorists are not good at giving lifts and pedestrians take them reluctantly.

For a man to offer woman a lift is open to the worst interpretation. In a snowstorm I once was rebuffed cruelly for "offending" a lame nun this way. Nevertheless, many motorists are glad of company.

On the roads it is almost impossible to escape requests from student parties and if you oblige them they often offer to share the cost of the gasoline.

AND IN HOLLAND

AMSTERDAM, So you want to go hitchhiking in Holland? Some of you have already been hitchhiking there and if so you will agree that it is easier said than done. Dutch motorists only too ready to give lifts immediately after the war are becoming a little tired of the game.

Autocorrida

A novel version of the story of the bull in a china shop has occurred in Spain.

A brave bull belonging to the Duke of Alba invaded the Madrid-Cadiz highway and attacked a passing automobile as it was speeding southward.

The enraged beast broke the radiator, smashed the headlights, bent the fender and damaged the steering gear so that the car had to be towed away to Jaen.

The toro bravo, which is destined for the arena, came out without a scratch from the contest, but the justice of peace of Villafranca is assessing the damages which the grander will have to pay to the owner of the "vanquished" vehicle.

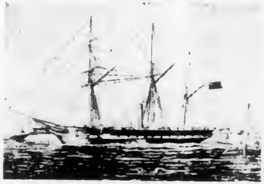
History Books Wrong?



The first steamship to cross the Atlantic, despite what all the history books say, was not the Quebec-built Royal William according to Michael Dwyer 75-year-old former mines minister of Nova Scotia. He says the Royal William claim was amply founded on "negative information" and that the 124-ton steamer Cape Breton slipped into North Sydney, N.S., with British supplies two weeks before the Royal William sailed from Pictou, N.S. on August 18, 1833. Sun-Scorched Afghan Valley Reclaimed by Irrigation

IN sun-seared valleys of a river that never reaches the sea, American dam builders are helping the one time "Secret Kingdom" of Afghanistan reclaim an ancient gardenland.

A huge irrigation project, begun six years ago, is nearing completion along the Helmand River and a tributary the Arghandab, in the barren rocky foothills of southern Afghanistan, the National Geographic Society says.

To aid in settling pastoral families on the newly reclaimed land, a team of American agricultural experts will take part in joint development of the Helmand Valley. The project is sponsored by the forward-looking government of Afghanistan, the United Nations and the Point Four technical assistance program of the United States.

The reclamation project follows guideposts of forgotten [illegible]. Where [illegible] and concrete dams, irrigation canals and ditches appear today, similar systems once watered fertile fields of empires that were old when Darius and Alexander, Genghis Khan and Timur the Lame marched across this battleground of Central Asia.

The Helmand River may once have been the rival of the Nile, the Tigris and the Euphrates as a seat of early civilization. Along its lower course, the ruins of great cities of medieval Islam rise from windblown wastes of the Dasht-i-Margo, the "Desert of Death." There is evidence of cultures far older.

The desert river flows past ruins of irrigation and cultivation reaching back to prehistoric times. What happened in many cases is not known. The river may have shifted its course as countless rivers have done. Diminishing rainfall may have dried wells and subterranean channels. Agricultural peoples may have fled before the legions of conquest.

Today, from mountains to desert the winding streams which feed the Helmand flow through virtually barren hinterland where nomads live in tents of black goat hair and wrest a meager living from the hot, dusty hills.

RIVER DISAPPEARS

Passing through the deserts to the south, the river barely reaches the Iranian border before it disappears. It empties not into the sea but into the great Seistan depression, a little-explored region of reeds and swamps swept by howling winds that blow continuously for months at a time.

Kandahar trading center and way stop on an age-old caravan route to India, is the only major city in the Helmand watershed. Three dams have been built in the Kandahar region, tied together by laterals and interlocking irrigation channels.

Afghanistan is still a land without a railroad but in many ways it is catching up with the centuries in which all foreign influence and progress were rigidly excluded. Today camel transport is giving way to trucks on new highways through the hinterland. Factories are being built and new schools opened. The secret kingdom will be secret no more.

London Buskers Face the Camera

EVERY night in London the playgoers who queue for their seats have already seen an entertainment before they get into the theatre. This is provided by London's buskers, who perform their antics on the pavements and in the gutters to while away the time for those who are waiting for the doors to open. These street entertainers have been a feature of London life for centuries, some of them are old performers on the way down, others young people on the way up. All of them need to possess a considerable amount of vitality and personality to compete with the endless passers-by and the noise of the London traffic to secure their audiences attention.

Buskers are found in many parts of the world and the British ones have a language of their own, a compound of bits of Romany, bits of French, fragments of Italian and army slang, the whole making a multi-colored lingo that is almost totally incomprehensible to outsiders. Although buskers are prominent in London streets, the City of London itself bans them and so do seaside towns like Bournemouth and Eastbourne although Margate and Southend welcome them warmly. Busking is a hard life, especially in the winter when the weather is bad, but there is a cheerful vagabondage about these modern strolling players.

Recently BBC produced a television program called "Meet the Buskers," in which the American film star, Oscar Homolka, went on a tour of London's theatreland and met some of these street entertainers. Before compiling his program BBC invited a number of buskers to the television studios at Alexandra Palace for an audition. From them he picked Desmond McDonald, a bearded actor who recites Shakespearean soliloquies; Saxon the Strong Man who claims to be the only living person able to tear two London telephone directories in half at once; Bottle, a remarkable man who balances on his head on top of a bottle a most difficult and precarious method of earning a living; Trower with his paper tearing act and several others, for London buskers are a versatile crowd and include spoon bashers, singers, dancers, jugglers and a bewildering diversity of entertainers. On the day of the program they were made up, rehearsed all day under the hot glare of the studio lights at Alexandra Palace and then gave their performance. Their corporate verdict was that appearing on television was a much harder and more exhausting job than trekking from one theatre queue to another to earn their bread.

Old Homes and Families

THE Pacific Coast today has left but two "bonanza king" mansions and one of them is in Victoria – Craigdarroch Castle, built by Robert Dunsmuir. The other is the Pacific Union Club in San Francisco – once the home of James Flood.

Both went up in the eighties. Robert Dunsmuir in those days ranked in wealth with Flood, Mark Hopkins, James Fair and Charles Crocker the "bonanza kings" of California who erected their fabulous mansions atop Nob Hill. Only the Flood home remained after the great earthquake and fire of 1906. These men tried to outdo each other in the magnificence of their mansions and perhaps Dunsmuir outdid them all, for his castle was more fabulous than any of the Nob Hill palaces in San Francisco.

COST HALF MILLION

Exact cost of Craigdarroch has never been known, but certainly it must have been well over $500,000. Dunsmuir brought an architect from San Francisco to design it. Apparently he gave no instructions, put no limit on the cost merely told the architect it must look like a castle in Scotland. It stood in a vast estate of woods and formal terraced gardens and a double driveway curved to Fort Street, where the entrance to Joan Crescent and Craigdarroch Road is today. There were massive stone and iron gates. Part of the stone wall with iron palings remains.

It is said that late in 1850 when Dunsmuir wanted to come to the New World his wife was a little hesitant. She had two small daughters (Elizabeth and Agnes) and another child was on the way. Dunsmuir told his wife he couldn't go without her and that if she would come with him he'd make a great fortune.

"I'll build you a castle, darling," it is said he told her. "A real castle, like they have here in Scotland a castle on a hilltop, with a tower. We'll even have a butler and a coachman and you shall be a grand lady, with a maid and we'll have dinner parties with champagne and you shall go to the opera in a carriage and sit in a box and have a tiara of diamonds on your pretty head if only you'll come with me to that new land."

CASTLE OF DREAMS

And so Joan Dunsmuir was persuaded. It was her love for her husband of course, and not the promise of a castle that caused her to leave all she knew and travel a great distance to a wild new land. For years she had no castle and probably didn't think of it for she had a large family, and there were no maids and coachmen the first 25 years on this Island.

The castle of dreams Robert Dunsmuir built for his wife that day so long ago in Scotland became a real castle of marble and stone, precious woods and stained glass. And, as he had said, there was a butler, and there were carriages and diamonds and champagne and knights and their ladies dined and danced in the castle rooms and two of the Dunsmuir daughters married into British nobility.

Joan and Robert Dunsmuir knew toil and plenty of it until he discovered croppings of coal at Departure Bay, near Nanaimo. He sunk a shaft, but did not immediately find the seam. He then began a tedious and wearisome search and at last found it beneath the roots of an upturned tree in dense forest. That was the start of his fortune. Dunsmuir died before he could live in his castle. Shortly after his death his widow moved in, and there she lived 18 years until her death in 1908.

FROM SCOTTISH HOME

But this is getting ahead of this fascinating story. Mrs. Dunsmuir was born Joan Olive White in Ayrshire, Scotland, in 1827. She and Robert Dunsmuir were married in Kilmarnock in 1847. They sailed from home in December of 1850, via Cape Horn, and left the vessel at Fort Vancouver, Wash., in June of 1851. There, the next month was born their first son James later to become Premier and Lieut.-Governor of British Columbia. Seven more children were born to them on Vancouver Island.

ROBERT DUNSMUIR

Craigdarroch Castle

Craigdarroch Castle has four stories and above is the tower lookout, a round chamber, its floor of tiles set with mosaics. It is like the tower from a fairy story and one might well imagine the blushing daughter of a duke of old climbing the grand staircase at dusk and awaiting in the tower the first glimpse of her prince riding to her across the countryside.

SEAT OF LEARNING

Today the castle is headquarters of Victoria School Board. In the faint scent of an age that is dead, in one of this continent's few castles, surrounded by gleaming hardwood and bevel-edged mirrors and all the other elegances that will never come again, the School Board carries on its work-a-day job. Trustees on their way to the board room note the massive hall fireplace, with its scrolled motto, "Welcome ever smiles and farewell goes out sighing." Just above a bronze plaque shows an animals-in-the-forest scene. The secretary has his office in the former library, with its parquet-inlaid floor and fireplace with the Bacon quotation, "Reading Maketh a Full Man," carved into the mahogany. In the double drawing-rooms stenographers work and may look out through huge plate glass windows that touch the floor to the sea and mountains. The board room with its mirrors and carved buffets was once the dining room. No school board in all North America can have so glamorous, so romantic a setting.

ELABORATE WEDDING

Though Joan Dunsmuir lived quietly in her widowhood at the castle her daughters entertained their friends there, and in 1901 was the elaborate wedding of the sixth daughter, Jessie Sophia, to Sir Richard John Musgrave, Bart., of Waterford Ireland. The ceremony was at Christ Church Cathedral and The Colonist reported: "The wedding was the most fashionable and brilliant in Victoria the body of the cathedral was filled with invited guests, while hundreds of ladies and dozens of gentlemen not so highly honored crowded the side seats, the aisles, the churchyard and the streets. Those fortunate in securing outside standing room were forced to content themselves with one short look at the bride as she entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. James Dunsmuir, and another as she emerged upon the arm of her husband, while the bells pealed forth their tumult of silvery music and Mendelssohn's Wedding March echoed from the rafters of the Cathedral.

"The bride the observed of all observers bore herself well, seeming not to feel the rigid scrutiny to which she was being subjected. Her costume was of particular elegance and became her well. The dress was of white and silver brocade, with full court train, brocaded in silver in the pattern of the Prince of Wales crest; veil and trimmings of Honiton lace. The bridal bouquet was of white roses and for ornaments a diamond pin and a diamond and pearl crescent, the latter the gift of the groom. Miss Effie Dunsmuir, Miss Musgrave, Miss Maud Dunsmuir, Miss Lizzie Harvey, Miss Birdie Dunsmuir and Miss F. Ward were the bridesmaids, their costumes being white Charlotte Corday with long sashes and flowers to match. Little Bessie and May Dunsmuir acted as train bearers being followed by the Misses Olive Bryden and E. Dunsmuir, bearing caskets of flowers. Twenty young lady friends and companions of the bride acted as her maids of honor, attired all in simple white."

MRS. ROBERT DUNSMUIR

OTHERS OF FAMILY

After the church service the guests were received at the castle and later in the day Sir Richard and his bride left for the ancestral home of the Musgraves in Ireland. Of the eight daughters of Robert Dunsmuir and his wife but one is living today Mrs. Reginald Chaplin in Ireland. The others, in addition to Lady Musgrave, were Marion Jean (Mrs. Houghton) Mary Jean (Mrs. Henry Croft) Emily (Mrs. H. R. Burroughs also married at the castle), Effie (Lady Gough-Calthorpe), Agnes (Mrs. James Harvey) and Elizabeth (Mrs. John Bryden). There were two sons James and Alexander White, named for his mother's family.

Mrs. Dunsmuir lived to see James serve as Premier and Lieut.-Governor. No other woman in the province's history ever saw her son attain the two highest offices in the province. When he lived at Government House from 1906 to 1909, Mrs. Dunsmuir in her old age often walked through the terraced gardens of her estate and crossed Rockland Avenue to call on him.

A TRUE PIONEER

When she died in October of 1908, in her 82nd year The Colonist recalled her early days in Nanaimo when she was indeed a pioneer and editorially commented: "She was a welcome visitor in every home where there was need of a clear brain, willing hands and a heart full of sympathy. Wealth did not come early to her husband and she knew what it meant to toil early and late for the children who were born to her. Hers was no rose-strewn path but as she trod it she was always sustained by the consciousness that she was doing her best under the circumstances in which Providence had placed her and that best was well done."

Of Mrs. Dunsmuir, historian R. E. Gosnell has said "She was a woman of strong character and vigorous mind, a wide reader, keenly interested in politics and in public events."

After Mrs. Dunsmuir died there was no one in the west with money enough to live in her castle. It was vacant some years, then the property was subdivided and the castle raffled for a dollar. The man who won it couldn't afford to live in it, no one would buy it, soon the city had it for unpaid taxes. In the 1914-18 war it became a soldiers' convalescent hospital and 25 years ago Victoria College. So many students enrolled a few years ago that even the castle's lofty rooms bulged. The College left and the School Board moved in.

EXPERIMENTAL FARM NOTES

Seed Houses Sizing Seeds To Aid Even Distribution

(These notes compiled by the staff of the Dominion Experimental Station at Saanichton)

SIZE of seed is something of only casual interest to the average gardener, but it is a highly important consideration to a large scale vegetable grower. Take growers in California or Arizona, for example who may be planting several hundred or a thousand acres of carrots each season. Seed size variation in such acres will cause big differences in density of plants, and where there is a thick stand of plants there will be a greater thinning expense. To offset this, seed companies have offered to grade the seed into two or three sizes. When the seed is labelled as to size, the farmer is then able to set his planter so as to space it more uniformly. Another way of improving the spacing is by the use of coated or pelleted seeds. Such seeds are spherical, and being alike in shape and size, regardless of the shape or size of such within the pellet, they can be sown uniformly by planters.

FOR APPLE TREES

To keep apple trees healthy and free from anthracnose it is important to spray with Bordeaux before fall rains begin. This disease is prevalent over this whole coastal area and causes cankers on the wood. The dead bark hangs loosely over the wound or drops off in the course of a year or two. The smaller cankered branches should be pruned out completely and burned. Pruning out infected wood will give rise to new growth. This new wood should be protected from infection by spraying with Bordeaux. Old apple trees are always a source of infection. If a tree is worth planting and growing it is worth keeping healthy.

BULB FERTILIZER

In applying fertilizer to your bulb garden this fall remember to mix the fertilizer thoroughly with the soil before placing the bulbs. This will prevent burning of the roots, which do not like to come in direct contact with the fertilizer. A good practice is to remove the top soil to the depth the bulbs are to be planted and then scatter in the fertilizer and rake it in. Put the bulbs in position then replace the top soil. The fertilizer recommended is 8-10-5. Use at the rate of 2 pounds per 100 square feet. Another method of applying fertilizer if the bulbs are planted in raised beds (a necessary procedure if the soil is inclined to be poorly drained), is to plant the bulbs first on ground level and give a preliminary covering of 1½ to 2 inches with soil taken from the paths or sides of the beds. Following this apply the fertilizer broadcast and then give the final covering by taking more soil from the paths.

Pesticides Must Be Improved

From time to time a Canadian importer becomes interested in some new insecticide material and its distribution in Canada without sufficient preliminary study and investigation.

All insecticides, and other pesticides, sold or offered for sale in Canada, are required to be registered under the Pest Control Products Act administered by the plant products division, department of agriculture, Ottawa. Officials of that division point out that not all of the products submitted for registration are acceptable, because of lack of effectiveness or due to danger to human health in the handling and applications, or for both these reasons.

Before commitments are made in connection with any of these newer materials or new methods of application, prospective distributors should make inquiry of the plant products division, Ottawa, as to whether the product has been accepted for registration and if the recommended method of use is also acceptable.

Lily of the Valley should be more generally used and appreciated than it is. For naturalizing, they give a good show of foliage for a long period of summer and early spring and of course, their white nodding fragrant flowers have been the joy of poets for centuries. For forcing, they are considered the easiest of all flowers and can be brought into bloom in but a few weeks. They are available 12 months of the year because they lend themselves to be kept in storage. A pot of Lily of the Valley is an attractive centrepiece and adds to a home garden arrangement.

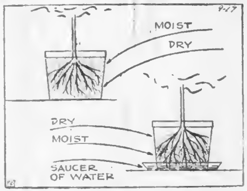
What's in a Sunflower?

Those who are familiar with the use of sunflower oil in salad dressings will not readily exchange its delicacy of flavor and keeping quality for those of many other vegetable oils. In addition to being an important source of vegetable oil, the sunflower plants may also provide our food processing industry with its entire pectin requirement, if the research work carried out by Dr. A. L. Shewfelt of the federal department of agriculture station at Morden, Manitoba, meets with complete success.

Pectin is a chemical substance which has jellying properties. For this reason it is used in the preparation of jams and jellies, certain types of candies, bakery products, thickening agents in various food products, certain pharmaceuticals, penicillin emulsions, and even blood plasma substitutes. The waste seed-heads of the sunflower plant have been shown to contain about 16 per cent pectin.

The main problem with sunflower pectin, according to Dr. Shewfelt, is that it develops its maximum jellying strength under somewhat higher acid conditions than those encountered in jams and jellies. Once this problem is overcome sunflower cultivation in Canada will become even more attractive than it is today. As it is, Canada ranks with Chile as the two major sunflower growing countries in the western hemisphere.

The compartively recent development in Canada of the Advance sunflower variety, yielding 700 to 900 lb. seed per acre with an oil content of about 50 per cent, first brought full recognition of the potential importance of the crops to the Canadian economy. However in 1948 a rust epidemic hit the Advance sunflower, and scientists are now hard at work to perfect a rust resistant sunflower variety. This work has already progressed to the point where rust resistance has been established in a new variety, but further backcrossing remains to be done to improve yields and quality.



Ways To Water House Plants

BY DEAN HALLIDAY

WHEN a new house plant is acquired, the first question often is, "How much water does this plant need?"

There is no one answer, for the amount of water needed by any plant depends on various factors.

The only safe rule is to give the plant water when it needs it, and that must be determined by the one who cares for the plant by routine inspection of the soil and pot. For most plants the soil should be kept moist but not soggy. Many plant lovers water their plants too often.

Whether you water plants from the top or from the bottom, do a thorough job. An occasional sprinkle of water on a house plant is as bad as occasional and superficial sprinkling of a lawn.

The accompanying Garden Graph shows a plant that has been watered from the top, but obviously not sufficiently. The top half of the soil is moist as indicated, but the young rootlets at the bottom of the pot are still thirsty.

A plant watered from the bottom also is shown. Again not enough water has been given to the plant with the result that while the bottom half of the soil is moist the top half is dry.

The amount of water needed by any plant is regulated not only by the actual needs of that particular kind, but by the weather, the season and the environment which of course includes house temperature during the winter.

Note, however, that when a plant is making little or no growth as with many house plants during the winter it needs much less water than when it resumes vigorous, seasonal growth.

Filling Earth Over Tree Root

When grading lines and levels are changed on home grounds or in the garden, the question often is asked, "How much fill dirt can be put on the roots of a shrub or tree without doing harm to the plant?" Some plants stand for a lot of punishment and still grow. It all depends upon the variety of plant.

As a general rule, however, if fill over the roots is less than 12 inches, the tree can be treated by putting a layer of coarse gravel over the roots. Over this can then be placed top-soil in which to grow grass.

An elm tree will stand quite a bit of abuse, if gravel is used give it a breathing space. If a dry well of stones is made around the trunk, several feet of fill can be added, usually without serious results to the tree.

On the other hand, trees like the beech will not stand for any fill earth. If some of their surface roots are not exposed so that they can send up sprouts, they very quickly die. And birches, like beeches, do not like to have their roots buried.

Hard and soft maples do not mind a slight fill, but oaks prefer to keep their own surface of ground. Fill can be made on their roots, but they need a thick layer of stones or coarse gravel to permit air and water to circulate if surface soil is to be added.

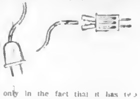
Most shrubs, if planted too deep or if fill dirt is added, will overcome the difficulty by making a completely new set of roots.

Mister Fix It

By DOUGLAS TUOMEY

Almost everybody will agree that putting a new plug on the end of a lamp cord or other electrical device is an annoying job. It is necessary to strip the wires and twist the small copper wires carefully, then try to get them under the small set screws which hold them in place and then assemble the plug properly. It is not usually a welcome job but it will cost you a dollar or two to have it done in an electrical shop.

Recently a new invention, one of the many clever gadgets which are appearing so often, makes the replacing of a plug a matter of exactly one minute (20 seconds if you want to rush) and costs you 15 cents in most stores. It is undoubtedly one of the smartest things we have seen in years, and actually is a pleasure to use. This plug is about the same size as any other standard plug, and differs only in the fact that it has two jaws as illustrated, which are grooved out so that the wire lies in the grooves and when the jaws are squeezed together, small teeth along their edge pierce the insulation of the wire and make the connection for you. The closed jaws are then pushed back into the body of the plug and the result is a firm correct connection.



You do not have to strip the wire or go to any other pains to prepare it. You simply cut the wire right through and lay it in the groove and snap the jaws together. This works on standard number 18 parallel cord which is generally used today for lamp cords. The plug is made by Leviton Mfg. Company of Brooklyn, N.Y., and is known as the 1-2-3 cap. If you have lamps lying around that need new cord plugs, here is the answer.

HARBOR LIGHTS

By RAY WORMALD

When Boris Cecil Peetz arrived in Victoria about 41 years ago he immediately became interested in sport fishing as a hobby. He fished often, with good luck, and all the while he gave more than ordinary thought and study to various types of lures he used. He experimented with fishing spoons and other forms of artificial baits, using a great variety of materials, shapes, designs and colors. It became a fascinating hobby and one he ultimately developed into a thriving business for himself and his family.

* * *

Born in Russia in 1883, Boris was in his early 'teens when he reached England. During the 11 years spent in the Old Country he continued with his schooling and later worked in a silversmith plant. He was to keep busy in that field for many years.

B. C. PEETZ

* * *

Coming to Canada 42 years ago, Boris made Montreal his first home in his newly adopted homeland. He commenced working in the silversmith department of the C.P.R. There for some time before starting a series of moves all westward—which ultimately brought him to Vancouver then Victoria. In each city he carried on with his silversmith work.

* * *

"Along with many others, the silversmith industry has passed from the hands of man into the complexities of machines . . . it is a dying art from a manual point of view," he remarked. He is also a fully qualified jewelry repair craftsman.

Upon arriving in this city Boris first worked in the jewelry repair shop of the former Redfern jewelry store later becoming associated with the Wenger's firm.

"Then the depression set in and I started my own business . . . repairing jewelry and doing a considerable amount of silversmith work."

* * *

Soon after his arrival here, Boris went fishing. And from that day to this his interests have been directed to that field. About 25 years ago he opened a small shop at premises now known as 571 Johnson Street. The business is still there. "It's a family affair," he says, and points with unconcealed pride to various departments which are in charge of his sons Ivan and Bud and his daughter Judy.

* * *

It's a comparatively small shop, but one that is fitted with fascination for the visiting sports fishermen. Fishing rods and reels, spoons and plugs, bamboo poles, cartons of swivels . . . and a host of other pieces of gear the fisherman seeks for his tackle box. And there are lures and other equipment which Boris and his sons and daughter have "invented" and improved to a stage where they are now almost household words with the sports fishing fraternity of this area.

* * *

Boris, who resides at 902 Island Road, lists his business, boating and fishing as his hobbies. He owns the 26-foot cruiser Seafarer II, a familiar sight in local waters. He is a member of several sports fishing organizations, including the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and the Oak Bay Salmon Club.

"Funny thing, though," he recalls with a smile, "I always seem to have good luck except when I'm trying to outwit the fish in a derby."

From My Organ Loft

—BY—GRAHAM STEED

THIS week I intend to continue the account which I began recently of the amazing revitalization of British musical activity which dates from the commencement of the present century. In an earlier article I indicated how Britain had sold her musical birthright and squandered her substance, perhaps not in riotous living, but in an orgy of misdirected charity towards musicians from continental Europe. There was no lack of interest in music in Britain in the last decade of the nineteenth century, and many fine concerts were to be heard in London and the provinces. The orchestra founded by Sir Charles Halle in Manchester was more than a match for any of the then functioning London orchestras, and there were several opportunities of comparing the playing of the English musicians with that of visiting orchestras from Germany and France.

* * *

Bernard Shaw established himself as the musical watchdog of London in the eighteen-nineties, and as he was an ardent Wagnerite, and made several visits to Bayreuth, he was in the very forefront of the movement for the propagation of the new developments in music which were initiated by that most revolutionary composer. Alongside of the tremendous creative ability of Wagner and the other world figures of that day such as Brahms, Tchaikowsky and Dvorak, the miserably insignificant contributions of native British composers must have occasioned something little short of despair in the minds of responsible and knowledgeable music lovers in the British Isles, for the Parry-Mackenzie-Stanford triumvirate seem to have been blithely unconscious of anything which had happened in musical composition since the death of Beethoven. Parry undoubtedly had greater gifts as a composer than either of the other two, but while I would hesitate to say that his idiom was a forced manner of speech, I do not believe that his music bears the stamp of inevitability which characterizes that of all the greater classical and romantic composers. Scholes, not unkindly, says that his list of compositions is very varied and regrettably long, and I would add that the dignity of knighthood which has been bestowed on so many English musicians (provided they were Doctors of Music in good standing and not unduly addicted to any of the more shocking forms of vice, such as being a disciple of Wagner or worse still of Nietzsche) has been apt to invest them with a halo of musical sanctity which they seldom deserve, and which, in the case of Elgar and Bax, is doubly unfortunate, for here we have two men who really can compose, and have no need of official patronage of any kind to enhance their reputations in their chosen fields of service.

* * *

Elgar's knighthood was, I suppose, a foregone conclusion, if there is any truth in the following story of his schooldays. "What is your name?" his teacher asked him. "Edward Elgar," he replied, and was duly admonished "You must always say 'Sir' when you speak to me. Now tell me again, what is your name?" "Sir Edward Elgar" was the meek and prophetic reply of the eight-year-old pupil. He was the son of an organist and a music-seller and in his childhood was surrounded by musical activities on all sides. He became an extremely able violinist, and at one time thought to make his mark as a performer. He could also play piano, cello, double-bass, bassoon and trombone, which were invaluable accomplishments both for a conductor and a composer. For some years he was the bandmaster on the staff of a lunatic asylum, a position which conjures up some curious pictures. In his middle thirties his compositions began to attract attention: they were chiefly of the choral-orchestral type demanded by festival committees and it is miraculous that with the huge agglomeration of festival choir fodder already so untiringly provided by Parry & Co. and their predecessors, this new composer did not fall into the same rut. Perhaps it was his Roman Catholicism which saved him from this fate, or maybe it was his acute sense of pageantry coupled with an unusual religious mysticism, nevertheless there was a new quality about his work which began to crystallize as the embodiment of the English spirit, for he was a man of the countryside, passionately devoted to his native soil and to the joys of country life. Elgar without his dogs and his horses and his chemistry experiments would not have been Elgar as we now revere him and he was, surprisingly enough, tremendously critical of what he put forth. There are those who dislike his Pomp and Circumstance and others who sneer at his lesser, his drawing room, compositions, but everything that he published has the same quality of immaculate artistry and fastidious grooming which is so rarely met except amongst the works of the very great masters.

* * *

When he was 42, in 1899, his "Enigma Variations," a collection of musical portraits of his friends, placed him, as Scholes says, at a bound in the very front rank, and thereafter until his death in 1934 a number of immensely noble compositions came from his pen. There are only two symphonies, two concertos, three great oratorios and his great symphonic study "Falstaff" which are on the truly heroic scale, but there is a mass of songs and chamber music which is all of a very high order indeed. Elgar needs nobody as an apologist: he merely needs to be played. Not to have played him is not to know him, and not to know him is to miss the company of a truly great musician.

Movie Influence on Natives

THE cultural impact of the movies which were shipped to the Pacific during Second World War to be shown to General Douglas McArthur's troops, then were sold as war surplus to enterprising South Sea Island businessmen, still is being felt in the Tonga Islands. A few years ago the showing of old newsreels featuring Adolf Hitler and General Charles De Gaulle had produced a minor civil war on Puka-Puka Island, splitting the turbulent natives into two camps: the "Nazis" and the "French" respectively led by a dusky Fuehrer and a kepi-capped 'general.' A third faction composed of western movie fans and led by a Polynesian "Gene Autry" with pistol, guitar, sombrero and all kept a watchful neutrality.

Now it seems it is the turn of the gangster films to bring violence to the sleepy Tonga Archipelago, this time on Nukualofa Island, where a crop of scarfaces, public enemy number ones, Al Capones and Dillingers has suddenly appeared among the village urchins, causing an alarming increase in lawbreaking and forcing the British authorities to enlarge the local police force.

The Man of the Week

Harold Lees: Perfection in Confections

VETERAN candy-maker Harold Arthur Lees is a small, dry Yorkshireman who can seldom be found at home. He passes through his house now and then on his way to a Legion or a Cosmopolitan Club meeting. He would like to spend some time gardening or fishing, but if he isn't at a club function he is either in his workshop concocting some new sweet or passing the time of day with one of the many tourists who visit his store.

He was born in 1892 at Elland, Yorkshire, where his parents established a well-known toffee manufacturing business. Confectionery has been the family business for 60 years. Headquarters have shifted twice from England to Alberta to Victoria.

SECRET RECIPES

In 1898 his family decided to branch out the business into Lancashire. Harold got most of his education in Burnley, and at the age of six began to help sell toffees in spare time, either at the store or at the family's stall in Burnley Market. Two ladies now living in Victoria were customers at the original store.

Through the influence of his elder brother, then a pharmacist's apprentice, Mr. Lees himself took up an apprenticeship in pharmacy instead of stepping straight into the family business. Some years later the brother entered the Methodist church, took an appointment in Saskatchewan, and persuaded the whole family to follow him west. Rev. M. W. Lees, Harold Lees' only brother, is now minister of Ladysmith United Church.

SPECIAL LABELS

The chemist's shop where Harold Lees served his apprenticeship had a wine and spirit department. Harold worked in there as well as on the medical side. Some customers were never satisfied with the regular brands of liquor, and kept asking for something special. After some consideration the clerks would give way and hand over an ancient-looking bottle with a special label at a premium price.

The bottle was actually one of the regular brands with a home-printed label pasted over it, but the customers, especially those who bought liquor only at Christmas, went away perfectly happy, imagining themselves to be among the favored few.

Harold dared to question the boss on this trick, hinting that it was dishonest. Not so, said the boss. The customers got their money's worth in mental satisfaction, and their palates never knew the difference. Harold obeyed orders, but he didn't use this principle when he came to own a business himself.

TRICKS AND THINGS

The shop cut its own spirits in liquor control board style, only with less water. Employees, including Harold, sometimes became drunk on the smell of spirits, without touching a drop. This may be one reason why Harold drinks little and seldom now. Neither does he smoke. He gave up smoking years ago, and even in his tobacco-stained days he never smoked in a store—it looks bad in front of the customers, he says.

A favorite apprentice trick in Harold Lees' youth was to hook a hose to a tap and shower water down on a street band playing below. Another was dropping corks on the bass drum.

Those were the days when pills were rolled by hand and toffees sold at the equivalent of about eight cents a pound (50 to 60 cents now).

Having completed his apprenticeship and become a journeyman pharmacist, he said goodbye to the pillbox and went back into the toffee business, in partnership with his parents.

MOVE TO CANADA

In 1913 the family sold out, emigrated to Canada and formed the Alberta Candy Co. at Medicine Hat.

Harold served overseas as a medical sergeant in the 1914-18 war. Many of the veterans of the Alberta battalions now living in Victoria were inoculated and vaccinated by the Yorkshire candy-maker.

Mr. Lees was married in Brighton in 1917. The Lees' now have three children: Winifred, a member of the superannuation branch staff of the provincial government, is very active in Cub work. Arthur, a Royal Canadian Air Force veteran, is a draughtsman with the water rights department of the provincial government and active in the Y's Men's Club. Joan, attending Victoria High School, is a keen Girl Guide. She was presented with the gold cord by Lady Baden-Powell during the Chief's Guide's last visit to Victoria.

In 1926 Mr. Lees came to the Pacific coast for his health and worked in Vancouver for several firms, including a coal company and a wholesale house. Three years later he moved to Victoria and set up in the candy business.

SAMPLES HIS OWN

He samples his own wares all the time, not merely because he has to judge their quality, but because he has a sweet tooth. He makes the centres for his chocolates and entrusts the dipping to skilled assistants who work with their hands, folding the cores in succulent liquid chocolate and laying them to dry on a marble or stainless steel slab.

In the old days the slab on which the chocolates lie were often made of slate. Today they are usually marble or stainless steel. Old-time cast iron pots have given way to stainless steel or copper.

Not every chocolate-eater knows that the squiggle on top of a chocolate is always in the form of a letter which indicates what kind of centre the chocolate has. A for almond, for instance.

COMMUNITY WORK

Harold Lees is immediate past president of Pro Patria branch of the Canadian Legion, having served several years on the executive council. He is also a delegate to the Victoria and district zone council. In 1948 he was acclaimed second vice-president of the branch. In the following year he moved up to first vice-president, and in 1950 the unanimous wish of his branch made it a "hat trick" for Harold by electing him president, a post he held for two years. For three years in a row he was unopposed at branch elections.

He is also a charter member of the Cosmopolitan Club of Victoria and a member of the board of managers. Last year he was vice-president.

Organizations to which he belongs look upon Harold as a useful and conscientious member. He is especially handy at organizing and catering for picnics and children's parties. He usually throws in a prize of his own for the best-looking baby or the oldest grandmother.

The usual tone of his conversation is bantering, and he tells funny stories with the persistence of the Ancient Mariner. His accent mingles Lancashire, Yorkshire and Canadian. His kindly-uncle manner, and his heavy kidding, appeal especially to women. He can usually persuade the ladies' auxiliary to come through with a few extra sandwiches, for instance.

One of his greatest pleasures is meeting tourists in his store. He often acts as a kind of unofficial shopping guide, pointing out good stores to visiting firemen. Some tourists come back to see him every year. He usually has a new story to tell them.

MISOGYNISTS

At a writers' gathering in Paris guests were requested to submit the best definition of a woman.

One quoted Alexandre Dumas: "The last thing God created. He must have done it on a Saturday; one can sense his tiredness on the job."

"The woman and the man," Emile Zola is supposed to have said, "go together as the chain and ball."

"The woman," an unknown person was quoted as saying, "is heaven for the eyes, hell for the soul and purgatory for the purse."

Another unknown misogynist emitted the following thought:

SEEING IS BELIEVING

A candidate to the French parliament had been campaigning on the Riviera and, after "doing" Nice, Villefranche and other seashore localities, came up to the mountain village of Peira-Cava, where he went to talk to an old peasant. After 10 minutes' dialogue the aged countryman said:

"Non, monsieur, decidedly I shall vote for the other candidate."

The politician, taken aback, objected. "I can't understand you, my friend. You haven't even seen my opponent."

FAMOUS WOMEN SPIES

By KURT SINGER

Helen Benton, Spy for Reds Won Her Way to Freedom

She Was Boston-Bred of Independent Means—First She Saw the Working of the Communist Party, Joined the Paymaster, Loved a French Official and Then Went to England—Scotland Yard Ended Her Activity—Helen Is Still Wanted

NEW YORK, spring, 1950. Paul Anderson gave his desk drawer a contemptuous kick. A heck of a way to complete a Communist mission, he thought—clean up your desk and scram quietly, vanish into oblivion.

Important as his white-collar propaganda job might be, he had never liked it. An advertising salesman; a huckster—lowest of the low, he hated this dry sit-down propaganda work. But it sure had been a cushy deal. Nobody had ever suspected him or Helen in this citadel of free enterprise. Not a soul had guessed that some $100,000 a year in advertising might be poured from his office into newspapers and magazines in return for a hand in their editorial policy. The Amerasia deal, however, was still not forgotten; there they were almost caught.

THE PAYMASTER

Paul Anderson had done a good job, and it was more than influencing the American press. He had been the paymaster of all Cominform funds in the United States. He and Helen had taken care of those funds and they were put into action in the Western Hemisphere.

Helen had already left. He was tired and fed up. He'd go underground for a nice long rest—underground to Moscow. Would he meet Helen there? Perhaps.

Life was not always easy with Helen Benton. Now she was back in Paris, her native haunt. She exhibited the good breeding inherent in both the Benton family tradition and its Boston upbringing. He had always admired that quality. He had been attracted to her from the beginning, when they first met some 15 years before.

FIRST MEETING

It was at Camp Jefferson, in New Jersey. He was conducting classes on Marxism, one of the chief pastimes at the resort which the Communist Party ran for the instruction and entertainment of members and sympathizers. As one of his students, Helen had distinguished herself by asking questions. Not critical or belligerent questions; you could see she was examining the whole problem thoughtfully, logically, from every angle. He was stimulated by her questioning into delivering some of his most potent speeches. He liked her approach, he liked her voice, and she was beautiful in a small, cold, exciting way.

Intrigued and curious, he took to questioning her. What was she doing here? Was she a spy? What did she hope to get out of it? She was obviously not a worker with a grievance. Her slender hands showed no trace of any kind of labor. She didn't look like a teacher; she was not positive enough for that. She was beyond the age of a student, and she didn't appear to belong to the Communist Party.

CAMP DISGUST

She had come, she told him, to pick up the fragments of her meaningless life. What was the next step? Paul knew and he taught her. They were together all that summer, studying dialectics and Communist tactics by day and love by night, as was the custom in the "camp." Together they listened to Earl Browder and Howard Fast and the other visiting lecturers, he interpreting, she questioning—and by and by coming around. The rank and file of the campers disgusted her; she found them unwashed and obscene. She was still a liberal bourgeois. But she came around there, too, at least part way. Already she had become accustomed to the nudist bathing common in that New Jersey abode and rather enjoyed it.

She liked the night hikes, the armed manoeuvres. Paul Anderson, then the military leader of America's Communist Party, taught her the role in the field of Communist espionage.

PARIS INTERLUDE

Next we find her in France—a woman spy had been born. Paul was forgotten. A married man dominated in her life now. He was an important figure in the French government of 1940. He could not risk his career for a divorce. She was still in love with him when the open war came to France, so she stayed in Paris. She could pass for a native, and he was able to get her papers. France and her suffering she regarded as her own, and her success as a woman and a hostess could be put to service for "freedom" and Communist liberation. Her house became a refuge not only for her old friends but for workers in the Communist underground. And then the man she loved turned pro-Vichy. She continued to work quietly and effectively to oppose all he stood for, not out of vengeance but out of belief.

Then one day in January, 1944, a tired-looking woman of 45 walked up the steps of the American Embassy in Madrid. She was ill and dirty.

The officials of the embassy, accustomed to receiving refugees, conducted their routine investigation. Helen Benton presented her American passport issued by the U.S. Embassy in Paris a few years before. The rest of the formalities were temporarily waived, for Helen was on the point of collapse and ravenously hungry. When she had eaten and rested she told the familiar story of escape across occupied France aided by the underground and friendly French farmers.

Her background, however, was unusual. Most of the visitors to the American Embassy were airmen and escaped prisoners of war. Helen had come from the German detention camp in St. Denis on the outskirts of Paris.

ACROSS CHANNEL

Beneath her travel-stained exterior it was obvious to the officials that Helen had New England culture and breeding. She cited officers on the French general staff, members of the Maquis, well-known actors, writers and artists who had been her friends in Paris and New York. By this time interrogation had become a friendly conversation. Helen became a guest of the embassy. They loaned her money until her own would arrive from Boston. A week later she was put on a plane at Lisbon and arrived in Britain at the end of January, 1944.

It was a French Communist boss and her ex-lover Paul Anderson who planted her in Britain. There she would be able to transmit information to the Soviets through a channel so far almost entirely unexploited—the mailbags which were dispatched from the British Red Cross to Geneva and from there through the International Red Cross to Soviet territory and occupied countries.

THE OLD SYSTEM

The Communists who wanted to seize power in liberated France explained the mission to Helen in detail. She was instructed to write in invisible ink on harmless letters addressed to her former fellow-inmates of the St. Denis camp who had ways of forwarding the message to French Communist Intelligence headquarters. She was given the names of certain detainees. This was the plan, and it all turned on being able to get Helen to Britain in the guise of a genuine American repatriate and in good time for her to spy on the western preparations for the liberation of Europe.

The Soviets counted on the fact that Helen was a woman of poor health and that she would certainly be assisted by the U.S. and British embassies in Madrid.

After a security examination in London, Helen was, ostensibly, left alone. She took lodgings in the suburbs and lived modestly on the income available from her American holdings, the Soviet Secret Service making payments to her account in Boston. Unobtrusively, Scotland Yard subjected her to occasional supervision. The reports indicated that she lived quietly, studying, rarely leaving her room.

LOT OF LETTERS

But she had only one unusual habit—writing a profuse number of letters day after day. Her enthusiasm for correspondence with friends in Boston, New York and internees at St. Denis was the first thing to attract the attention of the special branch. From experience they were rather skeptical about the view that this was merely a gesture from a kindly, lonely spinster. Consequently, the letters were intercepted and decoded. They never reached their destination. One day two Scotland Yard men visited Helen Benton and bluntly told her that her code messages were known. Indignantly, she denied everything. She declared someone must have been tampering with the paper she used. Her room was searched but the detectives failed to discover any chemical or utensil in which she might have prepared the secret ink she used. Although they were convinced of her guilt there would have to be more direct evidence to put before a judge and jury.

Helen Benton was deported to her native America. She was wearing dark shell-rimmed glasses when she arrived in New York. Paul Anderson was waiting at the pier.

"Forgive me," she said. "I'm afraid I'm growing ancient. I must wear these glasses now for studying."

"You'll never be old and you'll never change, Helen," he said. "Even comes the revolution."

Paul and Helen are still wanted by 15 countries—two Soviet spies who won.

"King George V," the official biography by Harold Nicolson is reported enjoying heavy sales in Great Britain with the first printing sold out in two weeks.

It will be published in Canada shortly by Longmans, Green.

Mr Nicolson was invited to undertake the biography in 1948 and was given unrestricted access to the Royal Archives at Windsor.

From these sources and from his own first-hand knowledge of most of the people and events he describes, he has turned out a full-length portrait of one of England's best-loved monarchs and a vivid picture of the times, according to publishers.

Sir Philip Gibbs who was knighted as a reporter in the First World War, has published a new book "The Journalist's London," about newspapers and their proprietors, according to Canadian Press.

He traces the history of newspapers back to the earliest broadsheets and tells how taxation suffocated the small papers financially and raised the prices of more substantial publications.

Sir Philip, who worked on the Daily Express, has some colorful comment on Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born publisher of the Express.

Of Beaverbrook's work as wartime minister of aircraft production, Sir Philip says he was "a terror on the telephone ... a totalitarian dictator to his staff."

Speaking of Beaverbrook's desire for peace, Sir Philip writes "It is still a pity that Lord Beaverbrook's optimism and his hatred of war's insanity could not prevail over Adolf Hitler."

The talks, which began last Sunday, will be heard each Sunday morning at 9.15.

Today Mr Highet was scheduled to speak on "The Making of Literature" answering such questions as "How do books get written?" "Where did Coleridge, James and others get their ideas and inspirations."

Subsequent broadcasts will deal with the art of translation, Oxford University and its press, art books, the criticism of Edmund Wilson, Christopher Fry, who he describes as the most talked-about playwright of the year, prison books, Sir William Osler, satire history nonsense and Dickens.

DR. NORMAN BETHUNE

Irresistible Cartoon Wit From Punch

"The Best Cartoons From Punch," collected and edited by Marvin Rosenberg and William Cole (Musson).

In an urbane foreword by A. P. Herbert, that noted wit tells of being pressed for an opinion, every time he comes to the United States or Canada, on the difference between English and American or Canadian humor.

PROVES SHOCK

"I always answer 'There isn't any!' which shocks them, I know not why," Mr. Herbert writes.

This book of famous Punch cartoons, collected especially for North Americans, underlines Mr Herbert's premise.

The series starts off with cartoons grouped under brief headings to prove that Great Britain laughs at the same things as we do.

Then they introduce some of the cream of the Punch crop of cartoonists: Emett, Sprod, Anton, Geo. M. Andre Francois, Hollowood, Froilk Taylor, ffolkes, Brockbank, Ionicus, Starke and a few others to acquaint readers unfamiliar with Punch, with the style of work associated with each.

LAUGHS ASSURED

There are about 250 cartoons here most of which will draw a laugh from any reasonably jolly reader and some of which will force a smile to the lips of even those readers who open the book determined that nothing Punch thinks is funny could amuse them.

It's impossible to describe cartoons, especially the uncaptioned ones Punch specializes in.

It's enough to say they cover a wide range and most of them have been screened so that you don't have to be up on last week's news from Britain to appreciate them.

INTERNATIONAL

And for those who think that the British laugh at one thing and Canadians and Americans at another, there are scores of cartoons here that might have appeared in the pages of any good United States publication as well as those that are typically British.

This book should be the answer to those readers who might, like W. S. Gilbert, have asked Sir Francis Burnand, once editor of Punch, if many jokes were sent in.

"Hundreds," Sir Francis replied.

"Why don't you print some of them," was Gilbert's rejoinder.

And to that other type of critic who laments that "Punch is not as good as it was," Sir Francis answered "It never was."

But Sir Francis was wrong. Punch, as reflected in this collection is better than ever.

"The Scalpel, the Sword," by Ted Allan and Sydney Gordon (McClelland & Stewart).

In its pacing, its language and its choice of subject, "The Scalpel the Sword," is excellent.

He amassed and spent fortunes, yet had a genuine love for the poor and the downtrodden. He was a man of the highest principles, yet he became a Communist.

Dying of tuberculosis, he not only saved himself by studying new techniques, but he went on to become one of the world's authorities on the disease. When he didn't like a surgical instrument he invented a new one, and many of his designs are in use today.

He gave up a highly lucrative practice to help the Loyalists in the war in Spain and gave the first blood transfusions on any battlefield. Then he went to China to serve with the Communists, and there he died, of septicemia, the result of operating without rubber gloves and a lack of proper drugs for treatment.

That is the story told with skillful and dramatic narrative. Yet back of the lines you spot a slick sale of the Communist wares.

The story itself, however, is well worth reading for a vivid tale of one of Canadian history's most fascinating figures. J.S.

Lavishly Illustrated Issues Give Royal News, History

"The Royal Line of Succession," by P. W. Montague-Smith; "All The Queen's Horses," by staff of The Daily Graphic; "Queen Mary," by Marguerite D. Peacocke (Ambassador).

Anyone who likes history, both contemporary and ancient, lavishly illustrated and inexpensively produced, will like these issues in the growing Pitkin Pictorial series of booklets.

Mr Montague Smith, assistant editor of Debrett's, traces Queen Elizabeth's family tree back 1,500 years to the Saxon invader King Cerdic in direct line through William the Conqueror. Both the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are descended also from Astrid sister of the mighty Canute.

The other booklets tell the interesting story of the Queen's ceremonial and racing stables and the story of the Queen Mother and her life.

Noble Doctor Like Kildare

Dr. Phil Scoles, its hero, is just about everything overly romantic women think of when they think of a doctor. Unfortunately, he is not in the slightest true to life.

The author has thrown in not two but three women. They all wanted the doctor and he is noble throughout it all. The trouble is that he is just too good to be true.

Knitted Headgear Styled In Many Shapes and Color

BY MARIAN BAHL.

THE knitted hat takes on a refreshing change this fall with new textures and a wonderful variety of shapes to make them really important. The big stride away from the perennial chorneted cloche is seen in fez and turban-like shapes that completely cover your hair and the beret or stocking-like cap that can be jauntily draped to wear to the side or front as you wish.

Texture goes to your head in a most delightful assortment of yarns stitches and shapes used knowingly to creat different effects. Kitten-soft yarns fuzz out to blur the silhouette; others are closely woven and look as if sheared just like your chenille bedspread. Other yarns are worked to show imaginative stitches that pop, take the form of little shells or have pebbly or nubby surfaces.

FOR ALL OCCASIONS

These hats which are simply wonderful for town and country wear, pack up to nothing for travel. Designed to make the most of a short silhouette, they are very chic when worn with all hair tucked underneath. Big important earrings are the final touch! For the pony tail which would have no place to go there's the little cap with a convenient opening in the back.

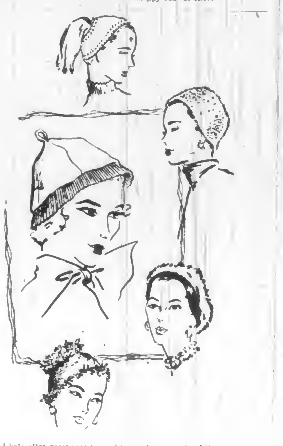
Knitted touches cleverly combine with suede this fall and the result is a surprisingly feminine duo. These too, are excellent with your tweeds and even with some of the more casual clothes for town wear.

Trimmings when used are subtle with jet and pearls on the fussier little angora caps. Tiny colored beads may be used to decorate the hat of firm yarn and then they are often in a deeper shade of the same color.

IN MANY COLORS

Colors include all the wonderful greys to match these basic shades in your wardrobe, a good variety of warm lighter browns with cinnamon tones looking very warm and appealing. There are the bright greens and plenty of deep reds for deep reds for strong color accents. Black alone or mixed with white or white alone are sure to flatter many complexions this winter.

Choose your knitted hats to compliment the texture of the costume with which they are to be worn. For example, the shaggy hat is right with firm tweeds or smooth flannels; while the flat or pebbly yarn hat is at its best with the shaggy coat of fleece.



Knitted hats offer great variety in shape and texture this fall and winter and a good representative group are the Madcaps shown here. Beginning at the top is the soft black angora cap with opening for your pony tail. Jet or pearls outline its edges. (Of course, the same cap may be worn without the pony tail!) Next below is the new fez-like shape that completely covers your hair. It is in a clipped wool that gives the effect of chenille work. Below at right is the angora shower cap in green angora with black velvet cuff. Bottom left is the green Topknot with loops at top and face edge tipped with tiny white beads. The large head at centre shows the knitted touch on suede in a warm cinnamon shade with little loop at top.

Reversible Coats for Eye Appeal

Reversible fashions provide an about-face that fools the eye and helps to satisfy that very feminine desire for a larger wardrobe. This fall and winter they are an accepted fashion encompassing separates and a few accessories, but perhaps they realize their utmost charm in coats that may be worn with either side showing.

Because the reversible coat must be cut expertly, they all are extremely attractive. Easy, casual lines dominate these coats with smooth fitting shoulder lines, trim necklines and collars. Sleeves are generally loose and long enough to turn back and show contrasting cuffs formed by the second fabric or color.

VELVET OR FUR

Texture interest, which continues to hold the fashion eye, gets great play in such coats. There's a luxury feeling about the coat made of velvet or fur. This utterly feminine charm is often balanced by the contrast of tweed on the other side; the coat of a furry fleece may be seen with a flat tweed or smooth wool flannel for its reverse. Two colors in perfect harmony give rise to some of the fashion interest while others team basic black with a color.

Both short and full-length coats are found in reversibles and it remains for you to choose whichever will be more useful for your needs. For the same reason you may be tempted by the coat that has your basic wardrobe color on one side.

TOPPER TYPES

For everyday wear over a little sun the shorter topper type may be excellent and give you great service. A full-length version, however, with one side in black or in a lush fabric such as velvet will give you a dress coat which you will enjoy for all those dress occasions this winter when the short, semi-formal dress demands a coat that is a little more elegant than your daytime coat is apt to be.

Those London Soho Derelicts

London Has Changed Since the War but the Human Flotsam Remains Huddled on Doorsteps or in Haunts That May Have Come Out of Dickens—The World Will Pass Them By

LONDON has changed, and in many respects for the better, as most of us must admit if we are honest in our outlook, for our own discomfort and impoverishment cannot disguise the fact that the vast majority of the people, those who till recent years formed the underprivileged class, are far better off. Their share of comforts, of leisure, of recreation and of the necessities of life has been substantially increased.

* * *

Today one does not see dozens of weary men and women spending the night on the Embankment for want of the sixpence that would get them shelter and a bed. And yet there still exist characters that Charles Dickens could have used to draw a tear from the more sensitive of his readers.

* * *

Three of them I know. First, there is the old woman who sits each evening on the third step of the derelict Royalty Theatre, huddled against the rusty railings. Wrapped in innumerable rags, with several nondescript parcels and tins propped around her, her head and face almost completely hidden under other ragged wraps, she sits there in rain or fog apparently impervious to cold and quite unconscious of what goes on around her.

One night she seemed more awake than usual, and I stopped and asked her if she was all right—if she had no home to go to. "Oh yes," she said, in a weak but cheerful voice. "I've got a home. I'm waiting for my son. He sells papers, and when he's ready he'll come for me, and we'll go home." A coin dropped in her lap, but she was as unconscious of it as she had been of the chilly fog. It might perhaps have bought a warm meal in some musty eating house, but the giver knew quite well that it could do no permanent good.

* * *

Across the street is the big Quo Vadis Restaurant with its jolly groups in tuxedos and fur wraps. From "The Crown and Chairman" come shouts and laughter from the saloon bar. Next to the old theatre is the "Hungarian Csarda" with its good exotic food and wine. Even the shabby Interval Club gives a welcome to those who can meet its modest fees. But each evening, as most of us are returning from our work to a cheerful home and a cosy meal, the old woman is sitting there on the damp stone steps, utterly alone, and apparently uncared for. As I passed last night, from the bundle of rags came a small quavering voice with the remnants of a lingering sweetness. Perhaps it was the cold fog that made my eyes smart as I felt for a handkerchief. She was singing "Home Sweet Home, there's no place like home."

* * *

Occasionally in a dark archway of the bombed Church of St. Anne, in Dean Street, I see a large fierce-looking man in many coats, but no hat, with broken shoes and no socks, huddled against the wall trying to sleep. His tangled hair and savage straggling red beard might lead one to expect ferocious abuse if one approached him. But on the one occasion that I had the temerity to do so, he spoke in a quiet cultured voice with no resentment at the world's treatment of him, but a rather sad acceptance of an unavoidable fate. I had passed him something and he held out a delicate, finely moulded hand that might, if clean, have graced a violinist. He was not old enough for the pension, and not strong enough for work. He is not the type to parade his misfortunes on the well-lit streets, so he sleeps in dark corners of bombed buildings, and eats when the ravens bring bread.

* * *

How strange that within a stone's throw is "The House of Charity" with its money box on the street railing to beg the passer-by to alleviate the sufferings of the poor. Opposite the doorway where he sleeps is Gamba's, with thousands of the best shoes made, but his shoes have no sole. St. Anne's ruined walls face a world of merriment and feasting. The Casa Pepe, with its enticing sign, the Golden Lion with its sundial and no sun, the Lyric Restaurant, the York Minster, the Grill, the Tyrol Restaurant, founded in 1816, with its enormous flag, Aux Caves de France, and Chez Jaques—water, water everywhere but not a drop to drink. But like the Indians of the Stoney Reserve he does not complain.

* * *

Thirdly there's a merry little fellow with feathers in his hat. He too has bundles, so many bundles one wonders how he manages to move them all from place to place for you seldom see him in the same place twice. He sits in quiet corners, eats from a little tin box, and sings and laughs. I have had many a brief chat with him. He is too self-engrossed to talk for long. He is a philosopher, and like Diogenes asks little but sunshine.

"You seem happy, my friend."

"Of course I'm happy; why shouldn't I be happy? I'm seventy-eight and well, thank God. It's a good world, if you take it right. I've seen life and I like it. Good day to you, sir."

The red and yellow feathers flutter as he moves. They are stuck all round the band of his funny hat. A hat that the Pied Piper of Hamlin would have envied. He breaks into a jolly, rollicking song, not to attract attention, but just because he can't help it any more than a thrush can on a May morning.

I move away to my day's duties, feeling the better for having met him.

Vancouver's First Speedboat Race

By FRANK KELLEY

WHEN British Columbia's mainland community was experiencing some real growing pains 50 odd years ago, a chap named Larsen, then proprietor of the North Vancouver Hotel, dreamed up a sports' program for the celebration of a Vancouver holiday—Dominion Day, 1906. Among the principal events on that ambitious program was one entirely new for that era—a "speedboat" race for a silver trophy, no less, over a course which was to start and finish in front of Larsen's hotel.

Two Vancouver firms and one Victoria firm interested in manufacturing internal combustion engines had been wishing for an opportunity to display products of their machine shops publicly. These were Easthope of Vancouver and Hutchison Brothers of Victoria. They had considered the issuing of challenges to all and sundry but Larsen saved them the trouble.

UNDER HANDICAP

To get in the race the Victoria boat was handicapped a bit. It either had to be shipped by ferry (the sensible way), or navigated across the Gulf, a somewhat foolish procedure, considering everything that transpired. But then, that is the way things happen at times.

To help Larsen put his Vancouver event over, three of us were willing, lacking second sight: Dan Hutchison, marine engineer expert and designer of the boat's four-cylinder motor, as engineman; "Nips" Gowen as crew, and self as navigator. The "H.B." was lightly built, but well put together. Oakribbed, it was planked with red cedar, copper fastened, while engine capacity was eight to twelve horsepower.

Intended for commercial tasks, the engine was not designed for racing; but the opportunity of getting some recognition publicly on a gala day outweighed every other consideration, even though our friends, viewing the layout, shook their heads pityingly when we started away from James Bay on the morning of June 29 aboard the frail-looking craft.

They were certain we would never reach Vancouver in the small open boat equipped with its heavy motor. It would go to the bottom like a plummet if it shipped a sea or got into a bad tide-rip and leave us swimming. They were almost good advance guessers, at that.

IN ACTIVE PASS

We reached Active Pass that afternoon, waited there until next morning for the usual quiet conditions on the gulf in summer and set out early, steaming "at slow bell," in the engineer's lingo, and headed for Point Grey. All went merry enough until we got well out when it started to breeze up, coming from the direction we were going, making it as risky to turn back as to go ahead. Spray kept coming aboard, which necessitated throttling the engine well down to prevent being swamped. Steering-way was about all we could manage comfortably until the engine stopped altogether, the ignition apparatus "getting all wet."

Having taken paddles along, we managed to keep headed into what sea there was as Hutchison replaced wet wires with dry and got the engine turning over again just as the Princess Victoria came out of English Bay and went by a short distance away. We had been figuring on displaying a white shirt after she hove in sight, but had been spared that ignominy at the last moment. As the "Princess" got well away, however, the engine quit again and refused to function.

By that time we were about one mile off Point Grey, the tide running against us, although wind and sea were going down fast. About nine o'clock that night, the water being quite "slick," we were paddling close to shore, kept within wading distance until well inside and went ashore.

ON THE BEACH

Hiking along the beach was not an hilarious experience. The clothes we had on were wet and our shoes took a beating. So when the Country Club at Jericho hove in sight it was a welcome picture. While no one was there at that hour, a road led through the bush for some distance and connected with the regular street system of Vancouver.

The sun looked and felt good as it reached us where we sat on the curb near the entrance to the old Arcade, waiting to call on some friends who could lend a helping hand. With the sun a policeman hove in sight. Seeing us, he would have been derelict in his duty if he had not been inquisitive. I thought sure we were going to get lodgings of a sort. He took our story for what it was worth, however, and offered to fix it with a friend who had a small hotel on Cordova Street and might let us occupy some seats in his closed saloon. The kind offer was declined and when the right hour arrived installed ourselves in the Vancouver Hotel, having a speaking acquaintance with the manager in 1906.

AN ALSO RAN

We had a short nap there while our clothes were being hurriedly dried and made presentable. At the same time the ignition system of the boat was receiving attention from the hotel electrician and a launch was despatched to Point Grey for our "speedboat." That afternoon the Victoria entry, "H.B.," was at the starting mark of the first speedboat event ever held on Burrard Inlet and while our craft completed the course the best the engine was capable of doing did not materialize in race-winning miles while the contest was on. Our boat, after all the "fun" we had getting her to Vancouver, was an also ran, finishing third and last. Easthope's entry was first and Letson and Burpee's boat second.

After the race and the holiday, needless to state, our boat was shipped home by ferry, and that was the way her crew also traveled back to James Bay.

Trees Don't Grow Knives

NEW YORK—Huambisa Indians of Peru believe that knives grow on a tree and are searching the Amazonian Selva for the magic grove with the steel fruit.

Msgr. Xavier Ariz, a Dominican bishop who has just returned to his native Navarre from a long stay in the region of upper Rio Marañon reported that the Huambisas who still live in the stone age begged him to tell them where they could find the tree from which he had collected the knives he gave them as a present, and punctuated their pleas with singing, wailing and dancing.

Though they could not believe that such a marvel as the steel machete could actually be man made the Huambisas have certain manufacturing know-how of their own that white men do not possess. Those head hunting savages, besides being experts in the art of shrinking human heads, have a musical instrument called "tunduy" whose power to transmit sound over great distances cannot be matched by any instrument that our own science could devise.

The Huambisas fight with lances and turtle shell shields and use blowpipes and poisoned arrows for hunting. They make incisions in their skins to stick feathers in it and look like peacocks when they set out on the warpath.

For its size, the praying mantis is one of the most predatory animals in existence. They have enormous appetites. An adult mantis has been known to eat 10 cockroaches in less than three hours.

NATURE'S CHAMPIONS

Glamour Puss of the Jungle

By IV N T. SANDERSON

The Z rille Belongs to the Skunk Family and Has Some f Its Tactics When Confro ted by an Enemy—Even t e Lion Has a Healthy Respe for the Little Fellow Wh Prowls by Night

NOBODY likes to see the champ K.O.'d, but everybody is always willing to take a poke at him, and even his most loyal fan may chuckle if he trips over an alley cat. Thus, the poor lion for all his regal bearing not only gets spanked by angry elephants, and booted by girl giraffes, but has his pride dragged in the dust by an animal no bigger than a kitten. And when we say "pride," a pun is fully intended, because a group of lions led by an old champ is known as a "pride of lions."

TRIBAL CUSTOM

Certain African tribesmen, before they may buy a wife, must stand up to a charging lion, alone and armed only with a fire-hardened wooden spear, and kill the beast. It takes a real man to do this, even if the most delectable feminine morsel in the tribe is the prize. Intrepid Englishmen, on the other hand, prefer to squat in a flimsy hide of twigs or thorn branches near a dead zebra at night, and then blaze away at lions with a high-powered rifle aimed along a strong flashlight beam. Both procedures are considered silly by the opposite party, but both are sometimes very necessary, for tribal custom is strong and brides are often scarce, while lions may become such a pest that they have to be declared vermin. Both parties, however, have something in common to tell about the lion that is seldom believed by anybody who has not so wielded a spear or a rifle.

SCARED OF KIDS

The lion is not in the least scared of men. If stared square in the eye when met unexpectedly, he may charge out of sheer bravado or simply to maintain his imagined dignity. He is very frightened of small children, and of anything that flaps irregularly, like washing on a line. He will chase little dogs, especially when they yap, and one feels a certain sympathy for the beast in this instance. He will allow little birds to hop all over his body and will lie down among a herd of antelope and solemnly watch them graze only a few feet away from him for hours. He loves to lie and doze on his high places and to watch the world go by.

He has become so accustomed to tourists in some parts of Africa that strict orders have had to be given not to feed lions from cars or trucks because in their eagerness they are apt to jump in among the human occupants. But all this is the lion in the daytime.

LION AT NIGHT

At night he becomes a highly predaceous animal and, since he makes only about two kills a month, he is often very hungry. Then he hunts game on the General Patton plan—to break through, rush ahead, wheel around and then drive the quarry back into your own lines. He is a master strategist and places his mate and any lion bobby soxers who may have joined his pride at well-chosen points past which he drives the game. They do the killing and he arrives in time to do the honors, opening up the carcass, removing the innards and dragging them away before eating the choice cuts while the family and hangers-on wait around.

These goings-on have been observed for centuries by the Africans and now by many intrepid Englishmen and others for quite a number of years, and all agree that this plan is abandoned only in one circumstance. This is when a small black and white striped animal known as a zorille, which is a member of the weasel family, shows up. When this little fellow comes by, even the king of beasts clears out of his way and may even sit whimpering like a puppy in the farthest corner of the ring. The zorille is not really a contender for any title, for he is simply not interested. He is just a rank amateur, but he invariably wins.

As soon as the zorille was quite gone, the big cats rushed in to the dead zebra, so hungry and frustrated they ignored even the flashlight.

RELATIVE OF SKUNK

And rank he is, indeed, for he is equipped with a pair of glands equivalent to those of his distant relatives, the skunks of our own woodlands. He is also a master of strategy, but this is easy because all he has to do is turn round, and everybody clears the ringside at the double. If really molested he can aim, fire and hit any target up to a dozen paces away with extreme accuracy and devastating effect. Hit square in the eyes by this master gunner a lion will reel out on to the plains howling like a stuck pig, and roll about for hours in agony. It may even render him temporarily or permanently blind.

One Englishman perched in a tree over a kill one night in Kenya witnessed a sight that he has happily described for us in a most satisfactory manner. No less than nine lions came to the dead zebra, but none would approach within range. They kept prowling around, grunting and rumbling among the bushes. There was one particularly big and fine, black maned specimen he especially wanted to bag because it had raided his nearby ostrich farm and killed two fine cock birds, and had broken his fences on several occasions. He had had two shots at it in the past but muffed both.

Finally, the great cats began to circle in and he thought he heard sounds champing jaws. Switching on s flashlight, with rifle at the rea , he was amazed to see the zebra sti quite unmolested and only pairs o glowing eyes far beyond watchin patiently. Then he noticed somethi down by the prone zebra. It was small zorille, sniffing about d sampling the choicest morsels n a most dainty fashion. Watchi fascinated, with the light on he a lioness approach warily to withi a few yards of this tiny animal. hereupon it simply waltzed about a d presented a bushy tail in her di ion. The lioness leaped back and dis peared, which made both the E shman and his native gunbearer eak out laughing. The zorille tur to glare at them, for no animal an stand human laughter, and the walked away in a most dignified nner.

As s n as it was gone, the big cats ru ed in and the Englishman immedi ely bagged his lion because the wh e pride was so hungry and frustra d that they ignored even the fla light.

The ore you come to know of Nature, the more marvelous it proves be. The tiny put the great to flig , the weak destroy the strong and ravenous things are held at ay by nothing more than a stench. As I say, nobody likes to see the ld champ go down but if he we would rather see him K.O.'d the ring by an equal than left w mpering in the aisles by some mour-pussy's perfume.

MEATLESS FRIDAYS

Argentina Suffers Economic Problems

By ROWLAND THOMAS

BUENOS AIRES (NANA Kem news)—For the first time in her history, Argentina is importing wheat and having meatless days—a situation unprecedented in a country which normally helps to feed half Europe.

The country's present situation is due to two successive droughts of an intensity never before experienced.

The drying-up of the land, except in a few small areas, and the impossibility of plowing, caused a drastic diminution in the areas sown to wheat. Consequently this year Argentina found herself short by 200,000 tons of the wheat needed for domestic consumption, at any rate until November, when the new wheat becomes available for milling.

To make good this deficit she negotiated a deal with American grain exporters whereby she is receiving 196,000 tons of American wheat in exchange for 251,000 tons of maize which, in turn, the Americans are exporting to France in return for barley from North Africa.

BARTER PLAN

Thus, Argentina is covering her requirements on a barter basis, without having to part with any of her precious foreign exchange. In spite of drought Argentines have not gone short of bread.

Drought also was responsible for reducing the cattle herds on the pampas from about 41,000,000 to 35,000,000 head this year. Pasturage was poor and, in some areas, non-existent. Animals died by the tens of thousands. Various remedial measures were taken, the most important of which was the prohibition of the slaughter of steers under two years of age.

A meatless day was also introduced, but this was a gesture designed to call attention to the gravity of the situation rather than a means of improving the meat supply.

THE LOOPHOLE

Inveterate meat-eaters, the Argentines got around the meatless day, Friday, by ordering double supplies on Thursday. Whatever impression this measure may have caused abroad, the fact remains that during the two years of drought the average Argentine family ate more meat per day than, for example, a British family of four was able to obtain on its ration per week.

Argentina's inability to earn foreign exchange in essential quantities has not been lost on President Juan Peron and the motif of his new economic plan is "back to the land." Essentially and primarily an agricultural country, Argentina has no delusion about becoming a great industrial power—her wealth is in her soil.

But two world wars, during which she was at the height of her prosperity, demonstrated her excessive dependence on foreign countries. She had no heavy industry; her imports were carried in foreign ships; her transportation and communications systems were foreign owned.

Peron's first five-year plan changed all that. Today, Argentina has a merchant fleet of more than 1,000,000 tons deadweight, the largest in South America. She owns r railways and her telephones and is manufacturing replacem nts for them within the countr Government factories are turnin out small cars, trucks and tractor Jet aircraft are being manufa tured locally and, although Argent a is no less secretive than other untries about her nuclear-fission xperiments, it is known that there great activity at the atomic laborat ry at Huem l.

Wit the limits of her resources—she s little coal and petroleum and h to import about 600,000 tons fuel monthly, much of which s for stockpiling against anoth world shortage. Argentina's industries, designed to produce ential goods for home consump n, are thriving.

For e first time in her history she is using her own newsprint. Fifty ns a day are being produced at the elulosa Argentina factory, upriver from Buenos Aires, and by the en of the year it is expected that p duction will be at the rate of 30, tons annually. The textile indus has now become, after the food dustry, the largest in the countr employing 134,900 workers and 47 000 spindles.

Mea hile, the population continues grow. It is now more than 18,000 0 and is increasing steadily. Peron as decreed that only skilled-worke immigrants may settle in the la e cities. All the others go to the nd where, next year, thanks to be ficient rains, harvesting of crops ll provide them with plenty of wo

New Lights Set For Bad Corner

AROUND TOWN

Better lighting at the corner of Fisgard and Government streets will follow a meeting between two representatives of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association and Robert Doble, a member of the city engineer's department.

Mr. Doble told Lim Bang and Lin Shock Yee that installation of two lights of greater power might solve the traffic problem at the corner where they have been several accidents and two deaths.

He said the lights would be installed soon. If they didn't prove effective, another solution would be sought.

Lim Bang reported after the meeting that Doble had told him the stop-go light at Oak Bay and Richmond was not serving its purpose of preventing accidents.

Other householders and licensees who wish to be registered for the 1952-53 list must file the necessary declaration available at the city hall office before October 31, Mr. Hunter said.

Payment to Wrong Office Led to Garnishee Order

Income tax officials in Victoria explained yesterday why a Vancouver Island logger had his wages garnisheed after he had paid his taxes and obtained a receipt.

James Pazarena reported he paid $111.40 in taxes in June and had his wages garnisheed for that amount in September.

Income tax officials said Pazarena had filed his return at the Vancouver office. He should have filed in the Victoria office. His return was transferred here. Then the taxpayer sent his payment to the Vancouver office.

The Victoria office, having no record of the payment, went ahead with the garnishee process.

Food Stall Donations Near-Record

Generous donors made the Thanksgiving operation of Victoria's free food stall in the City Public Market an outstanding success yesterday.

Contributions of fruit, vegetables, powdered milk, bread and other staples were close to record proportions as a total of 110 families were provided with Christmas-size hampers for the Thanksgiving week end.

But real flavor was added to the occasion by a donation of 35 turkeys given by a South American visitor to overmatch for the one time the generosity of Victorians.

Some of the turkeys were roasted and carved so the donation could be spread out further but most of them went whole and uncooked to make Thanksgiving dinner a gala event for many families.

Mrs. Barbara Green, food stall operator, said the stall would be open again on Saturday, October 25.

Helping hand was given the stall this week by the offer of the Women's Auxiliary to the Cosmopolitan Club to assist in supplying powdered milk.

Victoria Bit Of Old U.S.A., Says Archivist

Victoria has been traveling under false colors for many years, Provincial Archivist Willard E. Ireland claims.

The city's claim to "a little bit of Olde Englande," is a little bit of old nonsense and the city should be reclassified as a bit of the "Olde U.S.A." he told the graduating class of the Retail Credit and Management classes on Friday night.

The early business houses of the city were branches of California stores, he said; even their design and the bricks they were built of came from the U.S.

In 1862, the electoral plan followed here was copied from the Americans and Victoria's first firemen adopted U.S. methods and were outfitted with American equipment.

Library Staff Takes Holiday

Gosley 'Smile Show' To Feature Song of Victoria Woman

When the Jerry Gosley "Smile Show" goes to Korea a Victoria woman's song will provide the theme and bring thoughts from home to the Canadian troops.

The song around which the show will be built is called "Canada, My Home." It was written by Mrs. Jean Henderson, 115 Cheltenham Street, a 60-year-old amateur composer and lyric writer.

Chosen by Gosley as ideal for the Canadian motif show he is taking to Korea, "Canada, My Home" was one of several submitted for his study by Mrs. Henderson.

The new lyric will not oust the familiar "When You're Smiling" which has been the theme song of the "Smile Show" for 11 years.

"When You're Smiling still will be sung as introduction to the entertainment and to sign off.

Al Denoni will sing "Canada, My Home" as a high spot of the special Korea show and it also will be featured in the finale sung by the four members of the troupe.

The words will also be printed on a special souvenir folder which is being produced free by Tom Watkins of a local printing firm.

A tribute to the Canadian troops from the lieutenant governor and premier of British Columbia also will be printed in the folder as well as a letter from the Canadian Legion sponsors of the show, and a brief history of the "Smile Show."

Another locally manufactured song to be highlighted during the Korea tour is "I'd Like to Feather a Nest for You" written by the Victoria team of "Rogers, Moore and Moore."

Weather Pays Off In Cash

Unseasonal weather that is still keeping the thermometer up, is money in pocket to hundreds of Victorians.

Hotels, office buildings, hospitals and greenhouses as well as private home owners are seldom finding it necessary to light the furnace and are noticing a great saving in fuel costs over last year at this time.

One home owner last night said he hadn't touched his winter supply of coal yet, and putting his saving into dollars and cents, he estimated it to be about $15.

The same thing applies to persons with wood burning furnaces or oil burners. October, so far, is doing them a good turn.

SAVED 20 TONS

"I think we have saved about 20 tons since the beginning of September as compared to the fuel we burned at this time last year," one hotel engineer said. "People just aren't asking for heat in their rooms, except maybe in the early morning."

Waterfront hotels are also finding less use for their furnaces than normal for this time of the year.

"When the fog comes in off the sea in the morning we have the heat on, but as soon as the sun gets out we are able to turn it off. It has saved us a good many tons of coal," another proprietor said.

In downtown hotels, the saving is even greater, with requests for heat only in the evenings.

"I couldn't say off hand how much of a saving there is, but the oil bill looked mighty good this month," one hotel bookkeeper reported.

In hospitals, where heat is required all year for laundries and kitchens the saving hasn't been so great, but there has been a saving.

A spokesman for the Royal Jubilee Hospital estimated a saving of about 10 to 15 tons of coal last month over September of last year.

In greenhouses the amount of heat needed has been considerably less than anticipated and estimates of 15 to 20 per cent were given by nurserymen yesterday.

"We are on oil and our tank is still well above the level we estimated, about 15 per cent I should say," a nurseryman said.

Hopes for a mild winter were expressed by most of the pleased building owners, but they aren't taking any chances. There's plenty of fuel on hand when the weather decides to change.

Group To Meet To Consider Linking Cities

ALBERNI, Oct. 11 — A joint dinner meeting of this city's Board of Trade with Port Alberni Chamber of Commerce and the District Junior Chamber of Commerce will decide the next step in the question of municipally linking this city with Port Alberni.

Mr. Homewood, chairman of the tri-organization committee set up to study amalgamation, expressed gratification with the facts and figures presented to his committee this week by civic officials from both cities, asserting they would enable the link-up study group to present comprehensive findings to the joint dinner gathering which will be held shortly.

If the meeting feels the report submitted by the special amalgamation committee justifies such action, the next step will see both city councils approached with a request to place the matter before their respective electorate in the form of plebiscites this coming December.

Cat, Budgie Best of Pals

Best of friends are all three shown above, especially Fluffie, the pussy, and Peter, the budgie. The cat and the bird are the pets of Faith Zaluschuk, 12, of 330 Niagara Street. Thanksgiving Holiday To Mark Nation's Most Ample Harvest

Canadians will celebrate Thanksgiving Day Monday on the crest of the biggest grain harvest in history.

Dinner tables throughout the land will be featuring turkey cheaper this year than last or chicken or duck, also down in price from last year's fancy flight.

The record crop now being finished up totaled [illegible] bushels of wheat—or enough to give everybody a loaf of bread—and an over-all grain crop estimated at 1,310,000 bushels — a bigger heap than the previous record grain pile in 1942.

Most British Columbians will be enjoying time out from the chores on Thanksgiving, which is proclaimed a holiday under the Factories Act certifying 173 classes of industrial establishments that must close for the day.

All retail and wholesale businesses other than restaurants, hotels, taverns and theatres, must also take the day off.

First Thanksgiving Day in Canada was celebrated April 1[illegible] 187[illegible] in recognition of the restoration in health of the then Prince of Wales, later Edward VII.

In 1879 the date was set at November 6 in token of a bumper harvest and the affair has been a harvest celebration ever since with some few exceptions.

One deviation from the harvest fields was in 1887 when Thanksgiving was celebrated June 21 to mark Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee. In 1897 the Diamond Jubilee was observed.

But for the last 20 years Thanksgiving has been held on the second Monday in October as a harvest festival. Seven years ago it was proclaimed as a day of thanksgiving also for the restoration of peace.

First Thanksgiving Day on the continent was observed in New England after the harvest of 1621.

Nowadays the Thanksgiving is celebrated on the fourth Thursday in November in the United States and the [illegible] doesn't come this year [illegible] November 27. This gives Canadians with relatives in the U.S. a good chance to dig into the harvest turkey a second time.

The observers were able to see the planet Jupiter and a double star, pointed out and described to them by a member of the observatory staff.

U.B.C.M. Favors Saanich Tax Plea

BY RAY BAINES
Colonist Staff Reporter

VERNON, Oct. 11.—A Central Saanich resolution asking for more taxation powers on the Brentwood power station was passed in principle by the Union of B.C. Municipalities Saturday.

The resolution was referred to the union executive for study and presentation in conjunction with a similar resolution regarding pole lines from North Cowichan.

Reeve Sydney Pickles told the body the present situation regarding the B.C. Electric substation was a "gross injustice" to his "infant municipality" under section 239 of the Municipal Act.

Vancouver will be the site of the 1953 U.B.C.M. convention. An invitation was extended by Ald. J. D. Cornett and accepted unanimously by the convention body.

An appeal for funds to support the 1954 British Empire Games was made by Ald. Cornett of Vancouver. He told the U.B.C.M. Vancouver had pledged $200,000 to the games committee but he felt support should be a completely "provincial effort."

A resolution from Merritt asking the government to do something about drunken Indians was referred to the Liquor Inquiry Commission. Spokesmen said drunkenness among the Indians at Merritt had tripled since beer parlors have been opened to them. The resolution asks that the government "review the liquor regulations in its relation to the Indians and make such amendments as will reduce the intoxication among the Indians."

Emotion Rules Money Sending Says Chinese

Human emotion is stronger than regulations laid down by government or society, a spokesman for Victoria's Chinese community said last night in reference to extortion money being sent to the Chinese Reds from local Orientals.

"It would be better to stop this money from going, but when it is known a brother or parents are in prison human emotion takes control and the money is sent, even though the sender knows it may never do any good," he said.

A Canadian government official said yesterday that no steps would be taken to prevent extortion payments being sent to Communist China.

It was explained by the official that the American government has forbidden the export of American dollars to the Communist government of China who are working a monster extortion racket.

Although this drastic action by the U.S. government has stopped the letters of demand in the U.S., the Canadian government is not taking the same step because the Chinese Reds would simply get at Canadian Chinese through other countries.

If, said the government official, local Chinese do receive more letters after such regulations are put into force they will find other means of getting the money to China, and as they hope, to their imprisoned relatives.

West Coast Air Service Draws I.W.A. Criticism for Uncertainty

PORT ALBERNI, Oct. 11 — "The irregularity and uncertainty" of West Coast air service should be investigated, an I.W.A. Local 1-85 spokesman has charged here.

Claiming that residents in the Tahsis Inlet-Zeballos area are dependent on the transportation service provided by Queen Charlotte Airlines, Port Alberni unionist Tom Barnett criticized the company's failure to maintain its tri-weekly runs in and out of the isolated up-coast centres.

Barnett bases his charges on a report brought back to this city by Local 1-85 business agent Gil Ingram, who recently visited the area. The latter claimed that during his stay there the district has gone four consecutive days without air service.

Mr. Ingram stated logging and lumbering companies in the Tahsis-Zeballos-Chamiss Bay areas are experiencing difficulty in maintaining normal working strength because "the men are getting fed up with the transportation problem and those companies are going to have a merry old time hanging onto them."

Mr. Barnett called for a realization of the situation confronting residents of the expanding West Coast districts and said that it is "important in many ways that the transit channels for business and social intercourse between the Albernis and the rest of the West Coast territory be opened."

"Many residents of the West Coast feel that Q.C.A. as a licensed public transportation agency is not taking its responsibility too seriously and is finding excuses to run flights only when fully booked, in spite of its published schedule," said Mr. Barnett.

He also charged the small freighter Veta C. placed on the West Coast run by the C.P.R. to replace the Maquinna, lacks adequate refrigeration facilities, with the result that "ice cream arrives melted, milk sour, and meat in a flabby sticky condition."

Driving to Portland For Wedding Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick George Partridge are driving to Portland for their honeymoon following their wedding Saturday evening at Fairfield United Church in a setting of bronze and white chrysanthemums, the Rev. William Allan officiated at the double ring ceremony uniting Betty Mildred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gibson, 111 Croft Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Partridge, 1228 Judge Place. Mr. Charles Palmer was at the organ and as the register was being signed Mr. Stanley Martin sang "Because."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina length gown fashioned with strapless lace bodice and bouffant skirt of nylon net over taffeta topped by a net bolero jacket with Mandarin collar trimmed with lace and lily point sleeves. Her finger-tip veil of nylon net was caught under a halo headdress of pleated net. Her arm bouquet was of pink sweetheart roses and white [illegible].

Matron of honor was Mrs. Gordon Charnell, wearing sky blue net over taffeta with matching net jacket with short sleeves and blue net mitts. Miss Joyce Kievill, bridesmaid for her cousin, chose rose lace over taffeta, also ballerina-length, worn with short-sleeve jacket and rose mitts. Both had floral bandeaux in their hair corresponding with the pink and white chrysanthemums in their bouquets.

Mr. Gordon Charnell attended the bridegroom, and ushers were Mr. Michael Powell and Mr. Kenneth Gibson, brother of the bride.

The reception was held at 110 Wellington Avenue, where the parents of the newlyweds assisted in receiving the guests. The table covered with a lace cloth and decorated with bronze and white chrysanthemums and white tapers in silver holders, was centred with the cake topped with rosebuds and bedded in filmy white tulle. The toast was given by Mr. J. C. Smith.

As her going away outfit the bride wore a grey worsted dressmaker suit styled with plain skirt and jacket of two-toned grey stripes with Dolman sleeves and buttons down the front. Her pink felt hat was trimmed with grey feathers, accessories were black and she accented her costume with a mauve orchid corsage, on her muskrat three-quarter length coat.

Tea Realizes Sum of $50

Flowers decorated the reception rooms at the home of Mrs. Emerson Smith for the tea sponsored by the Florence Nightingale Chapter, I.O.D.E. Guests were welcomed by chapter regent Mrs. William Blott. The sum of $50 was realized.

Mrs. R. Freemantle was convener with Mrs. [illegible] in charge of receipts and Mrs. W. Morgan of raffles. Vocal selections were given by Mrs. R. Ratcliffe, accompanied by Mrs. Nelson Ball.

Pouring tea were Mrs. W. R. Roskelly and Mrs. H. A. Young, while serving were Mrs. K. Mills, Mrs. G. Baker, Mrs. J. Strong, and Mrs. S. Pomeroy.

The B.C. Diocesan Board of the W.A. of the Church of England in Canada will meet on Friday, October 17, 10.30 a.m. in the Memorial Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lanigan To Make Home in Vancouver

Peterborough, Ont., shares interest with Victoria in the wedding of Doreen Agnes Seney, R.N., a graduate of Peterborough Civic Hospital, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Seney of that city, to John Arthur Lanigan, son of Mrs. A. G. Lanigan, 2179 Granite Street, and the late Dr. Lanigan. The ceremony took place at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, Satur[illegible] deacon A. E. de L. Nunns reading the nuptial service and Mr. James Gerry playing the organ accompaniment.

Given in marriage by Mr. Thomas Martin, the bride was gowned in white fashioned with lace bodice with Peter Pan collar and puff sleeves, and tiered skirt of net over taffeta and crinoline, featuring panels of lace through the net. Her veil of fine net with edge of matching lace was caught under a coronet of seed pearls and fell chapel-length. She carried a crescent bouquet of talisman roses and white chrysanthemums.

Miss Eileen Lanigan, R.N., sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, in a gown of forest green velvet over crinoline and featuring a [illegible] She wore a band of green velvet molded to her head, and short lace mitts. A pleasing contrast was provided by her bouquet of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom had his brother, Mr. "Paddy" Lanigan, as best man, and ushers were Mr. Jack Glover and Mr. Al Doddimead, both of Vancouver.

The reception was held at the Olde England Inn, where the groom's mother, gowned in gray imported silk with navy blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses, and Mrs. F. MacDonald, proxy for the bride's mother, wearing dusky rose crepe with matching jacket, deep rose accessories and a gardenia corsage, welcomed guests with the newlyweds. The cake flanked by light[illegible] centred the flower-decked table. The toast was given by Mr. Isaac Finley.

Wed in St. Andrew's Cathedral

At a nuptial mass in St. Andrew's Cathedral Mrs. Florence Victoria Jones and Edmund John Leonard were united in marriage. The Rev. Father A. E. Leonard of Port Alberni, son of the groom, celebrated the mass.

Miss Marguerite McKay played organ music and soloist Miss Isabel Melligan sang "Ave Maria" and "O Sacrament Divine."

The bride, given in marriage by her son, Mr. James D. Jones, wore a navy silk dress styled with lace bodice and peplum. A pink feather cloche and navy gloves were her accessories, and she carried a prayer book and pearl rosary. Pink roses made up her corsage.

Matron of honor was Mrs. W. Percy Jackman, who chose a beige suit with brown hat and accessories, and corsage of bronze chrysanthemums. Best man was Mr. John Neary, while Mr. Charles Rivers and Mr. Albert Rivers, cousins of the bride, ushered.

Serviteurs were Mrs. F. D. Cusack, Mrs. J. D. Jones, Mrs. E. C. Jones, Mrs. F. Brown, Mrs. H. W. Lyons, Mrs. E. Currie, Mrs. A. Rivers, Mrs. J. D. Kissinger, and Miss Mary Jess.

After a honeymoon trip to California, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard will make their home in Victoria. For going away the bride donned a black suit with pink cloche and white accessories, and carried a muskrat coat.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Dykes, Gibson's Landing, parents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Lyons, Mr. Leo Tribe, Vancouver.

Mrs. E. F. Burns, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Cusack, Mr. and Mrs. F. Currie, Mr. and Mrs. H. Elder, Mr. and Mrs. G. Reider, Miss Marie Reider, Chilliwack; the Rev. Father Wilfred, O.F.M., Port Alberni; Mrs. Ralph Westover, Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Wed at Cathedral

The marriage of Edna Alicia Patrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Patrick of Yorkton, Sask., to Clue Milton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Milton, [illegible] Richardson Street, took place Saturday afternoon at Christ Church Cathedral with the Very Rev. R. J. Beattie, Dean of Columbia, performing the ceremony.

Mr. Graham Steed played the organ interludes.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ray Patrick of Vancouver, the bride was attired in a turquoise suit with matching hat, pale apricot blouse with silver beads and cocoa colored accessories. She carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid tied with silver and white streamers.

Miss Jean Thomson, her attendant, wore a gold suit with hat and floral corsage in the same tone. The bridegroom had Mr. George Almond as best man and Mr. Basil Fox ushered.

The reception was held at Cherry Bank Hotel where the three-tiered cake was cut by the newlyweds.

The honeymoon will be spent in Seattle following which Mr. and Mrs. Milton will return here to make their home.

The next meeting of Oaklands P.T.A. will be held in the auditorium Tuesday, October 14, 8 p.m. Mr. W. Ireland, provincial archivist, will speak on "Early B.C."

Explains Hobby

SHAWNIGAN LAKE, Oct. 11—A report of the recent South Vancouver Island District conference was heard by members of the Shawnigan Lake Women's Institute from Mrs. A. Hallet.

Plans were made for a card party. Donations were voted to the local Brownie, Scout and Cub groups. The members agreed to sew again for the Solarium, if the service is needed.

Entertainment for the next meeting will be arranged by Mrs. R. Hamilton and Mrs. E. J. Clarke.

Special guest at the meeting was Mrs. J. W. Black, of Cobble Hill, who explained her hobby of needle and petit point and showed examples of her work.

Card Party

CHEMAINUS, Oct. 11—At Auxiliary to the Sea Cadets meeting at the home of Mrs. F. J. Higgs, Mrs. Earle Wilson gave an account of the ceremony of presentation of the charter to the newly formed local corps.

Plans were completed for a telephone card party on October [illegible]. Those offering their homes for cribbage or whist being Mrs. E. J. Higgs, Mrs. Robert McBride, Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mrs. R. Savory, Mrs. P. Erickson and Mrs. W. D. Rolston.

Mrs. Wilson will assist the local Navy League in the packing of ditty bags.

Welcome Guests

At the recent meeting of the Ladies of the Order of the Royal Purple, Past Hon. Royal Lady, Mrs. M. E. Waldon, who is visiting here from Nanoose Bay, and Lady McMillan, who has just returned from Scotland, were welcomed.

Named conveners for the annual bazaar to be held in November were Mrs. L. Baldwin, fancywork, Mrs. F. Young, candy, Mrs. S. Begg, white elephant, Mrs. E. Cooper, knitting, Mrs. M. Smythe, novelties, Mrs. M. Mackie, home cooking, and Mrs. G. Jasper, tea.

The Madronas Hunter Trials To Benefit Work Of Solarium

Victorians will join with residents of the Cowichan Valley in both viewing and taking part in the Madronas Hunter Trials and Western Pony Races, Sunday, October 19, at Madronas, the Cobble Hill estate of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Jackson. Sponsored by the Cowichan District Riding Club, the trials will be under the patronage of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace. By permission of Commodore K. F. Adams, the band of H.M.C.S. Naden will be in attendance. Proceeds will go towards the work of the Solarium Junior League, with league members taking up a collection.

Miss Ann Cavenagh on Simonos will take part. Mrs. C. E. Blaney, Jr., left, will be among the Victorians driving to Cobble Hill for the day as will her daughter Miss Kathleen Blaney who holds a silver rose bowl, trophy for the quarter-mile race. Others going to Madronas will be Mrs. Torquil Juelsberg, Miss Bim Jackson, who is in charge of publicity, Mrs. R. W. Timbrell and Miss Tim Castle who holds another rose bowl trophy. Ian and Andrew Blaney, front, demonstrate silver servers, prizes for hunter pairs.

Members of the Cowichan District Riding Club sponsor of the trials, gather on the open lands of Acorn Farm, home of Mrs. S. A. N. Watney, president of the club, who is assisting with arrangements. Events will take place in the morning between 10 and 12 and again in the afternoon.

Opening the grounds of their home for the event for the second year are Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Jackson, photographed before the rock garden with their hunting dogs Rastus and Gin.

Miss Yvonne Scott [illegible] on the well-known British Columbia [illegible] clears one of the brush [illegible] for the trial. Close to 40 entries have been received already with about half coming from Victoria.

Velvet Dress and Russian Coronet Worn by Frances Michaela Ciceri

At a double-ring [illegible] field United Church Saturday [illegible] Frances Michaela, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald E. Ciceri, Ambassador Apartments, 1326 Yates Street, exchanged vows with Robert Allan Husband, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Husband, 1260 McKenzie Street. The service was read by the Rev. William Allan and Mr. Charles Palmer presided at the organ. Soloist during the signing of the register was Mr. Alexander Husband, uncle of the groom, who sang "O Promise Me."

The fair-haired bride, given in marriage by her father, was a picture in a gown of white velvet fashioned with fitted bodice and long pointed sleeves, the skirt over crinoline sweeping into a long train. A Russian-style coronet of pearls held her veil of filmy net which billowed almost to the end of the train. A double strand of pearls with matching earrings were her jewels. She carried a cascade bouquet of [illegible] man [illegible].

The groom's sister attended her. Mrs. Lar[illegible] matron of honor, and Miss Beverley Husband, bridesmaid, wore [illegible] styled gowns of flamingo taffeta [illegible] with long mitts and braided headdresses of matching material and [illegible] fan-shaped bouquets of white chrysanthemums. Rhine[illegible] were used for their earrings and necklaces.

The bridegroom had Mr. [illegible] as best man, and ushering were Mr. Gordon E. [illegible]mpson of Vancouver, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Dennis Jenkinson.

The parents of the young couple welcomed guests with them to the reception held at Olde England Inn. The bride's mother was gowned in orchid lace with model hat of pink and mauve feathers with veil and a gardenia corsage. Mrs. Husband chose dusty pink complimented by a velvet hat and accessories in burgundy tone and a gardenia corsage.

White and salmon-pink chrysanthemums and lighted tapers in silver candelabra decorated the table which was centred with the three-tiered wedding cake made by the groom's mother.

Mr. John Ciceri proposed the health of his niece. Serving were Mrs. John Crosby, Mrs. [illegible] Knight, Misses Jean Ciceri, Jean Litchfield, Eleanor Nagel, Ann Hanbury, Pat Cameron, Jean Fanthorpe and Peggy Stannier.

Quartet of Bridesmaids Attend Shirley Campbell

A quartet [illegible] gowns attended Miss [illegible] Campbell when she [illegible] vows Saturday evening [illegible] ald Whysker. The Rev. [illegible] officiated for the [illegible] Mrs. William Campbell [illegible] B.C., and the son of Mr. [illegible] Whysker, Foul Bay Road, [illegible].

Tall baskets of autumn [illegible] rated Oak Bay United [illegible] the ceremony, while satin ribbons marked the guest pews. Wedding [illegible] was provided by Mrs. Vera Barclay at the organ, and Mr. Stanley Martin [illegible] sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

BROCADED SATIN

Mrs. [illegible] Ferguson, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Marion Dahl, Seattle, sister of the groom, bride's matron. They chose off-shoulder gowns of nylon net and flowered half hats with shoulder-length veiling matching the colors of their gowns. The former was in salmon pink and carried Johanna Hill roses with salmon pink [illegible], the latter wore sky blue and had a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses with pale blue carnations.

Junior bridesmaids Miss Lorna Jean Campbell and Miss Donna May Campbell, cousins of the bride, wore princess-style frocks of taffeta and net in mauve and lime green respectively, with matching [illegible]. Their [illegible] bouquets were of pink roses and [illegible] chrysanthemums.

After a honeymoon trip to the Mainland, Mr. and Mrs. Whyaker will live at 1165 Fort Street, Victoria.

As Opening Night Approaches

Distributing posters and shopping for props has filled the spare time of Elizabeth Knight, who once studied drama in London.—(Colonist photos by Bud Kinsman.)

Members of Cast at York Studied Drama in England

BY KAY McGREGOR

Formation of the repertory company at the York Theatre has meant the chance at the stage she's always wanted for one teen age girl and a return to professional work for a young woman who played ingenue roles on the English stage in the years just before the second World War.

Eighteen-year-old Miss Hincks, daughter of Mrs. J. M. [illegible] Hincks of [illegible] gave up a job as [illegible] telephone operator [illegible] to join the York company. When she came to Canada from England four years ago she had already studied drama for two years at the Italia Conti Stage School in London starting there at the age of 11. While attending school near Brighton she took lessons from Henry Baynton, noted English Shakespearian actor.

Along with the other members of the cast Miss Hincks has been helping to clean and restore the York Theatre between rehearsals, scrubbing pillars in the foyer with paint remover to show the original marble, cleaning floors and taking "cheap paint" off the hardwood doors.

Dressed in jeans, sweater, saddle shoes and with her blond hair pulled back in a pony tail she told of attending Norfolk House School and Esquimalt High School where she graduated last June. In 1950 she won the honor performance in "The Wonder Hat" produced by Esquimalt High under the direction of Miss Gwen Hewlings.

When the York [illegible] open Thursday [illegible] Miss Hincks will [illegible] [illegible] which she [illegible] a little [illegible] [illegible] she'd like to [illegible] stage."

IN SHOWGIRL PART

Slim brunet Elizabeth Knight will wear a platinum wig for her part of "a dumb showgirl who has gone from musical comedy to a repertory company and who appears complete with a poodle on a lead."

Any similarity between Miss Knight and the character she plays ends with the part, however, as her experience with the theatre goes back to 1935 when she went to England from Edmonton to study at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London. Later she played ingenue roles in touring companies taking part in such plays as "White Oaks" and "Night Must Fall."

In recent years she resided in Vernon where she was an active member of the Little Theatre.

Lately she has filled the time between rehearsals scouting for props, shopping for materials for the production, distributing posters and helping at the box office.

Style Show Is Unique

LEEDS, England (CP)—Barbara Goalen, one of Britain's leading cover-girl mannequins, brought a one-woman dress show to housewives here. It was a show with a difference.

Instead of silently parading models, Barbara was out to get reactions from the audience. So, when she appeared in such a style innovation as a black rep suit with calf-tight skirt and soft shouldered middy jacket tightly buckled around the hips, she cried: "Hands up those who like it."

After the initial shock, a few wavering hands arose. Leeds, centre of Britain's cloth industry, is noted as a centre of fashion criticism and has a reputation for sticking to simple tailored styles.

She showed 13 models made from the most exclusive fabrics of the West Cumberland silk mills and valued at £2,000. The audience gave an enthusiastic reception to a grey wool and acetate mixture suit with belted jacket and narrow slit skirt worn with a red Garbo hat and cravat.

Barbara imparted a personal touch to the show by such tricks as clipping earrings to her shoes instead of her ears and wearing a pirate scarf twisted tightly round her head, with an ultra smart cocktail dress.

The term "flame proof" as applied to fabrics means that they won't flash burn. Nylon, for instance, will melt at a temperature of 480 degrees Fahrenheit if a flame is applied. However, as soon as the flame is removed the nylon stops burning because nylon itself will not support combustion. The fabric therefore is resistant to spreading flame after coming into contact with fire.

Sisters Here From New York

Misses Doris and Phyllis Chester, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Chester, will spend this week in Victoria with their parents at the Empress Hotel while on vacation from New York, where they are employed with Time and Life magazines. How to Remove Ink Spots

Ink spots on wool material require different treatment from those on washable fabrics, but they can be removed with careful handling, according to a research laboratory.

First, rinse with [illegible] water to remove as much ink as possible. If the [illegible] washable ink, soak it [illegible] solution of synthetic detergent and rinse again with [illegible] water. Do not rub the spot, however [illegible]. Wool fibres are temporarily weakened when wet and are [illegible] to felting.

Ink spots from permanent [illegible] ink may be removed by applying dilute hydrogen peroxide to white or light colored wool, or lemon juice for colored fabrics. Best results will be obtained by placing the [illegible] material over a small bowl and dropping the liquid through the ink spot. Use an absorbent towel to squeeze excess water from the material and allow to dry without handling.

Today's Favorite Recipe

Mrs. Leslie Mair, 1617 Wilmot Place, sent in a recipe dated 1820,—for her great-grandmother's economy Christmas pudding, which she says should be made in November and will keep for two years.

CHRISTMAS PUDDING

Mix together 1½ pounds chopped suet, 4 pounds bread crumbs (grated stale bread), 2 pounds currants, 2 pounds raisins, 3 pounds white sugar, 1 pound candied peel, 2 teaspoons nutmeg, ½ tin pastry spice, 2 teaspoons salt, 8 tablespoons flour. Mix with 1 bottle cheap brandy and stir until it clings together. Grease basins and press into same, cover with floured cloth and boil for 6 hours, or if you are going to use at once 8-10 hours. These puddings should be made in November and kept till Christmas, then boil for 4 hours Christmas day. This amount will make five good sized puddings.

Women Trappers Have Own Area

PELICAN NARROWS, Sask. (CP)—A "no man's land" has been set up in the Pelican Narrows area 175 miles northeast of Prince Albert and near the Saskatchewan-Manitoba boundary.

Trappers in the area decided to set aside a 60-square-mile area, rich in muskrat, for women only.

The Pelican Narrows' District Trappers' Council decided the distance to outlying traplines and the severity of the Northern winter created hardships for women who earn a living by trapping.

Only those women who depend on their own efforts for their livelihood are eligible. The first two "trappers" or "trapperettes" to be given the right-of-way in the exclusive area were Jean Iroquois, a widow and her daughter, Bernadette.

It is expected the women will harvest muskrats but leave the few beaver to multiply and build their colonies for better harvest later.

A member of the Pelican Narrows Trappers Council is Mrs. Nancy McCullum, Saskatchewan's famed woman trapper. She told the council that any man found guilty of trespassing in the "no man's land" would be immediately and thoroughly dealt with.

Costume-Making Belts Go With Fall Outfits

BY DEE LAVOIE

With the advent of new autumn styles belts have come into the fashion foreground more than for a good many seasons with almost every dress or blouse and skirt combination taking to the addition of a pretty middle circler.

Very new is the touted waist cincher, and it's on the local [illegible] given by one of these in the same shade as the skirt it's worn with, while if you plan on wearing your cincher with a dress (could be one of the new coat dresses) you'll likely choose a contrasting color.

If you're the nimble fingered type, you can make one of your own quite easily using either the very wide elastic or half a dozen lengths of narrow elastic stitched together. Bind the ends, use extra-size hooks and eyes for fastening and there you are!

HAND MADE

A display of hand-made belts is being featured at a specialty store here and they're really eye catching. Done up in combinations of leather and plaid fabric they'd add a touch of smartness to any outfit.

They are mostly in the waist belting wide width fastened with double buckle tabs. The same store has matching bags in handy hold-all styles.

Medallion decked belts are on display too, and are just right for wear with a tucked-in sweater and skirt. These are to be seen on many of the newest wool jersey dresses, the smooth leather toning in nicely with the soft jersey.

Allowing for a bit of originality are belts that have rows of small holes punched in them, so that names, mottos or designs can be embroidered on with cotton to make a belt that is truly yours. In a gay mood is the belt that features tiny enameled butterflies fastened across it.

FOR DRESS UP

For wear with dress-up clothes belts in shiny silver or gold leather are a top choice, and these can be matched up with evening bag and sandles for any special occasion.

Belts and matching collars in taffeta brocaded with silver would liven up a plain dark toned dress perfectly. The collars come in either scalloped or revered styles, the belts are narrow and have self-covered buckles.

St. John's W.A. afternoon branch will meet on Tuesday, October 14, 2.30 p.m. in the parish hall.

Special Guests Honored at Tea

Following the meeting of the executive of the Women's Canadian Club a tea was held to honor the guest speaker, Mrs. S. Rocksborough Smith, director of New Haven, Burnaby.

Also special guests were Miss Frances Fredette, Mr. B. A. Hughes, and Mr. G. Balcom, winner of the club scholarships, with their mothers, Mrs. F. Fredette, Mrs. W. H. Hughes and Mrs. M. Balcom. Others were Mrs. H. P. Hodges and Mrs. [illegible] F. Hyndman.

Members of the executive present were Mrs. E. S. Farr, president, Mrs. W. H. Wilson, Mrs. Gordon Wismer, Dr. Olga Jardine, Mrs. Bruce Hutchison, Mrs. R. G. McKee, Mrs. K. O. Wright and Mrs. R. T. Wallace.

HOUSEKEEPING

Most husbands, as most wives discover to their horror sooner or later, have absolutely no sense of timing. If you're frantically cleaning for company your One and Only is apt to decide to polish his golf clubs in the living room. If you have a delicate cake in the oven he'll find something to hammer. Or if, as happened to me, it's a day when everything's gone wrong he might come up with something as coy as

"Do you think, living in the city, we'll ever have a horse?"

"Jeff," I warned, "I'm in no mood for nonsense!"

"It isn't nonsense," he declared. "I've got in mind a present for you that will curry a horse, deflea a dog, blow up dozens of party balloons in no time, defrost the refrigerator in five minutes, can be used instead of a milking machine or connected to the air valve of a hand-pump organ!"

"Since we have no horse, dog, milking machine or organ that'll be just dandy," I stormed.

"In that case," he smirked, "you can use the same attachments to dry your hair, clean your fur coat, dust the draperies, and . . . Okay, don't look at me that way. I have in mind the [illegible] Lewyt vacuum cleaner!"

He went on to describe the versatility of the new cleaner that by now I can't wait to get in the house. It will do all the amazing things Jeff mentioned. But the way it goes after ordinary cleaning jobs is just as remarkable. One advantage that interests me is that there is no dust bag to empty! After several months of use you simply remove and throw away a treated paper filter. A new carpet nozzle is another feature which helped win for the manufacturer the American Society of Industrial Engineers' Merit Award. The Number 80 carpet nozzle combines super suction and combing action to pick up surface litter and imbedded dirt with less carpet wear. The brush is automatically adjustable to high, medium and low pile rugs.

Then there's the moth "snuffocator," power sprayer, handy storage kit and . . . well, you'll just have to see the new model to appreciate all its advantages. Me? I've decided Jeff's timing isn't too bad after all!

I'm going to call Kent's and have them demonstrate the new Lewyt right here in my home . . . Why don't you do the same? Jeff tells me the down payment is only $11.00 . . . that's too good a bargain to miss. No wonder Kent's say they sell more Lewyt's than all other makes combined.

Beauty and You

By MARION MATTHEWS

Question: My mother refuses to wear make-up while mothers of all my friends wear lipstick, rouge and powder. Don't you think a woman in her early sixties [illegible] make-up?

Answer: Your mother probably hesitates to begin wearing make-up after not gaining skill in its application all these years. Why not treat her to a personal demonstration on how to apply make-up or even a short course if she is interested? All she may need is a little confidence and she will probably take to using face powder and perhaps a little rouge. Don't push her on the use of lipstick, however. She may or may not get around to it and then it would take a little more time for her to master. Actually if she is well groomed, keeps her hands smooth, nails well manicured and her hair smartly coiffed, you should be very pleased and proud of her appearance.

* * *

Question: I am back to work after vacation and find that the back of my neck is beginning to knot up and feel tense again. This is probably because I sit reading at a desk. Can you suggest an exercise that will help?

Answer: Best thing to do is try to relieve that kinked up condition with exercise and good posture. Roll your head in wide circles with head trying to touch shoulders as you move it. Rotate from right to left a half dozen times and then reverse movement to the left. Another good exercise is to lie across the bed with your head hanging [illegible] and then bring [illegible] effort to touch your chest. The idea is to do this frequently so you will stay limbered up and then be careful how you sit during the day. A careless posture will give you a slumped appearance and feeling.

Canadian Woman Sees Tension in Austria

EDMONTON (CP) — A former Edmonton girl back for a visit after living in occupied Europe with her American soldier husband, says that wives in occupied Europe keep bags packed with clothing and food all the time, ready for the alert to leave.

Mrs. E. A. Cherry, formerly Grace LaRose, said she could hardly adapt herself to the tension and suspicion.

Food was in plentiful supply from the United States army commissary and she bought clothing from a catalogue or went shopping in Vienna. The latter was an experience.

"The clothes are made with huge seams, either to be let out or taken in," she said. "A fitter made the adjustments in the shop for you."

Woollens were good but cottons and other materials were neither shrink-proof or dye-fast.

Mrs. Cherry said shoes bought in Austria are expensive, ill-fitting, clumsy and heavy to wear.

Language is a barrier to understanding as well as to speech, Mrs. Cherry commented. But in both the U.S. and British occupied zones of Austria a half hour's English now is taught daily.

Mrs. Cherry said she was able to manage the language sufficiently well to buy fruits and vegetables on the market.

Reception at Clubrooms For Couple Wed Saturday

Saturday evening at St. John's Church the Rev. Canon George Biddle solemnized the marriage of Grace Viola, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Weberg, 4325 North Quadra Street, to Terry Patmore Walls, son of Mr. P. T. Walls and Mrs. Bert Waude. Mr. Frederick Chubb played the organ music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white velvet with modified train, fashioned with fitted bodice and rising neckline, long pointed sleeves and full skirt. A pearl-studded coronet held her lace-edged veil of illusion net which fell finger tip length. She wore the groom's gift, pearl necklace and earrings, and carried a shower bouquet of red roses with satin streamers.

ATTENDANTS' GOWNS

Mrs. Mabel Wakeham, matron of honor for her sister, chose deep blue taffeta shot with green and carried bronze chrysanthemums and apricot roses. Miss Sylvia Weberg, her sister's bridesmaid, wore bronze taffeta shot with green, and carried pink roses and white chrysanthemums. Their gowns were styled similar to that of the bride and they had open crowned hats of matching taffeta. Little Sharon Quick, niece of the bride, wore a long frock of light blue taffeta with the prevailing green overcast featuring side panels of ruffles over the hips from waist to hemline. Her poke bonnet was trimmed with flowers to match the Michaelmas daisies in her small basket.

The best man was Mr. Archie Coutts and ushers were Mr. Bill Spedding and Mr. Rod McLeod.

The reception was held in the Business and Professional Women's clubrooms. Mrs. Weberg wearing amythest silk crepe with Chantilly lace, with navy blue accessories, Mrs. Waude gowned in sky blue picked out with brilliants and black accessories, both having corsages of gladioli and roses, and Mrs. R. Hale, aunt of the groom, wearing a navy blue ensemble with corsage of bronze chrysanthemums, welcomed guests with the newly weds. Mrs. N. Wakeham played piano selections during the evening.

The honeymoon will be spent in Vancouver and Portland. For traveling the bride chose a cherry red wool dress trimmed with black velvet, sand-colored topcoat, black velvet accessories, and dark brown squirrel neckpiece with white carnation corsage.

Mr. Ken Murphy will be best man.—(Photo by Jus-Rite.)

Modern Design for Cathedral Modified

LONDON, Oct. 11 (CP) — The original modernistic design for Coventry's new £800,000 cathedral, which won a prize of £2,000 for the noted Edinburgh architect Basil Spence, is to be altered to bring the structure into closer harmony with surrounding ancient buildings.

It was the second change in plans announced by Spence since his widely criticized design was accepted more than a year ago. His plan was to preserve what was left of the old cathedral destroyed by wartime bombing and combine with a creation expressing the idea of a new age.

The original design called for a rectangular structure 240 feet long, 88 feet wide and 90 feet high, with a stained glass window rising 70 feet at one end. Separating the old from the new were plans for a great porch and a huge glazed screen which could be lowered into the ground leaving the cathedral open. The walls were to be of zig-zag pattern with all windows shining toward the altar.

There was an indignant public outcry when the drawings and models were put on display.

Critics assailed the design as "an aesthetic outrage," "a super cinema," a "press-button cathedral" and "an architectural freak."

Last January the first modification of plans was announced. The cathedral reconstruction committee approved the architect's design to eliminate the sliding glass screen dividing the porch from the nave. It was also proposed at that time that the glass walls would be rigid and have doors, all to be decorated with transparent figures of saints.

The latest amendments Spence said involved no alterations in principle. The zig-zag appearance of the walls will be modified and certain other controversial aspects of the original design removed.

The revised plans must be approved by the cathedral council and the joint council, composed of Anglicans and Free Churchmen, before construction operations begin. It has been estimated it will take up to 10 years to complete the job.

Undeciphered Tablet May Unveil History

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Oct. 11 (Reuters) — A clearer look into the ancient history of Egypt and Cyprus is expected to be provided by a royal letter 35 centuries old, found recently in excavations at Enkomi, museum officials said today.

They believe the letter, inscribed on a baked clay tablet, is from a Pharaoh of Egypt, probably the great Tuthmosis III, to his subject, a king of Cyprus, and dates from about 1450 B.C.

But what the letter says is still a mystery which French archaeologists hope to solve. It was found by a Cypriot party making preliminary excavations at the site of the capital of the second millenium kingdom of Alashiya.

When the French digging party resumes its Alashiya project next month it expects to come across an entire library of such tablets. Then a key to the script of linear figures may be discovered as well.

It is a matter of record that Tuthmosis wrote to Cypriot kings. Their letters to him and to his successors have been found in Egypt.

Tuthmosis came to the throne about 1468 B.C. and promptly fought 15 battles or so to regain the empire that had dwindled away during the 22-year rule of his stepmother.

Prof. Claude Schaeffer, archaeologist who leads the French expedition, said his group has always assumed the answers to the letters found in Egypt would be turned up at Enkomi.

For five years the team has been digging at the location. Step by step various buildings, temples and fortifications of the ancient capital has been laid bare, but until now there was no sign of the most important historical evidence of all, inscriptions.

6 IN MEMORIAM

CARTER—In cherished memory of my dear sons, Gilbert W. Carter, who passed away October 1?, 1949, and [illegible] who passed away December 21, 1944.

DAVIS—In loving memory of my dear wife, Velma Davis, who passed away October 13, 1949.

Oh sad is the time and weary
Since the best of all we had has left;
Oh sad are the days and dreary
With the lonely years ahead,
Never forgetting you—Bill.

6 IN MEMORIAM

GRIGOR—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mary G. Grigor, who passed away Saturday, October 9, 1938.
Always remembered.

She saw the star in the east and has gone to worship Him.

Inserted by Dad and family.

The night has a thousand eyes,
The day but one;
Yet the light of a whole life dies
When love is done.
With God be the rest. Gloria.

McCUFFIE—In ever loving memory of Dad, William McCuffie, who passed away October 12, 1950.

You are ever in our thoughts, though parted we may be,
Side by side we walk along a path of memory.
And as we walk down memory's lane
And view the scenes of yore,
Your face we see and hand we clasp
Across the distant shore.
We cannot hear your voice or take your hand in ours today,
But none can rob us of our dreams, or take our hopes away.
Our lives were [illegible] together
But you are ever in our thoughts dear Dad and forever in our hearts.

Sadly missed by his wife Ruby, daughters, [illegible], Muriel, Marion, Doris, and son Wilfred, and grandchildren.

Did you ever see a field of brooms waving in the breeze? Fantastic as it sounds, this is a common sight in certain sections of the United States. In six states, Illinois, Kansas, Colorado, Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, they grow vast acres of broom corn, its stalks potential "sweepers." The tall plant is tipped by a seeded brush, graceful but extremely tough and fibrous. Harvesters first break the long stalks in half, then cut off the bristly tips which are later bound together to make brooms. The plant was first introduced in this country in the 18th century by Benjamin Franklin. When a friend sent him a whiskbroom from France, Franklin noticed three tiny seeds clinging to the brush. He planted them and within 90 days the stalk of broomcorn had matured. It was not until the early 1800's that the stalks were bound into brooms, replacing the clumsy implement of twigs tied with rope which had been used by colonial housekeepers. Thus from three seeds planted in a Philadelphia garden more than two centuries ago has flourished a plant which has been sweeping the U.S. ever since.

Single Policy Sought On Teacher Salaries

DUNCAN, Oct. 11—Boards of school trustees on Vancouver Island will seek to establish a uniform policy on teachers' salaries, Trustee Donald Campbell, member of the board of District 65 who is a member of the executive of the B.C. School Trustees' Association, told the trustees Friday night.

Acting on this information the board took no action on an application from the Teachers' Federation of this district, asking for a meeting with the board to discuss proposals for a new contract to take effect January 1.

Trustee George E. Bonner proposed that teachers' salaries throughout the province be frozen at their present level until a provincial conference is held between representatives of the Teachers' Federation and the Trustees' Association to work out a uniform salary schedule for the whole province.

"There should be a uniform schedule of service, too," Trustee Bonner stated. "At present many teachers are not paid enough, and a great many teachers are overpaid. There should be a uniform salary schedule and a uniform schedule of service."

Trustee Bonner asked that all school boards in the province be circularized on this matter.

Following an appeal from a delegation headed by Wilf Cain, representing the basketball association, the board offered two free nights for practice at the Elementary School gymnasium, but would not recede from a rental basis of $75 a night for one night a week at the high school gymnasium for games when an admission will be charged.

Mr. Cain sought an annual fee of $300 for use of the high school gym two nights a week for practice and one night a week for games.

The board's committee on rentals for the high school auditorium recommended, and the board adopted, a policy on fees to be charged for programs of an educational nature. When used for such purposes the rental schedule will be: When the admission charged is more than $1, rent shall be $75; when admission is over 50 cents up to $1, a rent shall be $50 a night; when admission charge is under 50 cents, rent shall be $25 a night. For all other types of programs a straight rental charge of $75 a night will prevail.

Magazine Praises Northwest Trade

The Canadian-American border is as good as non-existent to business men of the Pacific northwest, an article in one of the weekly news magazines claims.

The magazine story deals with the Pacific Northwest Trades Association, that held one of its three-times-a-year meetings in Yakima, Wash., recently.

The Northwest, one of the wealthiest regions on the continent at the present time, concerns itself with its own problems, and the border line at the 49th parallel means little or nothing to business men whose sole aim is to develop the potential wealth of the area.

The magazine calls the P.N.T.A. "a super chamber of commerce, organized internationally," and commends its attitude toward cooperative discussions on how to boost business in the area.

The magazine writer marvelled at the fact that apple-producing problems in the Okanagan Valley of B.C. were also the problems of men in the Yakima Valley of Washington.

The problem of tariffs, always a touchy problem between U.S. and Canadian business men, has a strong backer in the Pacific Northwest Trades Association, says the writer.

Canadian business men complain that because of the high tariff it is impossible to sell anything but raw and semi-finished products to the U.S.

Out of this discussion, the magazine says, came a resolution, backed up by American business men, that higher tariffs be fought tooth and nail.

Founding of the P.N.T.A. has been credited to John Hart, who while he was premier of the province in 1942 asked a group of Seattle business men to accompany him on a trip through northern B.C.

The purpose of the trip was to get some U.S. interest in a through highway to the north of B.C., and although the highway was not built until after the war the trip started the P.N.T.A. on its way.

The article quotes a Seattle engineer who says he thinks the American-Canadian organization is "good for the soul" and claims that it has knocked the superior attitude out of American business men that did a lot to hamper business relations before the association was founded.

"On a continent that has the longest unguarded boundary in the world, the men of the Pacific Northwest are several steps ahead of the pack. They act as if there wasn't any boundary at all," the article concludes.

Seven-Year Quiet Broken

Population of Dairy Cows Shows Significant Rise

The first significant upward trend in Canadian dairy cow population in seven years was revealed by a Dominion Bureau of Statistics survey published this week. The report shows that on June 1 milk cows and heifers increased by 3.7 per cent over a year ago.

The increase in milk cows on farms, amounting to 61,000 head, reflected the embargo on Canadian cattle shipments to the U.S. imposed following the outbreak of foot and mouth disease but, nevertheless, exceeds the total number of milk cows exported in the year prior to the ban, by some 12,000 head.

From the standpoint of future milk output, dairy officials note the sharp increase of 73,000 or 8.6 per cent, in heifers kept for milk purposes, as promising relief from the declining milk production which has been in evidence since 1945.

The provinces of Quebec and Prince Edward Island show the highest heifer increase with gains of 20.9 per cent and 18.2 per cent respectively. Ontario showed an increase of 8.6 per cent. Saskatchewan is the only province showing a decline during the year.

In contrast to the improved Canadian outlook, the United States department of agriculture reports a continuation of the decline in milk cows numbers and milk production in that country.

Increased production, loss of export markets for dairy cattle and greatly restricted outlets for cheese and evaporated milk, together with butter and cheese imports during the past 12 months, have resulted in abnormally high stocks of all dairy products for this season of the year.

Chamber Criticizes Telephone Service

CAMPBELL RIVER, Oct. [illegible]—Severe criticism of the Northwest Telephone Company for the type of service given to Campbell River subscribers was leveled by Campbell River Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

They commended local superintendent Miss K. Boffey and her staff for the fine work they were doing with obsolete equipment.

An answer to a letter sent to the telephone company by the chamber said that rapid expansion of the town made good service difficult giving as an example the jump from 119 phones in 1945 to 770 in 1952.

The company said they have spent $35,000 for service in the past year as compared to $10,000 in 1950.

Allan McLean, on the investigating committee for the Chamber of Commerce replied that expansion was a poor excuse when it was to be considered the company had floated a loan of $250,000, fully subscribed to, in 1951 for work to be done in Campbell River, Ocean Falls, Powell River and Prince George.

Allan McLean, William McCosker and Herbert Norton were appointed to make further investigation and report back to the chamber.

It was agreed to support the Vancouver Barge Transport appeal for trucking license operation from Courtenay dock to Campbell River.

A letter to J. G. Gibson, M.P. for Comox-Alberni was sent stressing the immediate need for dredging behind the breakwater and installation of a slipway for a car and freight ferry service.

A letter to the B.C. Power Commission was sent reminding them of [illegible] promise made to the chamber that a survey would be made with a view to giving local users cheaper power rates.

A request was also sent to the Regional District Employment office urging the installation of an employment office in Campbell River.

Unemployment Increasing, Report Shows

A slight rise in the number of unplaced applicants to the National Employment Office was noticed this week, the office reports.

The number of men registered for work decreased but there was an increase of registrations in the women's section.

Vacancies existing for men include those for a Chinese herb prescription specialist, for a veneer matcher and for men with specialized furniture experience as cabinet makers and woodworking machinists. Dairy farm hands are needed, as are junior clerks.

Women required for work are those trained in stenography, domestic work and hairdressing.

Socred Group Addressed By McGregor

Balancing of production with consumption through monetary reform is necessary to solve present-day financial evils, Esquimalt Social Credit group was told Friday night.

Guest speaker Gilbert McGregor said that the monetary reform would include creation of credit, an instrument which rightly belongs to the state, thus helping create a steady consumption.

Mr. McGregor reviewed the history of the past two centuries in industry, social measures, business and monetary systems which he said lead to the present unbalance between production and consumption.

Beer Price To Stay Put

Draft beer will still be 10 cents a glass in British Columbia for the next few months at least.

This was indicated because the brewing industry has not re-applied for a price increase to the Social Credit government.

No action was taken when such an application was made to the former Coalition government.

Print Craftsmen Meet Thursday

There will be a dinner meeting of the Printing House Craftsmen of Victoria at the Olde England Inn at 6:15 p.m. Thursday.

U.S. Boosts Order For Jet Bombers

SEATTLE, Oct. 11 (AP)—A letter contract calling for nearly three years continued production of B-47 medium jet bombers has been received from the United States Air Force, Boeing Airplane Company announced today. At current rate of production this could mean the air force will take delivery of upward of 1,500 more B-47s.

De Havilland Finds Latest Role Best

BY HAROLD HEFFERNAN
North American Newspaper Alliance

Her 35th film—"My Cousin Rachel"—is the most satisfying role of her career, says Olivia De Havilland, even though she has won two Oscars, three award nominations and much critical acclaim for other pictures.

[illegible] "It's a challenge any actress should be happy to accept," she said. "Rachel must be all things to all people.

"To Philip, the young man who loves her and lays his wealth at her feet, she must be feminine, glamorous and exciting. To her attorney, who knows her former riotous living, she must be a woman in love with life. To Philip's guardian she must be a gentlewoman above reproach. And to Philip's fiancee she must look like a middle-aged woman of no immediate threat to her.

"On top of all this she has to look both innocent and guilty of murder, in love with yet not in love with the young man, selfish and free-hearted."

When Daphne du Maurier, the famous author of "Rebecca," sold "My Cousin Rachel" to Darryl F. Zanuck, she specified in her contract that the part could be played only by one of four actresses—Greta Garbo, Alida Valli, Claudette Colbert or Olivia de Havilland.

"I heard of her demands before I had read the book," Miss De Havilland said, "but got a copy immediately. I read it and reread it, and every time the character became more fascinating. Miss Du Maurier had achieved the impossible with great skill. The reader could love Rachel and hate her, could convict her or exonerate with equal ease. And naturally I wanted to play this woman. I got in touch with my agent, he called Mr. Zanuck, and here we are."

Rachel is far removed from Olivia's recent role at 20th Century-Fox in "The Snake Pit." That one, which was widely applauded, was all characterization. "Rachel is characterization plus glamour," she explained, happily.

One awesomely regarded as the most lavish and extravagant studio in film business, M.G.M. is now busy making every penny count. Especially is this true in the salvaging of film footage, sets and costumes.

For instance after "Quo Vadis" the auditors discovered enough trappings left over to make another big movie. What happened? They stockpiled them for a couple of years and are now trotting them out for use in "Julius Caesar" with its all-star cast. It's the same period, the same Italian locale. Savings? About $750,000.

When "Ivanhoe" was completed six months ago in England, there was so much in the way of actual film and scenic grandeur left over that another big reclamation deal was figured out. From this came plans for "King Arthur and the Round Table." Robert Taylor starred in "Ivanhoe" and will do likewise in "King Arthur." Once again, it's the same period and the same locale and once more the saving of half a million plus. Most gratifying of all, the auditors can report these salvaged spectacles are great audience pleasers as well as big money makers.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1952

Today's Quotation: "Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide,

In the strife of Truth and Falsehood, for the good or evil side."
J. R. Lowell.

Tuesday for everyone: Complete tasks and solve problems. Reason things out and arrive at a conservative decision. Adopt a practical view of things, effect savings. Keep clear of upsets, complications.

Look for your birthdate and birthsign below.

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus): Make use of a new trend to lift some of the pressure you have been under. However, skip chance-taking.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer): Devote the day to learning, investigation. Peruse books, dispatch letters.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo): Put financial responsibilities first today. Make headway via talks and a "give and take" of down-to-earth ideas.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo): Promote personal matters and contacts. Make advances by means of long pending affairs.

September 23 to October 22 (Libra): Bend an ear to confidential information; use it to resolve prevailing difficulties. Keep clear of complications.

November 22 to December 21 (Sagittarius): Concentrate on stabilizing forces today. Discuss issues to attain clarity. See parents, elders or higher-ups.

December 22 to January 19 (Capricorn): Let persons in your locale give you a lift. Follow "safe and sure" methods. Make plans, decisions.

January 20 to February 18 (Aquarius): Make progress on the monetary front through your efforts or those of a teammate. Be very practical, however.

February 19 to March 20 (Pisces): Seek cooperation; be willing to defer to the reasonable requests or wishes of others.

Planning Ahead: Good for entertaining, sociability, etc. Afternoon of October 15, 18, 19, 21, 22, afternoon of 23, 26, 29.

The provincial government has authorized the movement of 10 women prisoners at Oakalla Prison farm to the Prince George jail because of overcrowding at the mainland prison farm, it was announced yesterday.

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP)—Two of the eight children of Mr. and Mrs. George Hebert died today when fire destroyed the family's two-story log house. Collette Hebert, 7, was trapped in an upstairs room and died in the fire. Her brother, five-year-old Robert, died in hospital a few hours later of burns.

B.C. Cow Testing Records Show Gains Over Years

Concrete evidence of the value of keeping production records for herds of dairy cattle is provided in the summarized report of B.C. Provincial Cow Testing Associations for 1951. Computations of 7,432 milking periods reveal that the average dairy cow under C.T.A. test in this province produced 9,7[illegible] pounds of [illegible] per cent milk last year. This was an increase of 25 10-gallon cans, or 1¼ tons of milk over the average of 30 years ago, on a 305-day basis. The average in 1921 was 6,862 pounds of 4.47 milk, based on a total of 500 milking periods.

Holsteins still lead in production and in popularity among C.T.A. herds in this province. Thirty-seven per cent of the animals on test last year were of that breed, with an average annual production of 11,544 pounds of milk testing 3.66 per cent fat. One out of every five animals tested was a registered purebred, producing an average of 413 pounds of fat annually, or 14 pounds an animal more than the average for all breeds.

While the average production of cows on C.T.A. test has shown a rise of 36 per cent, the average for all cows in this province is no more than the C.T.A. average of 30 years ago. However, the British Columbia average is estimated to be considerably higher than that of any other Canadian province. The all-Canada average is computed at about 4,700 pounds. In the United States, the average cow produces slightly over 5,300 pounds annually.

In both countries the ratio of cattle numbers to human population has been widening steadily over the past quarter century. There is today [illegible] every six persons in the United States. British Columbia has one milking cow to every 12 persons at the present time.

How COLDS affect Your KIDNEYS

The kidneys are very delicate organs, easily affected—especially by a cold. Their duty is to filter impurities and excess acids from the blood. When you have a cold extra work is thrown upon your kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills help your kidneys clear your system of excess acids and poisons caused by colds and give you a chance to shake infection, sooner—feel better faster. If you have a cold get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. 139

CHAPTER III

SYNOPSIS: Perry Mason in a rented canoe has rescued a daring young adventuress who has just invaded the almost impregnable island estate of the mysterious tycoon, George S. Alder. Avoiding a vicious dog and a [illegible] Mason and the girl [illegible] the [illegible] of a small [illegible] to watch the girl has [illegible] him. Now in the cabin of the little [illegible] with the [illegible] [illegible] with [illegible] are [illegible] a [illegible] script taken from the bottle which was [illegible] the girl. [illegible]

Somewhere off Catalina Island. I, Minerva Danby, make this statement because if anything should happen to me I want justice done.

I am writing this on the yacht of George S. Alder, the Thayer-belle. Because I have information which will in all probability deprive George Alder of much of his fortune, he may do anything to seal my lips.

When George Alder's father died, he left all the stock of the huge corporation known as Alder Associates, Inc. in a trust, one part to his stepdaughter, Corrine Lansing, one part to his son, George S. Alder. The survivor was to take all the stock. A brother of the father, Dorley H. Alder was to have the voting power of one-third of the stock and a guaranteed income for life, but he was to have no interest in the trust unless both of the younger people died before he did. Dividends were to be paid on a basis of one third to each. There were, however, 10 shares of stock which were not in the trust, stock held by Carmen Monterrey. I set these things down in writing to show that I appreciate the danger I am in and the reason for it.

Corrine Lansing went to South America. She had been suffering from a nervous condition, which became steadily worse. I met her on an airplane while I was flying over the Andes. She was terribly nervous and I tried to steady her down a bit. As a result she took a sudden liking to me and insisted that I should start traveling with her, sharing accommodations, but entirely at her expense.

ACCEPTED

Because I was traveling on a very limited budget and because I thought I could perhaps do her some good, I accepted.

Corrine had her maid with her, Carmen Monterrey, who had been in the family for years and who, I gathered, had been a favorite of Corrine's stepfather.

Gradually I learned from her the family background, about her brother and the terms of her father's will. Carmen Monterrey, of course, knew all about it also. She was treated as "one of the family" and Corrine Lansing never hesitated to discuss business matters in her presence.

Despite the fact that the arrangement was very advantageous to me from a financial standpoint, the time came when I simply couldn't put up with it any longer. Corrine Lansing became progressively worse. She was completely unbalanced on some things and rapidly becoming a mental case. There was a definite desire to dominate which not only annoyed but frightened me. It seems she had a well developed persecution complex and had decided someone was trying to poison her and that having me constantly with her was her only protection. I began to feel afraid for myself.

It happened that events made it necessary for George Alder to fly to South America, bringing some papers for Corrine to sign, and on the day he was due to arrive and while she was at the beauty parlor I packed my bags and left a note for her saying I had been unexpectedly called back home. I had previously reserved passage on a Pan American airplane flying north.

SUPPOSEDLY DEAD

Then I read in the papers that Corrine was supposed to be dead, that she had disappeared on the afternoon of the day I had left. She had, it seemed, been much upset by the departure of "a friend," and it was feared she had gone to look for her.

With the passage of time it was assumed she must have met with some fatal accident.

Naturally, upon reading this, I went to see George S. Alder and tld him what I knew and and told him what I knew and could I felt conscience-stricken because I knew Corrine had gone in search for me when she disappeared.

Alder was grateful and then became friendly. I was foolish enough to feel that perhaps there was something more to his friendship than just a desire to see that the evidence concerning his sister's death was properly established. I had told George Alder I would take a cruise with him.

However, just before we embarked upon this cruise, I had occasion to go to the mental hospital at Los Merritos. I was leaving when in the yard I saw a woman whom I first thought to be a ghost. It was Corrine Lansing! She said 'Minerva! What are you doing here? Minerva, Minerva, Minerva!" and started screaming until an attendant rushed to her.

PICKED UP

By discreet inquiries I learned that this woman had been picked up on the streets of Los Angeles. She seemed to know nothing about herself.

Very much upset and completely unnerved, I hastened to find George Alder so I could tell him what I had found. George Alder was not aboard the yacht when I arrived. I left word that he was to call me, and went to my cabin to wait.

I had a fatiguing day. I stretched out on the couch and was soon asleep. I was awakened from that sleep by the sound of the engines and, from the motion of the yacht, realized we were at sea and that there was a heavy sea running. Moreover, the wind was howling about the yacht so that I knew a sudden storm had descended upon us.

It was just an hour ago, at two o'clock in the morning, George came to my cabin. He sat in my cabin after I had told him my story and looked at me with steady, appraising eyes.

I began to feel uneasy. It was as though a snake were trying to charm a bird.

"You're sure you haven't told anyone, Minerva?" he asked.

"Not a soul," I said. "You can trust my sense of discretion on that."

SAME LOOK

And then suddenly I saw in his eyes that same look which I had seen in the eyes of his sister, the look of an insane person contemplating some peculiarly cunning means of attaining an end. He arose without a word, went out and slammed the door behind him.

I suddenly felt myself filled with apprehension. I ran to the door. It was locked. I have repeatedly tried ringing for the steward. Nothing happens. I have tried telephoning. The line is dead. I realize now that George has cut the wires leading from my cabin.

I have one hope. I have decided to write down everything that happened, seal it in a bottle, and toss that bottle out through the porthole. Then, if George should come back, I will tell him that the bottle will eventually drift ashore, and will most surely be found. In that way... well, at least I can hope that he will listen to reason, but I feel that the man, with the insane cunning which is apparently a family taint, intends to see to it that my lips will be forever sealed.

(Signed) MINERVA DANBY

Mason felt the girl's fingers pressing into his arm. She exclaimed triumphantly, "Do you realize what this letter means? I've got him!"

"Just who is this Minerva Danby?" Mason asked.

"I don't know very much about her except what's in this letter. All I know is that she was drowned. She was washed overboard from Alder's yacht about six months ago. That was the story. I always knew that there was something fishy with this business about Corrinne. I felt certain she wasn't dead. I'm probably the only living blood relative she has.

"Oh, this is going to make a difference, a big difference."

Mason said, "You'd better tell me a lot more. I'm a responsible citizen. I find you committing burglary and circumstances conspire to put me in a position of helping you out. George S. Alder would very much enjoy being in a position to accuse me of having conspired with you to steal this evidence from his house."

"Can't you see," she said scornfully, "that Alder can't accuse anyone of anything? He doesn't dare let this letter be made public."

"All right," Mason said patiently. "What are you going to do with the letter?"

"I'll make it public. I'll go to the newspapers. I'll say that... Couldn't I say that I found the letter? On the beach somewhere?"

"And then Alder would introduce witnesses showing that the letter had been in his possession, that it had been taken from his house, and you'd be facing a perjury charge as well as a burglary charge."

There was dismay in her voice. "I hadn't thought of that."

"I was satisfied you hadn't. Now suppose you tell me who you are, how you knew the letter was there and a few other things."

The bidding

2♠	Pass	3♡	Pass
4♢	Pass	4♡	All Pass

Some players never make a skip response to partner's opening bid unless they have a bone-crusher that might make game even if the opening bid was psychic. But psychic bids are far less common than they were when this conservative practice had its advantages. There are lots of players who still wouldn't dream of responding two hearts on the South hand, but this would put them under the necessity of doing some vigorous skipping later on. For example, if South responded one heart and North rebid one spade, what is South's next bid? Three hearts, while strong, isn't absolutely forcing and surely South doesn't want to make a bid that can be passed. The immediate skip, followed by cautious rebidding, is usually better—but in this case South failed to take full advantage of having made his big move at once.

West opened the king of clubs, got the eight from his partner and continued with the ace and deuce giving East a ruff. East read the deuce as a call for a return of the lowest side suit so he put West back in with the diamond ace. West then led a fourth club and when East ruffed the contract went down two.

North complained about South's skip bid but that was not the cause of the trouble. Having bid two hearts South should have foreseen and worried about the possible misfit when his partner showed nine cards in diamonds and spades. Suppose North has just such a hand as he actually held. Without a club stopper he cannot bid three notrump, so South's rebid of three hearts may force the bidding past the notrump contract that may be best. South's second bid should be two notrump. North can then bid three diamonds, South three hearts, and North will bid three notrump, a contract which can never be in the slightest danger.

ON THE LABOR FRONT

BY BILL MAYOR

A denial that he is "seething with discontent" or that differences exist between himself and Labor Minister Lyle Wicks was given yesterday by George A. Wilkinson, resigning member of [illegible]

He said, however, that he is "perturbed" by "rumors" regarding the board's future.

He feels that certain preconceived ideas exist and it is his hope, he said, that nothing will be done to destroy the board's effectiveness until a full review of the board's work has been completed and until labor and management have placed their viewpoints before the government.

The board's record speaks for itself, Mr Wilkinson said.

He is perturbed by some statements that cast adverse reflections on persons holding responsible government positions. Mr [illegible] has not identified himself with such statements.

He urged co-operation by everyone on matters put forward by the government that are of benefit to the province.

The Manitoba Appeal Court has been asked to answer the question of whether a man can be dismissed from his work on an hour's notice if he is hired by the hour.

The appeal was launched by spray painter Francis R. Emler, Winnipeg, following a county court decision. Emler according to Canadian Press, said he was given notice at 4 p.m. one day last October and paid up to 5.15 p.m. He sued in provincial police court under the Wages Recovery Act and was awarded $18.80 and costs. The company appealed to county court which upset the decision.

Judge C. G. Keith said skilled workers hired by the hour command higher wages and can quit on an hour's notice. He said that a company could discharge on one hour's notice unless there was a contract to the contrary.

An announcement indicating whether unions are prepared to accept or reject a conciliation board recommendation involving two Victoria shipyards, will have to wait until all 11 unions have held separate meetings.

A shipyard council spokesman said that no reports on the voting will be issued until all unions have notified the council of their decisions.

A. H. O'Brien, Seattle president of the Northwest Council of A.F.L. Office Employees, said he believed "resistance that formerly was apparent by the white collar worker is rapidly disappearing. The office and clerical employees have been able to watch steady progress by trade unions, whose members' education and skill is in many instances inferior to that required by the white collar worker."
